Plane Narrowly Misses Houses

An attorney from Los Ranchitos was killed today when his single-engine plane slammed into a hill near the intersection of San Marino Drive and San Pedro Road in Peacock Gap, narrowly missing a dozen homes.

The victim, Steven J. Dedina, had taken off from Smith Brothers Ranch Airport in San Rafael shortly before 9:30 a.m., reportedly headed for San Francisco, when he radioed a distress signal to Hamilton Air Force Base, and turned back.

Witnesses said the plane hit the embankment in the middle of a densely populated area under full

Astronauts, Nixon Head For Hawaii

ABOARD USS IWO JIMA (AP)—As the Apollo 13 astronauts journeyed to Hawaii today, President Nixon presented the Medal of Freedom to the space agency flight control team and said the troubled flight was "not a failure," because it "reached the hearts of millions of people."

Standing in front of a model of the moon lander, in a stopover at Houston, Tex., President Nixon presented the nation's highest civilian award to the mission control team which guided the crippled Apollo 13 flight safely back to earth. (See also photo, page 18.)

He said he was "speaking for people all over the world" in thanking the space workers "who made it possible for the astronauts to return to earth."

Nixon said thousands of telegrams and letters from thousands of people all over the world had poured into the White House in response to the astronauts' problems in space.

"Out of this," he said of Apollo 13, "We recognize that it was not a failure. They (the astronauts) reached the hearts of millions of people."

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., John L. Swigert Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr., meanwhile, head for Hawaii. There they will reunite with their families and greet the President.

Mrs. Lovell, three of her children, Mrs. Haise and her three children and the parents of Swigert, a bachelor, accompanied the presidential party from the space center. They fly to Hawaii aboard the presidential jet to greet the astronauts.

Mrs. Nixon, wearing a yellow suit dress, accompanied the president.

As the ceremony began, Dr. Thomas Paine, administrator of the space agency, introduced the wives and children of the astronauts.

Mrs. Lovell he described as "a very brave lady who waited on earth while her husband set forth on four space missions."

A score or more demonstrators stood in the crowd of several hundred as the president arrived at the space center holding such signs as "Poor people care about astronauts. Who cares about poor people?"

Sheriff's officers quietly escorted 15 of the demonstrators

SAUSALITO SCHOOL TAKEOVER SOUGHT

By PAT ANGLE

Sausalito Citizens for Excellence in Integrated education asked the Marin County Superintendent of Schools yesterday to take over management of the Sausalito School District "immediately" in the wake of a two-day strike by 58 of the district's 121 employees.

The CEIE, in a letter to County Supt. Virgil S. Hollis, said the takeover was necessary "due to the chaotic conditions" which the organization says exist in the district.

Hollis could not be reached for comment on the request, but Lawrence A. Lindberg, director of instructional services for the county, said the schools office plans a careful study of the Sausalito situation over the weekend.

"We hope to have a decision on the CEIE petition sometime Monday," he said, adding he had visited Martin Luther King School yesterday and found "everything in order' and the school "functioning smoothly."

Before making any decision on the request, Lindberg said, the county schools office will try to "learn the desires of the Sausalito school board and the district administration and talk to as many persons from the community as possible. There are many factors to be considered.

Board President Nathaniel Johnson also could not be reached for comment, and Vice President David E. Freedheim (who, with Trustee Martha Freebairn-Smith is facing recall in a June 2 election initiated by the CEIE) said he would refrain from making any statement at present.

When told about the proposed takeover of the district by the county, James T. Toliver Jr., vice principal at King School, said "that's good news," but declined to explain his statement.

Sausalito Supt. Phillip W. Schneider disagreed with the CEIE assessment of chaotic conditions in the district's four schools. Although he acknowledged about 161 of the district's 708 students were absent yesterday, Schneider said the schools were operating smoothly.

"It is unfortunate that a number of children are being hurt by not attending school," the superintendent said, "But those who have come are being quite responsible under a minimum amount of supervision."

He said students handled office work at King School yesterday "and we received many compliments on how well the youngsters were taking care of telephone calls and visitors."

Substitutes are filling in for absent teachers, he said.

Schneider called upon CEIE members "to offer their assistance to our schools during this difficult period, if they are genuinely concerned about educa-

Bolinas-Stinson Trustees Hire New Superintendent

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board, by a 3-1 vote, last night named a Southern California educator as new superintendent.

He is Lester M. Horning, 53, curriculum coordinator and administrative assistant of the 12,000-student Colton Joint Unified School District in Riverside County. He will be given a two-year contract at $16,000 per year, according to Jessie Reasoner, trustee representative.

Horning was the board's second choice for the post—the first, John A. O'Shea of Yuba City, having decided against taking the post after the board selected him in late March. Horning was selected from among three educators under

Single Command Urged For Marin Mental Health Aid

Marin's mental health program should be under a single organization with a direct line of command, instead of the present system of administration by the county and Marin Hospital District.

This is the recommendation made by the Marin County council of the Bay Area Social Planning Council in a report to the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. The Marin council is headed by chairman Lillian D. Kettenbach.

The evaluation and recommendations were made by a special evaluation committee headed by Justice Richard M. Sims Jr. of Belvedere, associate justice of the State Court of Appeal.

While a single organization and one line of authority is the ideal method, the report said, it concedes that the county may have to live with dual administration for the time being.

That being the case, the evaluation committee recommended the following:

1. The county and the hospital district clearly define the new administrative arrangement and relationships between the

THE DAY THE TRAIN FELL OVER

Point Reyes Station was the picture of bucolic calm in the first dawn of this date 64 years ago. And then at 5:13 a.m. the earth shuddered, much of San Francisco fell down and began burning, and damage was terrific all along the San Andreas Fault—which runs through the Point Reyes area. But as this historic photo by John Ault, electrical superintendent of the old North Shore Railroad shows, probably the worst damage was to Old Engine 14, narrow-gauge steamer stopped overnight on the run from the North Coast to Sausalito. The train's crew, asleep in the baggage car, got shaken up; Point Reyes Station residents lost some crockery, but their frame houses mostly weathered the great quake well.

Killer Tornadoes Rip Texas Plains

CLARENDON, Tex. (UPI)—A cluster of tornadoes laced with rain and hail roamed the flat farm country of the Texas Panhandle early today, killing at least 22 persons, injuring hundreds more and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Twisters, too many to count, struck at least 11 cities and towns in the darkness of night over a 200-mile stretch from the tiny village of Whiteface near the New Mexico border to Pampa, about 60 miles from the Oklahoma line.

One tornado ripped through a sleepy trailer park on a lake shore outside Clarendon at 3:30 a.m. Twelve persons were killed there, and 150 house trailers were tossed about like toys and destroyed.

Around the tornadoes, winds of more than 100 miles an hour raked towns from the Red River Valley to the tip of the Texas Panhandle. Gusts blew in storefronts and twisters ripped out gas and power lines and knocked out telephone lines across hundreds of miles.

"There are people getting killed and injured all over the country," said Carroll Clark, a state police dispatcher at Amarillo, 60 miles northwest of Clarendon.

C. O. Layne, Texas Coordinator for defense and disaster relief in Austin, said damage was estimated at daybreak at $5 million. He ordered Civil Defense crews into the "tornado alley" to clean up and help the hundreds either injured or homeless.

Sausalito Regent Loses Pro-Nader Proxy Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Regents of the University of California have decided to back the management of General Motors in a proxy fight with consumer crusader Ralph Nader to seat environmentalists on the auto firm's board of directors.

The university owns 100,000 shares of General Motors stock which is worth $7 million.

Regent Frederick Dutton of Sausalito asked the board Friday to vote its shares at the annual stockholders' meeting next month in favor of Nader's "campaign to make GM responsible."

Dutton received no support for his proposal and then suggested the Regents hold a public hearing on how to vote the stock, but that idea was voted down overwhelmingly.

Dutton said other public institutions, including the University of Pennsylvania, have decided to support Nader's proposals.

Nader's plan would add three environmental specialists to the GM board and would have the corporation conduct a study on whether it is doing enough for consumers and minority groups.

Dutton said the university should manage its investments in a way that is "profitable but also good for the citizens."

He questioned whether General Motors "is doing what it should for its size as a good citizen."

Regent Edwin E. Pauley an oil company executive who heads the committee which manages the university's $300 million in investments, told the Regents it was routine to back management.

"I think it would be very unbecoming to investigate one company," he said.

Regent John E. Kanaday, a Lockheed Aircraft Co. executive, said Dutton's proposal was "ridiculous, ludicrous and politically-oriented."

The Regents also appointed a special committee to study a series of proposals on better utilizing the university's facilities that were suggested by Regent Norton Simon, who said $70 million a year could be saved.

Simon's proposals included making the summer quarter mandatory instead of optional as at present, reducing the time undergraduates must attend from four years to 3½ years, changing the investment policy to get higher returns and better use of libraries and other buildings.

"The various savings I have outlined total over $70 million per year," said Simon, a candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator.

Reagan told newsmen after the meeting that he supported Simon's proposals.

The Regents also appointed Dr. Harold M. Agnew, a 49-year-old physicist, director of the Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory. He will succeed Dr. Norris E. Bradbury effective Sept. 1.

Agnew is currently a weapons division leader. Bradbury has been director of the lab since 1945, when he succeeded the late Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

The university operates the laboratory under a contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lebanese Demonstrate As U.S. Aide Arrives

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco arrived in Beirut, Lebanon, today on the third leg of his Middle East peace mission. Arab students protested the arrival of the American diplomat by burning an American flag, stoning the U.S. embassy and chanting "Sisco Go Home!"

Elaborate security measures were imposed at Beirut International Airport as Sisco's chartered Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 touched down on a flight from Cyprus. He had flown to the Mediterranean island from Tel Aviv aboard a camouflaged Israeli air force transport plane.

Security guard armed with submachine guns were posted atop the terminal building as Sisco stepped from the jetliner and boarded a Lebanese army helicopter for the three mile flight to the home of U.S. Ambassador Dwight Porter at Yarze on the outskirts of Beirut. Another helicopter escorted the flight.

Tentative plans were made for Sisco to drive to the nearby Baabda Palace for talks with President Charles Helou.

In Amman, U.S. Ambassador Harrison M. Symmes was preparing to leave Jordan at the request of King Hussein's government. The U.S. State Department agreed to recall Symmes at the insistence of the Jordanians who objected to his reaction to the anti-American demonstrations.

Symmes criticized Jordan for failure to protect the U.S. embassy and information center against the demonstrators, who tore down the American flag at the embassy and burned the library. Sisco's visit was canceled at his recommendation.

Political sources said the Jordanian government felt misunderstood and humilated. They said that to ask Jordanian policemen to use arms in defense of American property against Palestinians or fellow Jordanians was an invitation to civil war.

Security forces felt they were perfectly capable of ensuring Sisco's safety and to call off the visit suggested an abdication of power to the guerrillas, who had apparently had this objective all along, the sources said.

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv announced that an Israeli patrol killed two Arab guerrillas one mile from the Lebanese border near the Israeli village of Malkiyya.

In Amman, a Jordanian military spokesman said Israeli forces fired mortars and medium artillery across the border at Jordanian troops north of the Dead Sea Friday night, but there were no Jordanian casualties.

Pro-Kremlin Patriarch Alexius Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Patriarch Alexius, the leader of the Russ n Orthodox church, died Friday night from a "sudden cardiac deficiency," the news agency Tass said today. He was 92 years old.

Alexius, the Patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, has been the spiritual leader of the Russian Orthodoxy since 1945.

Tass said the Patriarch would be replaced temporarily by Metropolitan Pimen of Krutitsky and Colomna, member of the Holy Synod of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Funeral arrangements for the late Patriarch were not immediately disclosed.

Alexius was born as Sergei V. Simansky in Moscow in 1877 and was graduated from the law school of Moscow University in 1899. Subsequently he entered the Moscow Ecclesiastical Academy. He became a monk under the name of Alexius in 1902 and was ordained a priest and deacon. He became Bishop of Tikhvin in 1913.

After the revolution, Bishop Alexius consistently supported policies of the Soviet government and the Soviet Communist Party. In 1922 he governed the See of Petrograd (now Leningrad) and was appointed archbishop of Nocgorod in 1927. In 1933 he became Metropolitan of Leningrad after he was elected to the Holy Synod.

Since he became in 1945 patiarch of Moscow and all Russia, the top post in the Russian Orthodox hierarchy, he became active in the peace movement but followed the soviet policy line.

Alioto Is Winner In Bay Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Regional Water Qulaity Board lost an appeal Friday seeking the renewal of sewage connection bans in the city until it improves waste disposal.

Superior Court Judeg Carl H. Allen reaffirmed his earlier ruling which lifted a ban on new connections for $98.9 million worth of building projects in San Francisco.

Mayor Alioto, emerged from court Friday apparently satisified with the ruling, but still angry over the rift between the board and the city.

"It's disgraceful, unconstitutional conduct that has been going on in connection with the building halt," he said. "We have to fight to keep an ongoing program from being stopped."

The water quality board had previously named San Francisco as the principal polluter in the bay and slapped the ban on sewage connections on March 26th.

The ban was to take effect April 26, but last week, after a meeting with Mayor Alioto, the board was partially lifted the ban allowing construction of a high school, hospital, and public housing.

Fewer In Jail

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's jail population has dropped since 1964 from about 11,500 to about 7,900, Minister of Justice, Law and Order, Desmond Lardner-Burke said.

Collier, Petris Argue Use Of Gas Tax Funds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. Raldolph Collier, chairman of the powerful Senate Transportation Committee, sees no legal need to change the State Constitution to produce more antismog research money.

But an antismog crusader, Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, whose proposal to use gasoline tax revenues to fight smog and help rapid transit is before Collier's committee, disagrees with Collier.

CITES OPINION

Collier, D-Yreka, produced a legislative counsel's opinion Friday which said state funds already are available under existing law to pay for antipollution studies.

"It is quite obvious now that such a proposed change in the constitution is not needed, as we already have the tools to work with," commented Collier, known as the "father of California's freeways."

Collier based the conclusion on an opinion by Jimmie Wing, deputy legislative counsel, who responded to a Collier query:

"It is our opinion that appropriations may be made from the State Motor Vehicle Fund for the support of the State Air Resources Board activities relating to the air pollution problem caused by motor vehicles operated on the public streets and highways."

PETRIS REPLIES

"Sen. Collier's revelation," Petris, D-Oakland, responded through an aide, "still won't ease the need to find reasonable, dependable ways for fighting air pollution."

Petris added: "The supply of extra money in the State Motor Vehicle Fund is dwindling. The same fund is needed to finance expansion of the California Highway Patrol and other growing highway needs."

Petris proposes to earmark one penny from the current 7-cents-a-gallon state gasoline tax to go for smog research and to foster development of rapid transit.

Collier has stymied such non-highway uses of gasoline tax revenues for years.

Petris said his constitutional amendment would not use revenue from the motor vehicle fund but "fuel tax money" which he said is dependent on the "growing number of motor vehicles in the state."

"The amendment is necessary," said Petris, "because it gives California a reliable source of money to fight encroaching smog."

The Petris proposal is one of several before the legislature to change the law so revenues exclusively earmarked for highways in past years may be spent for other transportation-related purposes.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Seale Trial Delay

CHICAGO (UPI)—The trial of Bobby Seale, national Black Panther party chairman, on charges of conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago has been postponed until at least June 8.

The delay was granted by U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman Friday. The government requested the postponement because Seale is facing trial in Connecticut on a charge of conspiring to murder a fellow Black Panther.

Seale had been scheduled to go on trial on the conspiracy charge next Thursday in Chicago.

Jumbo Jet Limps

LONDON (UPI)—A Trans World Airlines (TWA) 747 jet from New York limped into London's Heathrow Airport today after flying 1,300 miles on three engines, an airline spokesman said.

Few of the 341 passengers were aware of any trouble, he said, and airport authorities did not think it necessary to have crash trucks at the ready when the jet landed with its outer starboard engine out of action.

"There was a lack of oil pressure showing in the engine about two hours out of London," he said. "But it was not serious."

Alaska Rocks

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) —A strong earthquake, the third in Alaska in the past 11 days, hit about 150 miles south of here near the Kenai Peninsula at 3:51 a.m. (EST) today.

The earthquake registered 6.3 on the Richter scale.

The coastal geodetic seismic observatory at nearby Palmer said the quake was felt in the Anchorage-Palmer area as well as at Cordova and Middleton Island about 225 miles east of the quake center.

Filipinos Killed

MANILA (UPI) — Five Filipinos were killed Friday when a mortar shell exploded in a restricted training area of U.S. Marines at Subic Bay Naval Base, 45 miles northwest of Manila.

The Filipinos were reported gathering empty mortar shells at a beach near the training area when they came across one unexploded shell. Philippine military authorities said the victims apparently were extracting powder from the shell when it blew up.

White House Humor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Country and Western singing star Johnny Cash was the featured entertainer at the fourth in a series of "Evenings at the White House," and had to take some good-natured ribbing from President Nixon.

"I'm not an expert on his music," the President said Friday night. "I found that out when I told him what to play. I understand he owns a Cadillac but won't sing about it."

The reference was to Nixon's request that Cash sing the song "Welfare Cadillac." Cash declined to offer his rendition of the controversial tune.

Nixon said Cash's music "speaks to all America."

Sirhan Loses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A biography of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan can be published in spite of objections by Sirhan and his family, a court has ruled.

Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer said Friday he would not bar publication of the book, "R.F.K. must Die" by Robert B. Kaiser, because Sirhan and his family had accepted $32,615 from Kaiser for material in the book. Sirhan is on death row after being convicted of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan said in a Superior Court lawsuit that information in the book would hurt appeal of his death sentence. But Schauer said there is no proof that the data is "not already in the public domain."

Fugitive Nabbed

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — James John Brynes, 42, one of the FBI's ten most wanted fugitives, is in custody in his native Los Angeles after his arrest here by FBI agents who described him as a saxophone-playing escape artist.

Byrnes, said agents, offered no resistance Friday night when he was apprehended on a Huntington Beach street. They said he was armed with a two-shot Derringer pistol.

He had been sought on federal charges of kidnaping, interstate transportation of a stolen aircraft, interstate transportation of a stolen car and interstate transportation of a firearm.

Jet Claimed U.S.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian President Nuredin Atassi said today that an Israeli Phantom jet shot down in Syria April 2 actually belonged to the U.S. Navy.

He said this was "clearcut proof of America's active involvement in Israeli aggression" against Arab countries.

Syrian army spokesman had already said the plane carried U.S. Navy colors and markings and that information on its instruments was in English. The pilot and copilot, both Israelis, were captured.

Files Still Secret

BOSTON (AP) — With litigation pending over reproduction rights of the Mary Jo Kopechne inquest papers, Judge Wilfred J. Paquet has extended indefinitely his order keeping the records secret.

The Superior Court judge said Friday the order will remain in effect as long as any litigation remains undecided over rights to reproduce the inquest transcript and the judge's report on the inquiry into the drowning of Miss Kopechne last July in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car.

Sidney R. Lipman, a professional court stenographer who made the record of testimony in the closed inquest last January before District Court Judge James A. Boyle in Edgartown, claims that under Massachusetts court practices he alone has the right to make copies of the record.

Lipman has set a price of more than $800 a copy. Edward V. Keating, clerk of Suffolk Superior Court, had copies prepared at a cost of about $75 each.

Ammo Ship Sails

MANILA (AP) — The hijacked U.S. munitions ship Columbia Eagle has departed the Subic Bay U.S. Naval base after unloading its cargo, a Navy spokesman said today. He said he did not know the ship's destination but understood it was not the United States.

The freighter, commandeered by two crewmen while en route to Thailand and forced to Cambodia, arrived at Subic Monday after being held for three weeks by Cambodian authorities.

The hijackers have requested asylum in Cambodia.

Clash In Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese government police today lobbed tear gas into a crowd of about 100 students who marched on the National Assembly to protest the arrest of 20 students who go on trial next week for alleged pro-Communist activities.

The students dispersed as police moved among them with canisters and clubs during the noon hour in downtown Saigon. There were no arrests.

Cartoonist Hunted

WALL, N.J. (UPI) — Police said today they have received no response yet to their warrant for the arrest of cartoonist Jack O'Brien, the cartoonist who draws "Sad Sack". He is wanted in connection with raids that netted eight truckloads of pornographic material.

Five persons were arrested Friday in simultareous raids at a house owned by O'Brien and a printing shop here.

Campus Cooled

ALBURQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Demonstrators at the University of New Mexico were told to "play it cool" Friday after barricading a building in which a committee heard evidence against two students charged with heckling U.S. Sen. Strom Thrumond, R-S.C.

Officials agreed to open the hearing to the public after about 100 demonstrators blocked the doors of the building on the north side of the UNM campus with boards, paper and rocks.

"Play it cool and don't start anything," the head of the state police criminal division, Maj. Hoover Wimberly, told the dissidents.

The Wrong Akron

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — An Army DC3 landed at Akron Municipal Airport Friday night with 17 West Point skydivers aboard for an exhibition, but had to take off again.

The pilot thought he had landed in Akron, N.Y. He went to a pay phone at the airport, called New York and found he had been given the wrong flight instructions.

As one of the parachutists got back on the plane he was heard to mutter, "With this kind of navigation I'm glad I'm not on an Apollo flight."

Soviet Fleet Busy

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (UPI)—Soviet naval activity in the Pacific has recently increased sharply with the deployment of warships, submarines and auxiliary vessels, the U.S. Navy Pacific Fleet headquarters announced Friday.

The Navy said a sizeable Soviet naval task force is steaming south through the Philippine Sea.

"Another Soviet naval task force is southeast of Japan heading into the northern Philippine Sea," the statement said, "and a group of naval units from the Soviet Pacific fleet is deployed in the Indian Ocean."

Cycle Accident Puts Wrong Man In Jail

A 23-year-old Forest Knolls man has taken a friend's place in Marin County Jail because he made a phone call which he thought would get them both out of trouble.

Out of jail was Jose Roberto Sanchez, 33, of Bolinas. Into jail was Robert Forgrieve Berner of 21 Resaca Avenue, who was held for Santa Barbara authorities on suspicion of grand theft and burglary in the January theft of a motorcycle from a Santa Barbara home.

Sanchez was involved in an accident at 1:45 p.m. Thursday in Bolinas while driving the motorcycle he thought belonged to Berner, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Karen Jo Munson, 23, of 481 Mesa Road, Bolinas, a passenger on the motorcycle, suffered a fractured skull and chest injuries in the accident. She was reported in poor condition today in Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit.

Sanchez was treated at the hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises, and then booked into county jail when officers discovered the vehicle was stolen.

About 6 p.m., Berner went to the jail to bail out Sanchez. While waiting at the jail, he telephoned Mert L. Baarts, highway patrol auto theft investigator, and identified himself as Christopher Morris of Santa Barbara, the real owner of the stolen motorcycle.

He told Baarts that the motorcycle had been recovered about two months ago, but he had failed to report the recovery to the highway patrol.

Discrepancies in the story made Baarts suspicious and he telephoned Santa Barbara authorities who reported the motorcycle had never been found. Highway patrol officers went to the county jail and arrested Berner, who was still waiting to bail out Sanchez.

The innocent Sanchez was released, Baarts said.

away from the ceremony site. They made no resistance but raised their fists in a defiant gesture as they were led away. Nixon gave no indication of having seen them.

Aboard the Iwo Jima Friday night, the astronauts got their first good rest in a long time.

Astronauts Lovell and Swigert indicated at a shipboard dinner Friday night that they were not always sure of that safe return.

Swigert told ship's officers attending the dinner that the best part of the flight for him was getting out of the spacecraft and seeing this carrier waiting for them.

"At times," he said, "we thought we would never see it."

Swigert noted that this was his first space flight and said, "I don't know what space flights are where all systems work well. Actually, I thought this one was normal."

Lovell, a four-time space flight veteran, recalled that returning from space on Apollo 8, "I remembered how much we don't realize what we have on earth until we leave it."

"This time, looking back and feeling just that much farther out, I was not too sure where we would end," he said.

Haise, suffering from a mild infection, did not attend the dinner. He rested in his cabin.

Girl's Nightgown Catches Fire

An 8-year-old Inverness girl was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with second and third degree burns suffered when her nightgown caught fire at her home.

The hospital said Molly Fries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Fries of Park Avenue, has burns over 35 per cent of her body.

Details of the accident, which occurred yesterday, were not known.

Motorist Hurt On Richardson Bay Span

Roger C. Earl, 28, of 192 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, was treated for multiple cuts at Marin General Hospital last night after his car first hit the guard rail and was then struck by two other cars on Highway 101 at the Richardson Bay Bridge, the California Highway Patrol said.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. The other autos were driven by George E. Wurzburg, 61, of 48 Porto Bello, San Rafael, and Raymond L. Wilson, 26, of Sebastopol.

Marin City Suspect Held on Morals

Jerry Lee Page, 25, of 175 Drake Ave., Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of statuatory rape early today after sheriff's deputies reportedly found him in his car in Marin City with a 15-year-old girl.

Bail had not been set this morning. He is to appear for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Car Turns Over; Driver Is Injured

A 40-year-old Petaluma resident was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital after suffering a burised back and shoulder in a 11:30 p.m. auto accident yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol quoted motorist, William R. Mosher of 1405 Sierra Drive, as saying he was westbound on Highway 116 when his auto was forced off the road near Frates Road. Mosher's car overturned.

consideration after O'Shea balked.

Trustee Warren P. Fairbanks cast the dissenting vote. He said today he objected because the board awarded Horning an annual salary of $16,000, while a brochure inviting applications for the position had said the salary would be $12,000 to $14,000.

"I think we should have called for more applications on the basis of the new salary," Fairbanks said. "We might have entered into a whole new arena of candidates."

Horning will replace Clarence B. Larison, superintendent since June 1968, who resigned under fire from the board in December. Horning will assume his duties July 1.

A graduate of San Bernardino High School and San Bernardino Junior College, Horning attended the University of California at Los Angeles and received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of Redlands. He has done graduate work at the University of Southern California.

Horning was superintendent of the Terrace Union School District from 1955 to 1966, when the district was absorbed by the Colton district.

In his letter of application, Horning said he was leaving his $20,000-a-year post in Colton because he was "concerned with air pollution in Southern California." He said that he didn't want to take a salary cut but knew he would have to make some sacrifices.

Mrs. Reasoner said the trustees talked to Horning by telephone after last night's meeting and the educator said he and his wife and daughter would live in the school district. A son attends San Jose State College.

Horning will be given no definite teaching assignment, Mrs. Reasoner said, but he will take part in the teaching program.

Tanker Sinks After Explosion

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—The 11,500 ton Liberian tanker Silver Ocean exploded and sank 130 miles north east of Durban early today, killing at least three crewmen.

Ten others were listed as missing.

Twenty-seven crewmen were rescued by French, British, Indian and South African ships that battled heavy seas to aid the stricken vessel.

Survivors were taken aboard the Sa Nederberg (9,535 tons) belonging to the South African Marine Corp., and headed for Lourenco Marques in Mozambique.

Spelling Bee Date

The annual spelling bee for seventh and eighth grade students of Marin's parochial schools will be held April 24 at 8 p.m. The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in saying the event, sponsored by the San Rafael Council of the Knights of Columbus, would be held last night.

When Robert Frost graduated from high school in Lawrence, Mass., in 1892, he served as valedictorian with Elinor Miriam White, whom he married three years later.

U.S. Calls For Truck Talks; Teachers Idle

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the number of industrial workers idled as the result of wildcat strikes by truck drivers climbed past 100,000 the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has called for a meeting on Monday of Chicago carriers and union representatives.

Chicago is one of four metropolitan areas where the wildcat strikes by about 75,000 drivers are centered. Industrial layoffs in these areas and elsewhere have resulted from jammed warehouses and shortages of parts and materials.

Drivers in Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Louis and the Cleveland-Akron area of Ohio have struck to protest a proposed nationwide contract settlement which provides pay increases of $1.10 an hour over three years. The drivers now average $4 an hour.

The federal mediators reversed a hands-off policy announced three days ago regarding the Chicago dispute.

In other labor disputes, teachers continued to strike in Los Angeles and Minneapolis; and New York newspaper negotiations again appeared to be facing a newspaper shutdown.

However, a teacher strike in Muskogee, Okla., ended when teachers voted 274-50 to return to work Monday. They ended their week-long walkout when school board officials moved to submit a new desegregation plan to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

tion of our children." He said the district would welcome "any help from the group."

The employees—teachers, teacher's aides, clerical and custodial personnel—called in sick on Thursday. The absentees include most of the district's black employees.

It is believed the strikers are seeking reinstatement of a number of positions recently eliminated for next year by the board in an economy move. Also a factor in the strike is the board's decision to close Bayside in September and move its students to Central school.

Last week the board called a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the district office, 630 Nevada Street, to further discuss those decisions with the community and the staff.

power and bounced into the street. Dedina died instantly.

One witness, a Clover Dairy deliveryman, said, "I don't know what he was doing, but his engine was going full power and he came down like a shot," he said. The milkman said he had just completed a home delivery and looked up when he heard the plane's engine.

Several children who were playing in a backyard less than 30 yards from the plane's impact said they saw the aircraft hit the ground. All of them said the plane's engine was running.

"It was making a lot of noise coming down," said one youngster.

Dedina's wife, Sandra, daughter of Maurice Koch, a luggage manufacturer in Corte Madera, was called to the scene and identified her husband's body from a ring.

She said her husband had planned to pick up an instructor before the flight, but a witness at the airport said Dedina took off alone.

The aircraft, a new Belanca, was an unrecognizable mass of wreckage after it missed one home by less than a hundred feet and dug a large hole in the hillside. The plane was owned by Dedina.

The victim practiced law in San Francisco.

Sausalito Asks Plan For Tiffany Park

The Sausalito Recreation Commission has asked the firm of Environmental Planning and Design Associates to prepare a landscaping plan for the city's Tiffany Park, according to Normal Wholschlaeger, director of public works.

Wohlschlaeger said the commission, meeting Thursday, asked architect Roland Mays of the firm to attend the commission's May 21 meeting with preliminary sketches of plans for the park.

Cambodians Press Purge Of Vietnamese Civilians

TAKEO, Cambodia (UPI)—Cambodian police and soldiers conducted a house-to-house search Saturday for suspected Viet Cong in this provincial capital, already the site of another massacre of Vietnamese civilians.

They said they were looking for Communists but most Cambodian military men freely admitted they consider all Vietnamese to be Viet Cong.

At least 100 Vietnamese civilians were killed and about 20 others wounded in Takeo, 40 miles south of Phnom Penh, Thursday night inside a school complex.

The death count of 100 was confirmed by soldiers. One of them said, "We shot them because they were Viet Cong."

Cambodian military officials disclosed that an army colonel on the staff of the province governor was relieved following the slayings.

Military officials said, as they did following a massacre at Prasaut a week earlier, the Vietnamese civilians were killed in a "cross fire" during a Viet Cong attack. There was no evidence of an attack on Takeo Thursday.

Among the other military commanders at Takeo is Lt. Col. Hin Nim, who was in charge of the soldiers involved in the Prasaut incident in which at least 90 civilians were killed. He was a major at the time but promoted and sent here after the massacre.

At least two of the Takeo wounded died Friday night. The remaining wounded, about 15, were taken to a government dispensary only 100 yards from the scene of the slayings.

They received first aid treatment which hardly seemed adequate for some of the wounds. One man had been shot through the left eye, and the bullet apparently remained in his head. He lay writhing on the steps outside the dispensary, and it appeared unlikely he would live much longer.

About 30 other survivors who were not wounded in the gunfire were taken to a nearby police station where they were held under arrest. Newsmen were not allowed to see them and were given no indication what would be done with the survivors.

Ly Van Phat, 50, wounded in the chest, said he was arrested last Tuesday between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. while at his home across from the central market in downtown Takeo.

Phat, a cloth merchant, said he was asleep with his wife and five children when the soldiers came to his home. He and his 19-year-old son were arrested. His wife and four daughters were allowed to remain in their home. Phat has not seen them since and has given up hope of seeing them again.

Phat's son also was wounded in the massacre but was among a half a dozen of the more fortunate victims who were carried by newsmen to Phnom Penh hospitals for treatment. It was more than 24 hours before first aid was given to those who remained in Takeo.

Phat said at no time during his detention was he told why he was arrested. But other Vietnamese men in the grounds said Cambodian soldiers accused them of being Viet Cong. All denied the accusation.

Phat, a native of Takeo, said he felt certain he would be killed if he remained much longer. He asked newsmen how it would be possible for him to get to Saigon.

Berkeley Lull As Officials Figure Costs

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Damage to University of California property is estimated at $18,000 after three days of violence on and around the campus.

For the third straight day, antiwar demonstrators sirmished repeatedly Friday with police.

Twenty-two arrests were made Friday bringing to 80 the three-day total by 200 campus police, highway patrolmen and officers from 20 surrounding cities.

Police said they were prepared for perhaps more trouble Sunday, when attorney William Kunstler and Jerry Rubin, a "Chicago 7" defendant had been scheduled to speak in the Greek Theater on the campus.

Permission for the talks was withdrawn by university officials after Chancellor Roger W. Heyns declared a state of emergency.

Viet Troops Operating In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces smashed two North Vietnamese and Viet Cong base camps inside Cambodia this week, killed 450 enemy and seized huge munitions stockpiles, informed sources said today.

The two operations were reported in a communique by South Vietnamese headquarters but were placed just on the Vietnamese side of the border, obviously because of the political implications.

Elsewhere, the siege of Dak Seang Special forces camp moved into its 18th day with only sporadic mortar fire when a helicopter landed or anyone stayed above ground too long. (See photo, page 2.)

A visit by reporters earlier this week to the Highway 1 border crossing disclosed that one of the operations was in fact inside Cambodia. Highly placed sources confirmed this and also confirmed the second operation also was across the border.

There was no evidence of any American involvement except the use of U.S. infantrymen as blocking forces on the Vietnamese side of the border.

South Vietnamese losses were reported as 13 troops killed and 104 wounded.

The communique from South Vietnamese headquarters reported that both operations had been terminated. Witnesses from the border crossing 42 miles northwest of Saigon said South Vietnamese troops and armored personnel carriers were seen today crossing into South Vietnam.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Nguyen Van Thieu met for about 45 minutes, presumably to discuss the Cambodian situation and the South Vietnamese military forays across the border.

U.S. sources said South Vietnam "is fully aware" of the American stand on Cambodia — respect for its frontiers and souvereignty.

Other informed sources said South Vietnam was launching the operations inside Cambodia with the consent of local Cambodian authorities.

Witnesses reported that a token force of Cambodian troops —perhaps 100 men—fought with the more than 3,000 South Vietnamese troops in one of the operations near the Cambodian village of Bavet.

Mill Valley Youth Denies Marijuana

Russel Michael Guidi, 22, of 2 Oak Street, Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing marijuana. A preliminary hearing was set for May 19.

Guidi was arrested April 9 after Mill Valley police noticed him acting suspiciously near a parked car on Miller Avenue. The officers said they found three sticks of hashish under the front seat of the car.

Snipers Slay Youth In New Isla Vista Woes

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—Sheriff's officers maintained a light patrol in the Isla Vista area near the University of California campus Saturday after a night of violence that took the life of a 22-year-old student.

A county sheriff's office spokesman said things were "real quiet" and the department was using only its own forces in the area, although they were prepared to send in more men if a situation arose.

Police and several snipers exchanged gunfire during the night, after the shooting of UCSB senior Kevin Moran as he emerged from the window of the embattled Bank of America.

Moran and several other students had just put out a fire in the bank caused by a Molotov cocktail and a group of about 500 dissidents stoned them as they climbed through a broken window.

The shooting started a manhunt that included the exchange of gunfire between officers and snipers who were "firing from behind buildings, rooftops, trees and behind cars," as a sheriff's spokesman put it.

The rampaging students began to roam the area about 10 p.m. Friday despite a dawn to dusk curfew imposed after the rioting erupted late Thursday.

Breaking windows and setting small fires as they went, the groups finally converged on the temporary bank office which replaced the one burned out in February. Moran and other students followed the rioters putting out fires until the shooting occurred.

Two old cars which deputies described as junk yard ressurections were rolled onto the streets and set afire. A leather shop near the bank was also set ablaze, but damage was minor.

Youth Declared Narcotics Addict

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday committed Mathew Michael Letsos, 19, of Fairfax, to the California Rehabilitation Center for treatment for narcotics addiction.

Doctors had earlier testified that the youth, who was convicted in December of selling heroin, was an addict.

He is the brother of James Michael Letsos, 21, who was found dead in his Sausalito apartment Sept. 10. An autopsy showed that he died of drowning in a shower where he had been placed by roommates after becoming unconscious from heroin.

HELEN HELP US!

Grandmother Now Wants To Take Over The Child She 'Paid For'

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I became pregnant but the boy and I did not get married. His parents wanted me to give the child away, so as to preserve their social status in the community. Their strong disapproval was one of the reasons we broke up. But they did help pay my hospital bills, and a little for support. My lawyer made them.

I kept my baby and love him dearly. Now his "illegitimate" grandmother wants to take over. I think she'd like to raise him and push me out, as she "paid for him." Does she have the right to take him away from me? — D.L.

DEAR D.:

Your baby belongs to you. When his grandmother prevented the marriage, she forfeited her rights to claim him as a grandson. If she causes trouble, consult your lawyer. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have graduated from high school, but know I could never make it through college. I have made some very foolish mistakes that hurt not only myself but my family.

My parents lost money learning I was not college material. They financed me after I had an unhappy love affair that ended disastrously. You can see they are reluctant now to hand out money for further training that might not take.

I've been told I'm no longer a child but must go out and make it on my own.

Why then, are they so upset when I want to join the Womans Army Corps? I can get any type of job training there — free. I would get salary, room, board, clothing allowance, and five years of good experience.

But my folks have heard bad things about the WACs. They feel I would ruin my reputation. What reputation? I've already made enough mistakes so that I'm not exactly lily-white.

Do you think I'm wrong in insisting that the WACs is what I want? — WHAT NEXT?

DEAR W.N.:

I think the WACs might be a fine opportunity for you. Good luck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Please help!

Our father doesn't work. It doesn't bother us too much in the daytime as we are at school, but when we come home and try to watch TV or just sit around, there he is, chewing on his gum.

This may not sound bothersome to you, but you should hear him. He'd scream us out of the house if we told him how noisy he was, but it's driving us crazy.

Maybe he'll read this if you print it and learn to chew silently. — KIDS WHO NEED EAR PLUGS

DEAR KIDS:

Let's hope all noisy gum chewers read this and realize that Pop, Crackle, Snap is for cereal, not gum. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

SEW SIMPLE

No Pattern Needed For Pleats

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

As I look at the new patterns, I find that many of them look just exactly like my patterns I used last year except there might be a large inverted pleat at the center front or a deep pleat at the two side front seams. Do I have to buy a new pattern just for this, or can I cut my own pleat?

MRS. L. S.

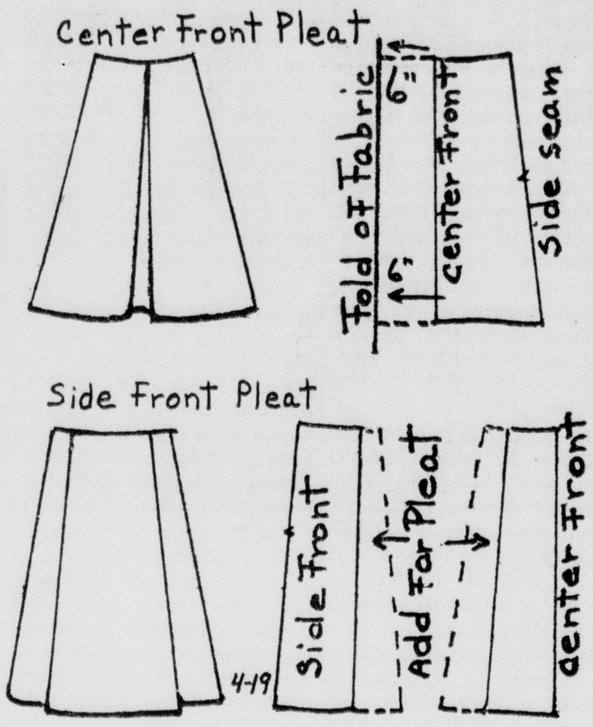
DEAR MRS. L. S.,

It is very simple to cut your own pleat. If it is for the center front of your skirt, place the center front of your pattern about 6 inches from the fold of your fabric. This will give you a 3 inch deep pleat. You may make this deeper if you wish. If you don't care for the entire width of the pleat to come all the way to the waist, it can be tapered somewhat by making a seam at the inside of the pleat and angling it to about 2 inches wide at the waist.

When making pleats for side front seams, you must add to the center front section and also the side front since this type of pleat will lie to one side.

MRS. JULIAN WIERZBA, Almond, Wis. is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion.

"When I recently tried covering buttons with a loosely woven fabric, I discovered an easy way to line the fabric so the metal wouldn't show through. Just take a small circle of iron-on sock patch, just enough to cover the top of the button only, press it on the back of your fabric and it works perfectly. This small circle covers the top and prevents the sides from being too bulky to work in smoothly."



DEAR EUNICE,

I want to start my summer sewing, but with the big news of the longer skirts coming back, I'm afraid to make any more dresses with short skirts as I can't afford to spend the money to sew and then not wear my clothes. You have such a sensible approach to fashion and home sewing, I would love to have your advice on this matter.

MRS. W. K. L

DEAR MRS. W. K. L.:

I can only give you my honest opinion which has been backed personally by several top designers I have talked to personally. Yes, of course they are coming back — but they won't be for everyone, they will simply be another new look.

Ask yourself this question, "Did you really ever wear a mini skirt 8 inches above your knees the way they were designed to be worn and did you ever wear a maxi coat for daytime wear?" If you have answered with a negative, the chances are that you won't wear the exaggerated midi length.

The time has come for all of us to stand in front of our mirrors and study our figures long and hard, then decide what length does the most for us. It's difficult when you see a beautiful young thing who weighs about 90 pounds photographed in a high fashion garment and then try to relate this same garment to ourselves, not only as to our figures, but our age and our way of life. Don't forget that there are many women who would wear a brown burlap sack if it would get their names and pictures in the paper.

I hope the garment industry doesn't back itself into a corner and out of business, as the manufacturers of ladies shoes in this country almost did when they tried to force the American women to wear the heavy, clog-type shoes so unattractive to the feet and ankles. The women who did buy them, found it safer and cheaper to buy the imports.

This could very well happen to our clothes unless we exercise our rights and demand to wear the clothes we feel best in. Personally, I feel the midi length is all right for evening and certainly for the young generation who make a game of fashion.

Let's not take it too seriously but remember that the most important thing is to look well in your clothes. If you look well, you will feel well and give everyone around you the feeling that you truly have the confidence to "do your own thing."

DEAR EUNICE,

I would like to make a vest out of rawhide but can't seem to locate it at our fabric shop. Where else should I look?

MISS SUE L. B.

DEAR SUE,

Usually only larger fabric shops will carry specialty items as this. Perhaps you have a leather company where you live; if not, watch for ads in quarterly pattern books that are available at most stores. They usually have a list of items that are hard to find and the addresses where you can find more information.

DEAR EUNICE,

I would love to wear one of the new pleated skirts but my hips won't allow the extra thickness and bulk that would be created. If I make a skirt with the pleats added at the lower section only, do I have to wear a long overblouse that ends where the pleats begin?

MRS. H.S.E.

DEAR MRS. H.S.E.,

If your hips are overly large, I feel it would emphasize them if you wear a tuck-in blouse, and to wear an overblouse that doesn't meet the pleats, you would be creating three different eye levels, again not too slenderizing

It is possible to make a dress to go with the jacket instead of a separate skirt. You could also use a lighter weight fabric for the dress, and it would still look perfectly with the jacket. Try to visualize the over-all picture and use your best judgment when it comes to the fabric and the pattern.

Women's Equality Long, Hard Battle

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The new surge of Woman Power shows in everything from bra burnings to office sit-ins to protest discrimination against the female of the species.

How effective are they? A noted woman sociologist looks on these "skirmishes" as far less effective than a long and thorough campaign. There will be no magical transformation to a state of sexual equality, says Dr. Alice S. Rossi, associate professor of sociology at Goucher College in Baltimore.

"I think we are in for a long, hard, cultural, legal and political battle before we reach any goal of sexual equality for black or white in this nation," says Dr. Rossi, an outspoken authority on the role of women in the world today.

"IT WILL SCARCELY be won by will-of-the-wisp quickie action skirmishes, but by the steady, persistent beat of the hearts and the work of the minds of at least another generation."

The writer-researcher-teacher points out that already there are many laws on the books to assure equality for women. The statutes are one thing, enforcement is another, although Dr. Rossi feels that "passage of an equal rights amendment to the constitution would cover a wide range of sex inequities in law and practice."

But the "mere existence" of the laws does not solve anything "unless and until women press for their implementation through concerted efforts to educate their sex and to develop test cases that will effect real changes in women's employment status.

"This is unglamorous hard work," she says.

Dr. Rossi sees in the women's movement in the 1970's an "intense masculine backlash to the demands we make in personal and professional life that are rooted not merely in the specific area of work or home management or parental responsibility, but are displacements from a deeper level, as a threat to men's self esteem or sense of sexual turf."

She continued, "Some feminists will say, fine and good; men have been our oppressors long enough, now they must give ground." But most women do not wish to live embattled and manless lives, and my impression is there are far more men in the younger generation than there were in my own who are eager to acquire a new life style, a gentler and more meaningful relationship with women... "But the male backlash is bound to come...

Leather Cleaner

Casual care — meaning suds and water — keeps casual suede shoes new-looking longer. During processing, the leather is impregnated with a chemical. This finish is then a part of the leather, resisting stains and keeping the leather soft and pliable. In fact, brushing and suds-scrubbing really renews these shoes.

"Positive Approaches to Discipline" will be the topic. Mrs. Harms comments, "The topic of discipline, as I see it, is closely bound to the topic of creativity and one helps to build the other. It is a positive, constructive approach to discipline that we use in nursery school and one which parents can learn to use in the home."

Among the many facets of Mrs. Harms' work were contributions to two research projects in the Child Study Center, one in teaching science concepts and the other in building competence through creative arts programs.

The latter project resulted in a file, "My Art Is Me," which was released in June, 1969, and has since won two national awards.

AUCTION WORK — Somewhere in the middle of a wide style range is this painting by Harriet Frances, which along with all the work at the College of Marin gallery, will be auctioned at the KQED auction in May.

ART REVIEW

Donated Art Must Be Fair Sample Of Work

By LAURA DEVENDORF

An artist, especially a prominent one, gets begged repeatedly each year to donate work to this or that auction for this or that worthy cause. Usually he won't give his newest show pieces or most marketable work. But the quality of what he does give is often directly proportionate to the exposure, publicity and rang of the event at which his work will be sold.

Therefore, when his work will be previewed in a good public gallery for two weeks and with luck, will then be selected for weekend previewing at the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts and finally will be auctioned off on color television before thousands of viewers—if he has any pride at all he can't afford to submit one of his closet cases or lesser dogs.

So much for the cynical psychology of auction donating.

But it does explain why Marin artists' work donated to the KQED auction and previewed through May 1 in the College of Marin gallery is pretty close to what the artists are doing or have done almost at their best.

Since they aren't sacrificing the only one of its kind they'll ever have, the artists donating prints are more apt to give their newest and their best.

John Ihle's torso in a circle and his shattered form of a Santa Barbara beach bird, Nelcy Tarics's soft toned abstract patterns, Eleanore Bender's "Poetics I," Dennis Beall's deadly looking bugs and Al Garvey's "What this country needs is a good 5-cent buffalo," are some of the best. And if you have a particularly good eye you might find Mary Tift's minute, old fashioned flowers.

Other than prints, Marty Stoelzel's soft overlapping landscape forms, Gwen Stone's orange shapes on white and Farhad Moezzi's huge steel column are among the works easily connected with their artists.

Most are less obviously so. Margie Horton has moved from places like Woolworth's to the outdoors with a landscape that still has the artist's bright-hued, multi-patterned signature. And frequently, there are paintings such as Harriet Frances's thick, loosely painted racing carts which, while it isn't in her more familiar neat mod style, is still interesting work.

Really, for a giveaway, this show is far from bad. There are plenty of gems to compensate for the few horrors and it will be interesting to see which bring the highest bids when they are finally on the block.

For now, it's a good opportunity to see what these things really look like before they change their personalities on most maladjusted TV sets.

Fairfax Undecided On Fate Of Ebents

No decision on continuing Fairfax's annual bicycle and walking races, threatened by the demise of the city's festival, was reached at a special meeting of the Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission last night, according to Joan Brown, commissioner.

After further study and receipt of additional information, the commission either will hold a special meeting on the matter or discuss it at its regular meeting May 5, Mrs. Brown said.

Bill Aids Police

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Friday unanimously psssed and sent to the Assembly a bill which makes it illegal for any person to forcibly resist questioning by a law enforcement officer.

The bill by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, extends the law against resisting arrest to persons being "stopped or detained for questioning."

Span Board Will Hear Citizens—If

Members of the public should be permitted to address the Golden Gate Bridge District board only with the unanimous consent of all directors, a district committee recommended yesterday.

In addition, members of the public should be allowed to address the board only if they so request in writing before the meeting, the rules and policy committee agreed in a unanimous vote.

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras, arguing for the new rule, said, "If there is some reason a director doesn't want someone (from the public) to speak, he should have that right." He noted this was the practice on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, "and it has worked very well."

The board now has no policy on the subject. The recommended rule, to be ratified by the full board next Friday, would not affect free public discussion before committees, directors said.

Director L. E. Castner of Sonoma County said the rule was necessary "so we're not here all day."

Director Dean M. Meyer of Mill Valley, not a member of the committee, argued unsuccessfully for a more flexible rule. "This problem can be overcome very easily if you're not afraid of it," Meyer said.

No one from the public attended the committee meeting.

The committee also recommended acceptance of a bank's offer to donate a $50 bond each month to a "bridge officer of the month." Meyer joked that fair award of the bond would be impossible "since there are 18 directors and only 12 months a year."

In other business, the committee recommended a policy to prohibit soliciting contributions from district employees, except for the United Crusade. Director Ben K. Lerer urged the policy, saying that "substantial funds have been contributed, and it's been an embarrassing situation."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said that political contributions had been solicited, and other directors noted that solicitations for contributions from employees had been made by directors.

Protest In Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — More than 100 persons invaded the University of Oregon Administration Building Friday afternoon to make demands in the wake of disturbances the two previous days, over ROTC and police issues.

They left when told that University President Robert Clark was out, then engaged Clark in an hour discussion outside the building when the president returned.

Dominican Presents A Bit Of Americana

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Interest in the performance last night in Angelico Hall of the two-act comic opera, "The Agreeable Surprise," centered largely around its historical value as an authentic early American opera.

Presented by the Dominican College Opera Workshop under the stage direction of Arthur Conrad and the American Music Research Center at the college with musical direction by Sister Mary Dominic, O.P., the opera was one of events of this week's Festival of the Performing Arts at the college.

Actually the "opera" was more a musicale—the first ever performed in St. Louis, Mo., in 1817, though it was composed in 1781 by Dr. Samuel Arnold—for there was more speaking than singing.

Only one voice, that of soprano Elizabeth Heffernan in the leading feminine role of Laura, was outstanding, though there were many fine bits of acting, especially by mezzo soprano Marjorie Broughton as the man-chasing widow, Mrs. Cheshire. In the first act, Miss Heffernan's beautifully floated, silvery high notes were a perfect match for an accompanying flute, and her portrayal in a mannered style of the innocent young girl was just right for the period.

Miss Broughton has a good voice, but the role required too much distortion in the acting to permit any musical distinction.

Tenor Jackson Austin as Laura's guardian, Sir Felix Friendly, who plans the whole "agreeable surprise," that of allowing her to marry the man she loves, sang and acted well the role of the jolly, scheming nobleman, and baritone Dan Jones as her handsome lover Eugene was better in the speaking parts than the singing.

Bass John Graulich as the Latin-spouting butler Lingo did his usual good job of characterization but muffled his singing in a very odd manner.

Baritone Scott Wright was satisfactory as Compton, Eugene's father, and soprano Alicia Snyder made a delightfully flouncey milkmaid, Cowslip. Others performing satisfactorily were Tom Farley as the lawyer Chicane, Robin Reid as Fringe, the maid, and Hugh Brashear as the doltish servant John. Don Walker was very convincing in his depiction of the aged servant Thomas.

One of the best parts of the production was the excellent colonial costuming. As in all productions staged by Conrad, the set effectively suggested the period and place with a minimum of detail and props.

Sister Mary Dominic conducted a small orchestra of flute, two violins, cello, bassoon and harpsichord. There was some insecure intonation but for the most part they played well, especially Judith Storss, who had the major accompanying work on the harpsichord.

Adding to the feeling of courtly manners and music of the era was a Haydn wind quintet played before the opera by flute, oboe, clarinet, horn and bassoon.

The opera will be repeated tonight at 8 o'clock. Because of unavoidable acoustical problems, anyone attending is advised to sit well toward the front of the auditorium in order to understand the words.

Bitter Fight Ends; Span Board Hires New Lawyer

A bitter fight to find a new attorney for the Golden Gate Bridge District ended yesterday with a vote behind closed doors — generally on political and parochial lines — to hire Thomas M. Jenkins, mayor of San Carlos in San Mateo County.

Jenkins, a law partner of Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, reportedly won solid support from all eight San Francisco directors present, all of whom are Democrats. Jenkins also is a Democrat.

Support from two other directors representing northern counties in the district apparently gave the edge to Jenkins over the only other candidate, San Rafael attorney Joseph E. Sheeks.

Sheeks, a resident of Belvedere, is one of Marin's three representatives on the board. He is a Republican.

Directors waited 45 minutes after the scheduled 10 a.m. start of the meeting for the arrival of an apparently key director, John E. Dearman of San Francisco. After he arrived, the 50-minute-long closed session began.

The only directors on the 18-member board absent were Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum and San Francisco Supervisor Robert Gonzales.

Jenkins will replace Jerome B. White, 87, also of San Francisco. White has been the attorney since 1957.

Board president William Moskovitz of San Francisco said that Jenkins' retainer will be set by the finance-auditing committee. White is paid $17,000 a year, plus additional fees for any special work. Last week, White was paid $11,500 for work on special litigation by the district.

Moskovitz said that only one vote was taken after the candidates were discussed, and that the vote was unanimous.

Moskovitz said that Jenkins was nominated by director Joseph P. Mazzola, a San Francisco labor leader.

Jenkins, 49, is on the board of governors of the State Bar of California, chairman of the San Mateo County Council of Mayors, a director of the American Association of Homes for the Aging, a trustee of the United Bay Area Crusade, a director of the San Francisco Association for Mental Health, and a member of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's national advisory committee on Medicare.

A native of Illinois, he graduated from Hastings College of Law at the University of California. He is a member of the San Francisco law firm of Hanson, Bridgett, Marcus and Jenkins.

Jenkins and his wife, Anne, have three children: Thomas Mark III, 20; Joanne, 19, and Dirk, 15.

Greek Culture To Hold Sway Over Marin Campus Session

The Greeks are coming back to College of Marin.

Not the saddle-shoe Greeks of Fraternity Row, but Fifth Century B.C. Greeks, as in Aeschylus.

With the aid of $8,000 in private financing, the College of Marin drama department has set up an encompassing project called "Athenaeum 70" in which a hundred students will immerse themselves in the Periclean age.

Students will study history, philosophy, literature, religion, and physical education in the Greek manner, as well as art, music and drama.

At summer's end they will produce Aeschylus's Oresteian trilogy, "Agamemnon," "The Libation Bearers" and "The Furies," the only complete Greek trilogy extant. The three one-hour plays will be presented together.

James Dunn, chairman of the drama department, said the challenge is to combine studying and learning with participating in stage production. The program was conceived by the drama faculty to reverse the trend of young people to "turn off" from education. "Students have never been apathetic about participating in plays," Dunn said.

All the 100 students will be involved in the productions, either on stage or in backstage units, and each will make a full report on the summer's activity at its end.

Enrollment will not be limited to students already enrolled and may include people from the community at large. The program will offer six units of credit.

The plan is for students to live as nearly as possible the life of Fifth Century B.C. Greece with seminars in open air spots such as the peak of Mount Tamalpais, the north campus site near Novato, or the campus mall. Guest lecturers will lead symposiums, workshops and classes, and professionals in Greek music, art, history and philosophy will be sought. Some lectures will be held in the evening and open to the public.

Studying the Greek heritage will teach the student what Western men evolved from, Dunn said. He said the Greek society was similar to ours. "The plays are all about revenge, justice, mercy, forgiveness, jealousy and hatred," he said. The chaos the Greeks experienced while creating their society is relevant to us today, he said.

Courses will not be limited to Greek methods, however, nor will the plays. The faculty is studying ways to include new techniques such as film and original music.

The College of Marin Drama Association, headed by Jiri A. Herrmann of Kentfield, was formed to raise the $8,000 needed for the program.

Instead of programs, playgoers will receive outlines giving the background, mythology, maps, and subjects the students have taken up during the summer.

Auditions for the program will be held April 25 in the college fine arts building. Persons interested in auditioning may call the drama department for applications.

RIGHT STREET, WRONG COUNTY

Motorists traveling on Novato Boulevard at Simmons Lane were perplexed—had Novato been annexed by Sonoma County? Certainly not, but the construction crew of Grover Wilson Excavating and Paving Contractor wouldn't say where the Sonoma County road sign had come from. The firm is widening and paving the boulevard in front of the Church of Christ.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Timing Of Girl's First Period Depends On Heredity, Glands

GIRLS of 16 who have not had their first menstrual period should consult a physician. This is not a hard-and-fast rule, but is suggested when the girl or her parents are concerned.

During adolescence, there are wide variations in growth patterns, and normal development of the reproductive organs may be a year or two behind the girl's actual age.

Most American girls have their first period (menarche) between the ages of 11 and 15.

THIS LATE STATUS SYMBOL of adolescence is preceded by other signs. The first sign, the development of the breast bud (thelarche), occurs from 9 to 11 years of age. It indicates that the pituitary-ovarian glandular axis is intact and beginning to function.

Shortly thereafter, there are changes in the birth canal followed by the appearance of secondary sex characteristics. At age 12, there may be a growth spurt indicating adrenal gland activity (adrenarche). All of these manifestations culminate in the occurrence of the first period.

WHEN THE GIRL goes through all of these preliminary stages and fails to menstruate, chances are the glands are in order but an anatomical defect exists. This is especially true if the girl is of normal stature and appearance.

A careful pelvic examination at this time is much more sensible and logical than receiving needless remedies to bring about the menses.

Genetic factors also play a role in that delayed menstruation may be a family trait. A prior or recent illness, such as infectious mononucleosis, may also delay the menarche.

The possibility of a glandular cause for amenorrhea appears likely when the preliminary stages (thelarche and adrenarche) are delayed or fail to occur.

IN THESE CIRCUMSTNCES, there may or may not be a disturbance in the development of the breasts, pubic hair, or sexual organs. Stature and height also suggest a glandular cause along with the presence or absence of hirsutism and genetic anomalies.

INWARD GOITER

G. R. writes: How does the doctor tell when an inward goiter is bothering the heart?

REPLY

Through examination, including X-rays of the neck and the upper chest. Inward goiters generally hide behind the upper part of the breastbone and cannot be felt, but X-rays disclose them. The effect on the heart of an inward goiter is no different from that of an ordinary goiter. Enlargement leads to pressure on the windpipe or the esophagus, leading to difficulty in breathing and swallowing.

CHOLESTEROL THEORY

K. G. writes: Will lowering a high cholesterol prevent a heart attack?

REPLY

This is a moot question and represents one of the main stumbling blocks to the theory that lowering blood cholesterol will clean out clogged arteries or reverse the arteriosclerotic process. Many physicians believe that the time has come to prove or disprove the dietary hypothesis that long term changes in the diet will lower the high incidence of premature coronary disease.

BUNIONS

F. E. writes: What causes bunions?

REPLY

Poorly fitting shoes and faulty walking habits are the chief causes. Our leaflet on bunions can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

Arraignment In Two-Fatal Crash

Lionel Raymond Hall, 25, of Cotati, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on two counts of manslaughter and one of felony drunken driving stemming from an accident Monday on Highway 101 in which two persons were killed.

Hall pleaded innocent and a preliminary hearing was set for May 12.

A California Highway Patrol officer said he chased Hall's car at speeds up to 90 miles an hour north of Novato before the auto struck a center divider and rolled over twice.

Dead in the accident were Hall's passengers, Lloyd W. Hickey, 33, and his wife, Oksan, 30, of Daly City.

Portland Teen-Ager Denies Two Charges

Ralph Leonard Human, 18, of Portland, Ore., pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of petty theft and possessing marijuana. A preliminary hearing was set for May 12.

The youth was arrested Tuesday at a Mill Valley market for allegedly taking a package of bologna. Police said he had a small amount of suspected hashish in his pocket.

Weed Suspects To Enter Pleas In San Francisco

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO—Two Marin men, arrested Wednesday on narcotics charges, were ordered to appear for plea in Department 13 of municipal court next Thursday.

Lee D. Malcolm, 26, of 1 Lincoln Road, Sausalito, and Henri P. Baylacq, 26, of 14 Hillside Drive, Mill Valley, are charged with offering to sell marijuana and possession of marijuana for sale. Malcolm is also charged with assaulting a policeman. Police said he tried to escape at the time of his arrest and was subdued.

Inspector Charles Wettstein of the San Francisco police narcotics detail said the two, along with a San Francisco man, attempted to sell 203 kilos, about 400 pounds, of marijuana to an undercover agent.

The marijuana would be worth about $500,000 on the open market, Wettstein said.

He said one of the men said that the shipment came from Mill Valley, but police were not sure exactly where.

OH, NO-MORE WOES!

The crumpled remains of a lunar lander mockup lie on the sidewalk of the Manned Space Center in Houston, Tex. It collapsed yesterday as workmen were dragging it to a new position to prepare it for a ceremonial visit by President Richard M. Nixon. (See story, page 1.) NASA officials said the plywood and metal full-scale model would be repaired in time for today's visit.

Gun Count Denied By 'James Bond' Juvenile Aide

A San Francisco juvenile officer, who had been living in Sausalito under the name of "James Bond," pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a machine gun.

A preliminary hearing on the felony count was set for May 19 for Kenneth Theodore Chelton, 41.

Chelton, listed in the telephone book under the name of the fictional spy hero, was charged after officers came to his apartment on March 27 in response to neighbors' complaints about noise.

They said they found Chelton badly beaten but later investigations have not turned up the assailants. Officers said they found the machine gun in his bedroom.

Single Guide Sought For Mental Health

county and the hospital district and their staffs.

2. As new programs are developed, a proportionate amount of new resources be allocated for program planning and evaluation.

3. Interagency councils on (A) alcohol and drug abuse, (B) mental illness and (C) mental retardation be encouraged to assume a more active and defined role in planning.

4. Proposed planning projects be coordinated to avoid duplications and contradictions among official organizations and voluntary groups.

5. Facilities should be set up to handle crisis cases involving alcoholism, drug abuse and suicide. Marin lacks facilities for housing chronic alcohol and drug abusers, the report said, and a detoxification center and half way houses are essential.

The Marin mental health community was severly split last year in a feud between its two top officials, Dr. Clyde G. Miller and Dr. Donald P. Wilson.

Miller was director of Marin Community Mental Health Services, responsible to the board of supervisors. He was fired and replaced by Dr. Leon R. Wanerman, who in turn was replaced by Dr. Donovan O. Cooke.

Wilson was and still is director of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital. He was hired by the hospital district and is responsible to the hospital board of directors.

Last September, when the supervisors fired Miller, they also tried to fire Wilson, but the hospital board refused. Following a series of closed meetings, the supervisors and the hospital board agreed to a new contract beginning July 1 this year.

Under the new agreement, the inpatient, outpatient and other services will remain under the director of the mental health center. The county director of mental health services (now Cooke) will restrict his work to administration, not programs. Also under the new agreement, the mental health center director would be a joint appointee of the supervisors and the hospital board.

No program change would be made until the county and the hospital district agreed to it. The Marin Mental Health Advisory Board would be the sounding board on any program changes.

The evaluation committee said a single organization could be set up in two different ways:

1. The county can assume total responsibility. County supervisors would appoint the director of community mental health services, who in turn would hire a program chief directly responsible to him. A contract between the county and the hospital district would be solely for the use of mental health center facilities.

2. The county could contract for all mental health, programs under the state Short-Doyle Act to be provided by the hospital district. The hospital district would hire the director to operate the program. Contracts for all other mental health services between Marin agencies and the county supervisors would be negotiated directly by the county administrator's office.

In either situation, the mental health advisory board would consult directly with, and would be staffed by, the director of the program. The advisory board would make recommendations to the board which employs the director.

Mother Joins Planning Staff

Mrs. Marjorie W. Macris of Mill Valley, a blonde mother of two, joined the Marin County Planning Department yesterday as a planner.

Mrs. Macris, whose monthly salary is $849, succeeds Margaret Porter, who resigned March 1.

Mrs. Macris previously worked 11 years in the City of Chicago's planning department. Since coming to California, she has worked for several Bay Area planning consultants.

Her husband is a planner in the San Francisco planning department.

Novatan Fined, Gets Probation On Pot

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court yesterday placed Charles Henry Doyle, 21, of Novato, on probation for one year and gave him a $100 suspended fine for possessing marijuana.

Doyle was arrested Feb. 14 in San Rafael where police said he had a plastic bag of pot.

SEA OF GRASS—AND WEEDS

Suburbanites in Lucas Valley take meticulous care of their lawns and landscaping. This botanist's delight, however, is a vacant lot at Mount Lassen Drive and Mount Darwin Court that isn't tended by anybody. A county employee said it's excess road right of way, and county practice is to let adjoining residents maintain or landscape such areas if they wish. The board of supervisors has set aside no funds for such maintenance, and the county only clears the areas if they become critical fire hazards. A disgruntled neighbor has made her disapproval known with the sign hanging on the fence.

Striking Against Children In The Public Schools

When teachers absent themselves from work en masse—whether or not they call it a strike—they generally claim it is "for the good of the schools" or "for the good of education."

Gov. Ronald Reagan called the Los Angeles teacher strike something else this week.

He said the teachers are "striking against the children and they ought to review their consciences and figure that out."

THE GOVERNOR is right. Whenever teachers stay off the job, it is the children who suffer. Either they go without schooling during the strike, or they are instructed by fill-in substitute teachers who—although they might be even more capable than those out on strike—are handicapped by not knowing what material has been covered in the classes, and by having no lesson plan.

Teacher strikes are strange things, anyhow. The teachers sign contracts specifying what they will be paid. They are aware, if they have been in the district the previous year, what working conditions to expect. Yet they walk out while the contracts they signed and the working conditions they accepted are still in effect.

It would seem that, if pay or conditions (or both) fall below acceptable standards, the teachers would refuse en masse to sign contracts (something that was done, incidentally, last year by teachers in Utah.). They could then force an improvement before the schools are staffed for a new academic year.

Having once accepted their contracts, the teachers are in poor position to decide that they made a mistake and call a walkout.

THE LOS ANGELES teachers walked out because they did not get improvements in pay, supplies and class sizes which were contingent on passage of a proposal to increase the tax rate ceiling. (The general purpose tax rate of the Los Angeles Unified School District is $2.65 per $100 assessed valuation; the total tax rate, as of last year, was $4.24.)

Governor Reagan had a comment on that, too .

"They were unable to present a case that could win the support of the people of their community, including the parents of the children going to school," he said. "The vote was three to one against the tax override they requested."

He added that he did not think striking would convince the voters.

IN SAUSALITO the other day, many Martin Luther King School teachers stayed off the job in what appeared to be a protest over staff reduction and decision to release a vice principal and a community worker.

They, too, were striking against the children. Many children were denied one or more days of schooling because these teachers stayed away—reporting "sick," a gambit that has been tried widely by teachers as a substitute for a formal strike.

THERE ARE OTHER ways, also, in which teachers sometimes strike against the children—without staying off the job.

When a mathematics class or a French class or a science class is passed over for a "teach-in" or "rally" or "special class"—as happened on Wednesday at San Rafael High School—students in those classes are the victims of the teachers who failed to show up to teach them their special subjects—or of those who conducted the "special class' which they attended in lieu of their regular class.

The school year is set up for a minimum of 175 days because that is deemed the amount necessary for teaching the material to be covered. When class periods are devoted to other purposes, the students are shortchanged.

SOMETIMES SCHOOL Administrators themselves "strike against the children" by setting up minimum school days—the least amount of class time for which the state will allot funds—so that teachers can attend institutes or other in-service training.

This is fine for the teachers. But it is not fine for the children. The classes must be telescoped into shorter periods, or some of them eliminated. Again, the children are shortchanged.

IT IS TIME that all of us realized that the purpose of the schools is to educate children. It is time we realized that any hours or days that are taken away from that purpose—no matter for what other purpose they may be used—defraud those very children.

Everyone operating a shop or factory knows that he cannot shut it down for a day, or part of a day, without reducing production. Everyone in retail trade knows that he cannot close his store for a day or part of a day without losing business. It seems strange that school teachers and administrators pretend they can close the school, or dismiss classes early, without impairing education of the children.

They, of all people, should know better.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Tiburon City Council for its decision Monday night to delay adoption of a downtown plan because two council members were to be replaced in Tuesday's election. "Lame duck" approval would have handicapped the plan.

BOUQUET to Wilber Dale Hawkins on his appointment as superintendent of Tamalpais High School District. We wish him well.

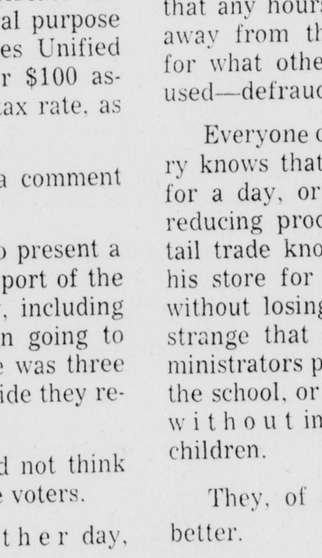
BOUQUETS to all those voters who turned out to ballot in city and school district elections Tuesday—and BRICKBATS to those who failed to fulfill their obligation to vote.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A couple who had recently announced their engagement barely escaped coming to a parting of the ways last weekend over where they would spend their honeymoon. She wanted to go to the Bahamas. He wanted her to get a job.

When an old producer, fond of good food, came to New York last, he demanded the name of a restaurant that served the best borscht soup in town. He was told of a place in the lower East side that was so fastidious in its preparations that an order had to be placed two days in advance. Happily, the producer ordered the borscht by phone. Just before he left for the restaurant, a friend warned him, "That's a tough neighborhood you're invading. Full of crooks. Better keep an eye on your hat and coat."



The producer turned up at his New York office the next morning in a very subdued mood. "How was the borscht last night?" he was asked. "I never had it," he grumbled. "It's your advice that's responsible! While I was watching my hat and coat, somebody stole my borscht!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

All Candidates Should Leave Jobs

Defeat April 14 of the Novato school tax increase and two incumbent city councilmen seems warning to office holders on the county payroll not to campaign as the taxpayers' expense. Paul C. Zucker already has taken a leave of absence without pay while campaigning for supervisor. Harold J. Truett, assistant public defender, has announced he will do likewise while campaigning for the Municipal Court vacancy. Will the two deputy district attorneys, Joshua Thomas and Ernest Zunino, also candidates, do likewise?

If either should be elected, our Municipal Court faces increased congestion and delays. Many defendants in criminal cases, especially dissidents, will be quick to file an "affidavit of prejudice" against a former prosecutor sitting as judge. Section 170.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure permits "any party or an attorney" to do so, and "no judge or court commissioner of any superior, municipal or justice court of the State of California shall try any civil or criminal action" when such an affidavit of prejudice is filed at least five days before trial date.

Lundborg Earns High Accolade

One man with an idea can help topple the nest of warhippies, to paraphrase the saying, and today's one man for congratulations has to be Louis R. Lundborg.

Compare the ephemeral "public relations" in Bank of America's full-page protest advertising, following its branch burning at Santa Barbara, with the integrity in a complete indictment of war-business-as-usual by the same bank's board chairman.

Mr. Lundborg, big enough obviously to bug the Pentagon and its satraps, rir his own thinking to go behind the burn-out of his branch for the real corrective. This time he is not protesting too much.

Unique as it is, man in high place makes senators look like mice.

Letter Not Needed If Record Clear

Your edition of April 15 contained a story in which you quote one of my opponents for the Republican nomination for state senator as having written a letter to the other candidates for the Republican nomination and myself in which he "urged them to observe the party's 11th commandment which bars Republicans from speaking ill of one another."

So that the record may be accurate, I have not mentioned any of my opponents by name or otherwise since this campaign began . . .

Incidentally, I have never received the letter which is referred to in the article.

As a member of the Republican State Central Committee for 16 years and campaign chairman for the Republican state senator for 20 years, I do not find it necessary to write a letter(?) to other candidates or to a newspaper in order to establish my Republican credentials.

LINES ON LIVING

Man Must Have Ritual; Let It Not Be Pagan

By RABBI HAIM KEMELMAN

As much as anything else, man is a ritualistic creature. Since man's primitive dawn, when he was dancing his cannibalistic rhythms in death circles, to our own time when he orbits the moon in space circles, ritual is conscious-stamped in human nature.

There are all kinds of rituals. There are the pagan rituals of a Moloch for which one's self and one's children may be sacrificed upon the altar of some hauntingly drifting incense. And there are the rituals of faith and humanity that ennoble and exalt the human person.

Man on earth depends upon a heaven above him. For he will either humble himself before a heaven he believes in, or he will create a hell of his own heaven and die for it. He cannot live without a God. And when he finds not one, he creates one, or several, of his own. It is this god-image worship which the Commandment decries.

IN MAN'S ARTS and sciences there can also be idol worship—a distortion of their highest ideal and nobility. The ominous shadow of the bomb and the pill are unassailable proof to this image-profanation. In a word: man is a worshipping ritualistic creature. If he worships not something higher and nobler than himself, he comes to worship only himself and his things.

Prophetic faith and psychological truth warn against this danger. We need to belong, to grow out of ourselves, never to shrivel in superstition. There are symbols of faith and rituals of life that help us reach into meanings and mysticism to fuse us with higher values and other people. They help us gain a higher sensitivity in the living person of ourselves and in an involvement with the lives of others, linking us to the immortal chain of humanity.

FOR ONLY MAN dies. Humanity never dies. And if we live our lives and perform those rituals of life that will add dignity and nobility to our span of years on earth, we will then register ourselves in the immortal ledger of the undying human spirit.

What we need are positive rituals of faith and of life. Not artificial practices and superstitions, but real deeds and thoughts of faith that will bring the true-life dimensions in all that we do, or think, or believe.

If you hear today of practitioners of high sensitivity training, who dance in the nude before the altar, you are reminded of Dagon's time, when the pagan cult prescribed super sensuousness for spiritual sensitivity. But the experiences of more than 3,000 years of human civilization should have taught us not to fall for the superstitious rituals of a darker age. We have not gone to the moon to retreat to the days of Eve's fig-leaf fashions and mode of life, to make of ritual a pagan rite.

HUMANISM, scientism, secularism, instantism, have not brought us salvation.

Sooner or later, we come to see that we can hatch a better living out of our sciences, modernity and affluence, but not the values of a richly rewarding life, unless we add the personal commitment of an authentic faith and enthralling ritual to our arts. It must not be said of our age that this generation which has walked on the moon in outer space, has permitted itself to see its children walk into a hell of needle's inner space of explosive kicks and misadventure, to join the brotherhood of miserable joy-riders and happiness-puffers.

High Stakes In Poker Game Where Nobody Shows His Hand

Vienna — Some 500 newspaper correspondents and at least 300 television commentators and technicians are here from all over the world to report on the strategic arms limitation talks. With the exception of the 10 Russian correspondents, in effect part of the official delegation from Moscow, the view of what may — or may not — be about to happen is as opaque as though seen through a thick London fog.

The prospect is for weeks of sparring as Washington and Moscow each seek to pry loose the other side's negotiating position. The mystery is deep and dark. There is even doubt as to whether either side has a fully formulated negotiating position. In this obscure poker game both sides may be playing down the openers, ready to react to any cards put face up on the table.

BEHIND THIS cautious sparring are two cautious men, neither of whom is really a free agent. One is Leonid I. Brezhnev, the 64-year-old general secretary of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union.

As nearly as a cautious Communist leader could, Brezhnev the other day put his country's economic troubles on the line. In a major speech, much of it carried on television, he spoke of the shortages in food and consumer goods that are reported to have stirred widespread discontent within the Soviet Union. He went so far as to talk about the failures of the bureaucracy and the need for more efficient management and technical innovation.

Without putting it in just that way, this cautious man was saying that the cost of the arms race is depriving the Russian people of the goods and services they have so long been promised. His position is curiously like that of the second cautious man sitting behind the players at the conference table in Vienna.

PRESIDENT NIXON and Brezhnev seem to be poles apart in almost every respect. Yet in their respective spheres they have come to positions of power conditioned in such a way that taking bold initiatives is difficult, if not impossible. Each has had to make compromises along the way. On both sides a powerful military bloc enforces caution and inveighs against taking any risk that might endanger what must seem in the objective view a wholly mythical security.

They are alike, too, in that each has the strongest possible motivation to get an agreement that would mean a pause and prevent a new and probably reversible escalation in the arms race. If the Kremlin faces serious economic problems, the Nixon administration in Washington can hardly conceal the depth of America's troubles, both economic and political.

Whatever the actual military superiority in missiles and submarines, the United States can hardly be said to be negotiating in Vienna from a position of strength. The troubles on the home front—the war in Vietnam, crime, organized violence and nihilism—are too great. While the defense budget has been cut by as much as $10 billion it still, at $70 billion, takes far too great a toll from the surplus that might go toward correcting the profound disorders disrupting life in America.

THAT IS the reason to hold out some hope for this beginning of a serious effort to go beyond mere appraisal of the vast stores of nuclear annihilation on each side of the divide. Plain, common sense would seem to dictate terms that each side could live with.

This would mean undeniably a risk—a risk, say, that a moratorium on deployment of the new many-headed missile, the MIRV, would be violated by the Russians. That risk must be weighed against the danger of a new round in the race and the accumulation of new and far more deadly weapons into an unforeseeable future. Surely, the military blocs in the Pentagon and the Kremlin cannot simply dismiss that risk.

No matter what the ultimate outcome, the side first to propose a bold course duly weighing the risks would win, in the view of this observer, a victory in public opinion around the world. It would be good to say that, as the ceremonial opening is staged while the cameras whir, such a move is in sight. But it would not be true.

ART BUCHWALD

Martyrdom Of Rory Edelweiss To Preserve Sacred Form 1040

WASHINGTON — The dismissal of Rory Edelweiss from the Internal Revenue Service has been upheld by Bureau 1040 as well as 1040A of the IRS and has been confirmed by Clark Mollenhoff, the White House assistant in charge of income tax returns.

Edelweiss has become a cause celebre in taxpayer circles because he tried to simplify the federal tax form, much to the horror of everyone in the Department of the Treasury.

His supervisor, Glenndenning Hindsight, said that the IRS was perfectly right to fire Edelweiss.

"HE WAS a troublemaker," Hindsight said, "and could have destroyed the entire tax-collection system in this country."

"What did Edelweiss try to do?"

"He tried to write a tax form that the average taxpayer could understand."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"Who knows what goes on in a mind like that? Some think he was working under too much pressure. Others say if he had been given a test when he was 6 years old, we would never have hired him.

"In any case, Edelweiss came to us eight months ago with a simple tax form which anyone could have filled out. He had eliminated references to forms 2440, 3903, 2106 and 2950SE, and such phrases as 'see tax rate schedule III on T-1 and tax table B on T-2'."

"WHAT DID you do?"

"We thought he was joking at first. But Edelweiss said he was dead serious. He had worked on the return for over a year and felt that the implementation of it could cut down the taxpayer's work to three hours."

"I hope you told Edelweiss where to get off," I said.

"As his immediate superior, I tried to talk sense into him. I told him that if we simplified the present federal tax form so people could understand it, they might decide not to pay their taxes. The real purpose of a complicated tax return form was to wear the taxpayer down, so by the time he finished making out the return, he was so exhausted he would be willing to pay whatever he had just to get the return out of his house."

"HE MUST HAVE seen the logic in that," I said.

"Edelweiss was adamant. He said under his system the tax forms were so simple that he could save the country the 1,700,210,000 man-hours of work which are now devoted to filling out the 1040 return.

"But I told Edelweiss that if God wanted the American people to have a simple tax return he would have created one for them. He wouldn't budge, so I have no choice but to turn him in to the authorities."

"They must have been upset when they heard Edelweiss was trying to make a tax return that anyone could understand."

"Absolutely furious. The IRS has a staff of 1,400 people who do nothing but complicate the income tax forms. Whenever they discover that an item is comprehensible, they immediately take it out and replace it with something so vague and confusing that no one will get it. When they heard one of their own was trying to simplify the life of the taxpayer, they considered it treachery of the first order."

"SO HE WAS fired?"

"We made an example of him. After what we did to Edelweiss, it's going to be a long time before anybody comes up with any bright ideas on how to save the taxpayer his sanity and time."

Holy Week Observances

Holy Week for the Eastern Orthodox Church will begin tomorrow. The Marin church will begin the week's events with services at 10:15 a.m. at Montgomery Chapel of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo with Rev. George Bogdanos as celebrant.

Holy Wednesday and Thursday services will be at 7:30 p.m., as will the Epitafion service on Holy Friday. Women of the church will decorate the Epitafion or Tomb of Christ on Friday morning at the chapel.

Service of the Resurrection or Anastasis will begin at 11 p.m. next Saturday. The traditional red Easter egg will be distributed to the congregation at the close of the service.

Psaltis or chanters for Holy Week will be William Poulopoulos and Jerome Caran. The choir, under the direction of Caran, will sing on Holy Friday and Saturday.

On the Feastday of St. Thomas, May 39, services will be moved up to 10 a.m. so the congregation can assemble at the Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax for its "Grecian Holiday in Marin" picnic-fair.

The picnic-fair is the major fund-raiser for the newly organized congregation. It will feature food, refreshments, pastry and imported gift sale and games. Entertaining will be the Trio Orfeo bouzoukia from San Francisco's and the Balkanke dancers, who will perform and offer free dancing lessons.

The general public is cordially invited to enjoy this typical Greek holiday celebration.

The Eastern Orthodox church celebrates Easter at a different time that Western churches do three out of four years because of one variant in setting the date.

While both divisions hold Easter the first Sunday after the first full moon following the spring equinox, the Eastern church adds the stipulation that it must also fall after Passover.

A Theological Link Made To Environment

NEW YORK (AP) — "Earth Mother," the ancient mystery religions called it. St. Francis of Assisi expressed man's identity with nature in terms such as "Brother Ant" and "Sister Water." The late theologian-missionary Albert Schweitzer summed up the same attitude in the phrase, "reverence for life."

Such recurring intimations of the interrelationship of all creation, great and small, and humanity's stake in caring for it, is moving to the forefront of theology today in the awakened anxiety about environmental abuse.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," said the Psalms, adding that so are the mountains, stars, seas, rivers and "every beast of the field . . . the cattle on a thousand hills . . . all the birds of the air . . . and all that moves in the field."

DIVINE PROPERTY

It is divine property that men occupy, not theirs, and not to be ravaged by their tenancy of it, religious scholars are emphasizing increasingly, bolstering the modern church accent on God's involvement in the material affairs of this world.

"Eco-theology," it has been called, a theology of ecology, of land, of conservation, of environment, of nature, an "ecological ethics." A headline in the Jesuit weekly, America, read: "Ecology—the new religion?"

For "too long Christians have interpreted the Genesis command to exercise dominion over the earth as a mandate to conquer and exploit nature," says Dr. Richard A. Baer Jr., a New Testament scholar of Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., now serving on a new Environmental Stewardship Team of the National Council of Churches.

He adds that the ulitarian attitude, coupled with modern technological capabilities and America's constant urge to boost industrial production, threaten the survival of life on the planet.

"Failure to fulfill our obligations as faithful trustees of creation will inevitably bring God's judgment upon us," he says.

"BLASPHEMOUS"

Rev. Dr. Joseph Sittler, of the University of Chicago Divinity School, who has long stressed the unity of the divine with the material cosmos, says the present despoiling of land, air and water not only is idiotic, "it is blasphemous."

"We have fashioned a society and industrial order at a cost and the bill is now due and payable," he says.

Churches across the country were urged by the National Council to observe a special "Environmental Sunday" this weekend.

Astrophysicist To Be Guest Lecturer

Dr. Donald W. Aitken, an astrophysicist and environmentalist, will speak on "Our Paradoxical Views of Nature," at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere.

Currently doing research for the National Science Foundation, Aitken will be the second speaker in the church's ecological series, "The Care of the Earth."

BARE FEET TROUPE GETS APPROVAL FROM BISHOP

LONDON, (London Express) — Visitors to Southwark Anglican Cathedral got a shock recently. A dozen shapely girls in ballet tights and with bare feet were dancing during the Sunday Holy Communion service.

Dr. John Robinson, former bishop of Woolwich, in golden chasuble and mitre, looked on approvingly from his place in the sanctuary.

The dancing girls came in as the large congregation rose for Sydney's Carter's modern hymn, "Lords of the Dance." At the words, "They cut me down and I leapt up high," one girl who had held a crucifixion pose jumped high in the air.

At the start, Rev. Roger Boyle, the succentor, "warmed up" the congregation by saying: "Just let yourselves go today."

He said that one hymn, "Shake and Shiver in the Light, My Love," also by Carter, was having its world premier. "We practiced it for four hours on Friday, behind the locked doors of the cathedral.

The gospel reading, traditionally reserved for a priest, was done by John Hudson, a teacher.

The sermon was a two-way business by Carter and another composer, Donald Swann. Carter said, "Religion and dancing are not opposites although some dancing is awful as some Christianity is awful," and, he added: "These dancers are younger and better looking than any of the theologians."

Retiring Professor Has A Full Calendar

Retirement will be no rest period for Dr. J. Winston Pearce, professor of preaching at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Strawberry.

Pearce, who recently announced his retirment from the post he has held since 1961, has charted a busy year at the close of the spring semester.

During the week of May 17, he will lead the State Pastor's Conference in Arkansas and the following week will visit in Nevada, Mo., where he will be honored with a church homecoming. The Nevada First Baptist Church was his first assignment.

Before returning to the seminary for a short period, Pearce and his wife will attend the Southern Baptist Convention annual meeting in Denver on June 1-5

On Aug. 3, he will deliver the 12th anniversary sermon at the First Baptist Church in Durham, N.C.

His biggest role in the first year of retirement will come late in August when he and his wife will leave for Switzerland where Pearce will serve as professor of preaching at the Baptist Seminary in Ruschlikon.

The Problem Growing On Departures

LONDON (AP) — The number of Roman Catholic priests leaving the ministry is posing a pastoral problem for bishops and religious superiors, says a confidential report circulated to Church leaders all over the world.

The report, from an international Church research center in Western Europe, says the attitude of the Catholic community is far from unanimous in the way it handles the issue.

"According to region, it can still today very from unqualified condemnation to acquiescence, passing through all the stages of understanding," the report said.

NO OPEN SUBJECT

"The subject is still, in the majority of countries, one of those not discussed except by hints on the level of the hierarchies. The result is that the most fantastic information is circulating among ecclesiastics and laymen, all tending, in our experience, in the direction of a grave exaggeration of the number of leavers."

The report suggested it might be better to publish the true figures than to allow "false rumors, generally exaggerated and alarmist" to spread without the possibility of denial.

Only in Holland have complete figures been published. Out of the country's 8,000 priests, 30 left the ministry in 1965, 60 in 1966, 115 in 1967, and 400 in the two years since. At the same time the number of priests dying has exceeded the number of new priests ordained. The present rate of 145 ordinands a year is running at about half what it was 10 years ago.

MAJOR DECISION

The Dutch Pastoral Council has voted overwhelmingly that permanent celibacy should no longer be a condition of ordination.

Bishops supported the council, but Pope Paul VI has ruled that to abandon celibacy would mean "a lowering of the authentic concept of the priesthood."

The Environment Will Be Theme Of Church Rite

The growing concern over environment will be the theme tomorrow at the 10 a.m. service at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church.

Worshippers will be greeted with a banner calling attention to the "good earth as God's gift," according to Rev. John O. Najarian, pastor.

Replacing the sermon will be a choral reading, "Water, Water, Everywhere, and Man Without a Drink."

Displaying materials in the church's patio following the service will be the Marin Ecology Center, Sierra Club, Palnned Parenthood and Zero Population Growth.

Lutherans Urged To Restudy Confirmation

NEW YORK (LC) — America's three major Lutheran church bodies are being called upon to adopt a new and broader concept of confirmation that would radically change practices followed for centuries.

In a marked departure from tradition, changes are recommended that call for earlier communion and later confirmation of pupils in parish education of the American Lutheran Church, Lutheran Church in America, and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Together, they total nine million members.

Under the proposed concept, confirmation would encompass the entire period from infant baptism to mid-adolescence, introducing first communion in grade five at 10-11 years of age, and concluding in grade ten when pupils are 15-16 years old.

Since the Reformation in the 16th Century, many protestant denominations, including in grade ten when pupils are 15-16 years old.

Since the Reformation in the 16th Century, many protestant denominations, including Lutherans, have withheld eligibility for first communion until the end of confirmation, usually in grades eight or nine at 13-14 years of age.

Drafted by a Joint Commission on the Theology and Practice of Confirmation, the copyrighted report, on a study initiated six years ago, has been submitted to the presidents of the three lutheran bodies for consideration by their upcoming conventions.

The first scheduled to consider and act on the report is the LCA, which will meet in biennial session at Minneapolis, June 25-July 1.

Next will be the ALC, whose fifth biennial convention is scheduled in San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 21-27. The LC-MS, whose last convention was held less than a year ago, will meet in Milwaukee in July 1971.

The commission stressed that "the church should become more keenly aware of the fact that all of the pastoral as well as the educational experiences throughout childhood are confirmation ministry."

On the subject of pastoral ministry, the report explained that "it is a style of ministry that calls for greater emphasis on the entire congregation's pastoral care of the child."

Bishops Set Major Talks On Attitudes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — More than 200 Roman Catholic bishops will meet here next Tuesday through Thursday for discussions of moderinization of the church.

They will consider a proposed statement, entitled "Christians in Our Times," dealing with attitudes Catholics should have toward current problems.

The statement, drafted by a committee headed by Bishop Bernard J. Flanagan, Worcester, Mass., offers assurances of church renewal.

Also on the agenda is the question of Catholic membership in the National Council of Churches and a proposal to open portions of future meetings to the press.

Another proposal would create a Coalition for Social and Economic Development which would educate Catholics concerning problems of foreign and domestic poverty.

The gathering will be for semiannual meetings of the National Conference of Bishops and the United States Catholic Conference.

The Giants' Newest Hero Majored In Baseball

CINCINNATI — Alan Gallagher is as Irish as his name and like a good Irishman he has a sense of humor. Gallagher wasn't born a bog trotter in the old sod across the sea. But his ancestors were and he inherited his sense of humor from them.

Gallagher is a native San Franciscan, as Candlestick Park fans know only too well after all the copy written about him during the first week of the 1970 baseball campaign when he became the early season rookie sensation of the National League.

The columns of copy about Gallagher recalling how he prepped for big time baseball at Mission High and later Santa Clara University was heady stuff for the first local boy to play for the San Francisco Giants.

Jesuits Insist On Books, Too

"I picked up a little book learning at both places," said the 24-year-old Irishman, emphasizing the word little. "Even though baseball was my major at Santa Clara, the good Jesuits insisted on qualifying with the books, too. They have an insistent way about such things. But it didn't interfere with my major."

Naturally, Gallagher was delighted with his .500 (15-for-30) batting average after his first seven games against major league pitching. But what concerned him was an erroneous boxscore reflection on his third base glove.

In Atlanta, first stop of the Giants on their present road trip, Gallagher bought both morning and afternoon newspapers, the Constitution and the Journal. Like every major league baseball player before him, the rookie immediately flipped the pages to the sports sections.

A Spectacular Double Header

The press association stories of last Sunday's doubleheader confirmed that Gallagher indeed did go 7-for-9 but that wasn't enough to prevent the Cincinnati Reds from sending the Giants into a double dip.

Then, still like every major league player before him, Gallagher studied the agate type boxscores. The Giants made four errors in the first game of the doubleheader. Gallagher's name was among those listed in the error department.

"Are these boxscores official?" he asked one of the baseball writers traveling with the Giants.

When he was assured they weren't and that he hadn't been charged with any error in the official boxscores, Gallagher said:

Will Have To Depend On Glove

"That's a relief because I'll have to depend on my glove after the pitchers whittle my bat down to size."

Did Gallagher know that pitchers throughout the league have a way of passing along information to each other about hot early season hitters?

"Somebody told me they have their own union in compiling books on hitters," he said. "Obviously, the one on me hasn't been completed yet. When it is I'll have to rely on my glove. That's why I asked whether those boxscores were official.

Errors Bad In Anything

"I don't want any errors in my record. They're bad."

But surely he realized he already had one error, an unnecessarily hard throw in the fifth game of the season that even Willie McCovey, a first base artist in scooping short hops, couldn't handle.

"That," said Gallagher, "was a beneficial error. I learned something from it. If you yearn from an error, it's good."

Redwood Wins Key Marin Battle

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Undefeated Redwood High School Giants scored twice in the first inning yesterday and held on to edge previously unbeaten San Marin of Novato, 2-1, and take over first place in the Marin County Athletic League baseball race.

San Marin, which had been tied with the Giants of Larkspur for the top spot, fell into a second place tie at 3-1 won-lost with Novato and Terra Linda, both winners yesterday. Novato demolished Tamalpais, 17-1, and Terra Linda clipped Drake in nine innings, 5-4.

In the day's other games, the San Rafael Bulldogs rode the shutout pitching of Charley Gray to their first league victory this season, 4-0 over Marin Catholic.

San Marin's Steve Francis, who pitched no - hit ball the final six innings, allowed back to back doubles by Pete Cooney and Frank Pomilia and a single by Tom Wickert that gave Redwood (4-0) two runs in the bottom of the first.

The Mustangs got their tally in the third on a single by Ken Gnoss and Jack Burnam's double.

Redwood's Roger Smith, who took over the pitching for Jeff Ned in the second inning when the latter sprained an ankle coming off the mound, received credit for the victory.

Novato pounded Tamalpais for 17 hits, including home runs by Kim Kirwin and Bill Busher, and two doubles by Randy Jackson, as the Hornets ran their league won-lost record to 3 and 1. Busher, only a sophomore, had three hits to raise his average to .643.

Catcher Rick Payne stroked a line drive into the open spaces to score Bob Daniele with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth as Terra Linda handed the Drake Pirates their fourth straight loss. Larry Kerr had been walked intentionally to load the base after Daniele and Dewey Forry walked and moved up on Jim Lazzarini's sacrifice.

Daniele had a perfect afternoon with three hits in three trips to the plate.

San Rafael's Dirk Gansloser tripled in Bruce Maglione in the top of the seventh with the only earned run of the game as the Bulldogs handed Marin Catholic its fourth loss without a win. Gray spun a five hitter to pick up the win.

Giants Live. . . And Die. . . By Long Ball

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati refused to knuckle under to San Francisco's strong hitting and put on a power display of its own Friday night.

"The kids never quit," Reds Manager Sparky Anderson said. "They're a great bunch to manage and they just keep on fighting."

The Reds used five homers, including a solo shot by Hal McRae and a three-run blast by Tony Perez in the ninth inning, to rally for an 8-5 victory over three Giants.

"I've been looking at a lot of long balls," San Francisco Manager Clyde King said after the game in which the Giants registered one homer–by Willie McCovey. "Sixteen balls have been hit out in the last three games."

In two previous games with Houston, the Giants clouted a total of five homers and the Astros chalked up five also as the Astros won 7-6 Wednesday night and San Francisco 11-9 Thursday night.

The victory for Cincinnati was its fourth straight and upped the team's West division leading mark to 10-3. The homers give the Reds 18 for the season and their pace is slightly ahead of that the 1956 Reds and the 1947 New York Giants averaged in tying for the National League single season team home run mark of 221.

ij Sports

THIRD SECTION Saturday, April 18, 1970 21

The Reds were trailing 5-4 entering their half of the ninth after McCovey had put the Giants ahead in the top half with his fourth homer in as many games.

McRae, pinchhitting, led off for Cincinnati and crashed his first major league homer. Then Pete Rose singled and Bobby Tolan was walked intentionally after a sacrifice. The stage was set for Perez.

"I wasn't trying for a homer," said Perez who has five homers this season. "I was just trying to meet the ball.

"We're never down. We get behind one run and say we got to get two. Then we get three or four."

THREE RALLIES

The Reds trailed three times on the night and came back all three times.

The Giants took a 1-0 margin in the first but John Bench and Lee May slugged successive homers in the fourth to forge Cincinnati into a 2-1 lead.

The Giants erupted for three runs in the fifth inning in a rally ignited by hot-hitting Alan Gallagher and Ken Henderson who each rapped two hits in four at bats. But Cincinnati came back to tie the game 4-4 in the seventh on a two-run poke by Rose, his first homer of the year.

Tony Cloninger spelled starter Gary Nolan in the three-run fifth and held the Giants scoreless in 2 1-3 innings. Wayne Granger pitched the ninth.

Cloninger's showing prompted Anderson to say that "He is back. He is throwing the ball as well as he ever has."

The Reds and Giants were to tangle here this afternoon.

Pro Cage Merger Delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Merger negotiations between the rival National and American Basketball associations have been temporarily halted by a federal court order.

Judge Lloyd F. MacMahon of U.S. District Court issued a temporary restraining order Friday, pending a hearing May 1.

He acted on a request by attorneys for the 14 player representatives of NBA teams who had filed an antitrust suit Thursday in an effort to block the proposed merger.

Judge MacMahon, in his temporary stay order, ruled that the Sherman Antitrust Act "applies to sports other than baseball in the same way it applies to other commercial enterprises engaged in interstate commerce."

"Patently, merger or other combination of the NBA and the ABA will eliminate one of two competitors and leave only one surviving major professional basketball league," Judge MacMahon continued. "Such a merger raises serious questions as to its legality . . ."

Noting that some of the NBA players have already signed contracts to play in the ABA in future seasons, the judge said that athletes "now free to negotiate for future contracts with either of the rivals is eliminated by merger or other combination.

"When we consider that youth passes away and consequently basketball players have limited professional careers, the threat of immediate and irreparable injury to the plaintiffs seems clear enough."

A's Get The Early Jump This Time In 'Psycho Series' With Minnesota

OAKLAND (AP) — When Catfish Hunter gets runs, he is as good as any pitcher in the American League.

Hunter got all the runs he needed Friday night as the Oakland A's won the opened of the "psychological saries" with the Minnesota Twins 5-2.

"If we keep on hitting, we can beat any team in the league," Hunter said. "When Bob Johnson hits a homer, I know I'm going to win."

Johnson and catcher Dave Duncan each homered for the A's off Minnesota starter and loser Jim Kaat. Johnson's homer was only his third in the last three years.

Hunter struck out nine and walked only two in pitching a five-hitter for his second victory of the season. In his first two starts, the A's got him only two runs.

Al Downing, 1-0, was scheduled to start for the A's today against Louis Tiant, 0-0, of Minnesota.

Catfish got off to a shaky start Friday when Tony Oliva hit a two-run homer in the first inning, but then settled down to blank the Twins the rest of the way.

The victory was important from a psychological standpoint, because last season Minnesota established quick superiority over the A's early in the season and it lasted until they had won the American League West pennant.

"Coming back the way we did gave us a big lift," Oakland outfielder Rick Monday said. "Last season, we didn't do that against Minnesota."

The A's collected 13 hits Friday night, including three by third baseman Roberto Pena and two each by Monday, Felipe Alou and Johnson.

Shortstop Bert Campaneris suffered a twisted left ankle trying to score in the first inning and had to leave the game. He probably will be out of action for several days and may not play in the final two games with Minnesota today and Sunday.

Warriors Corral Santa Clara Ace

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ralph Ogden, 6-foot-5 forward at Santa Clara, has signed a contract with the San Francisco Warriors of the National Basketball Association, the club announced Friday.

Ogden averaged 21.9 points per game as the Broncos won a third straight West Coast Athletic Conference in the 1969-70 season.

He was also drafted by the Los Angeles Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Warriors' owner Franklin Mieuli said, "I watched Ralph play in high school and all through his college career and he's always been an outstanding player."

No terms of the signing were announced.

During the three years he was at Santa Clara, the Broncos compiled a 72-12 record and he scored 1,280 points. His brother Bud, was a first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA last year. Ralph was the Warriors' fourth-round pick.

They will be the first brother combination in the NBA since Tom and Dick Van Arsdale came out of Indiana in 1965.

Southern Cal Defeats Bears

BERKELEY (AP) — Southern California, sparked by relief pitching of freshman Erich Raich, combined four hits and a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning to defeat California 4-2 in a Pacific-8 baseball game Friday.

Raich allowed just one hit in four and two-thirds innings, striking out eight.

The Trojans now lead the Pac 8 Southern Division with a 2-0 record and stand 31-7 overall. California, 18-10, is 1-1 in league play.

ARCHER, 40, AND JOHNSON, 44

Old Folks Lead At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Maybe it's the Southern cooking but whatever it is, tall and lean George Archer found himself on top again today in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament and it's beginning to look like he might stay there.

The 6-6 Archer, who turned 40 last fall, knocked five strokes off the Lakewood Country Club's long course with a 67 Friday for a 36-hole total of 133. He took command early with six birdies on the front nine where he needed only 12 putts and moved into a two-stroke lead.

Behind him was another rebuff to golf's youth movement in Howie Johnson, a 44-year-old Californian who had the day's best round with a 66. Johnson also had something new in a Bible given him by the fun-loving Juan Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico.

PLAYER'S WOES

It was a day in mixed performances for some of golf's top shooters. Former National Open champion Lee Trevino got back into the act with a 69 for a 141 while Gary Player had all sorts of putting woes, including a four-putt 12th hole, and stumbled to a 140 with a 74. New Masters champion Billy Casper and National Open champion Orville Moody joined by six others at 138.

Oddly enough, Archer used a borrowed putter again, as he did in the first round. The grip "just fell off mine and I've got to have it fixed." Australian Bob Stanton, who now lives in New Orleans, loaned the putter to Archer.

"I did a lot of things wrong and got away with them," Archer said. "I have a tendency to get careless and my mind wanders. Heck, on the 18th, I missed my second shot when I looked up. That's just silly. Guys like Rodriguez can clown around and I think that's good for golf. But we all play the game differently and I have to play it the way I know how. I have to concentrate or I'm in trouble."

NO STRANGER

Archer is no stranger to success over the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course. He won here in 1968 and set a tournament record of 271 doing it. He said he likes the course and planned to take it easy Friday night and "eat some of that New Orleans seafood."

Dean Refram, tied for the first round runnerup stop with a 66, fell to a 74 Friday while Moody struggled to a 72, six off his opening round showing.

The trimmed-down field, minus 1961 New Orleans winner Doug Sanders, who missed the cutoff point of 144 by one stroke, will fight for the $25,000 winner's check in the final 36-holes today and Sunday.

Tomorrow's final holes will be televised on Channel 2 at 2:15 p.m.

The Northwood Bowmen's Club of Marin will host an open archery tournament all day Sunday at the archery range on San Pedro Road in Santa Venetia.

Luther Brown and Don Makela were double winners for Marin. Brown took the 120 high hurdles in 15.6, and the 220 dash in 22.8. Makela won the mile and two mile, with times of 4:27.5 and 9:47.8.

San Rafael Track Team Rips Marin

San Rafael High School's awesome track and field team swept past Marin Catholic yesterday, 107-19 in a Marin County Athletic League meet at Marin Catholic.

The win kept the Bulldogs undefeated and set the stage for next Friday's crucial meet with Tamalpais, owner of an identical 9 and 0 won-lost record.

As usual, it was San Rafael's front line that provided most of the points. The Bulldogs took first in all but two events, the high jump and long jump, which were won by Marin Catholic's Mark Lewis.

Stanford Beaten In 12th Inning

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — UCLA pitcher Bill Bonham won his own game with a double in the 12th inning as the Bruins beat Stanford 5-4 Friday in Pacific-8 action.

Bonham drove home first baseman John Helfrick, who had singled.

ALCINDOR EXPLODES

Bucks Finally Stop N.Y.; Lakers Win, Near Sweep

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Listen, the New York Knicks are setting off Lew Alcindor. Tick . . . tick . . . tick. Boom!

Alcindor, charged up after two losses to New York, scored 33 points and collected a club record 31 rebounds to lead Milwaukee to a pressure 101-96 victory in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night.

It was a must win for the young Bucks against the Knicks, who now hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-7 Eastern Division finals with game No. 4 coming up in Milwaukee Sunday.

NEAR SWEEP

In the night's other NBA playoff game, the Los Angeles Lakers moved within one game of sweeping the Western Division finals with a 115-114 overtime triumph over the Atlanta Hawks.

The New York Nets tripped Kentucky 122-118 in overtime, Denver beat Washington 130-111 and Los Angeles turned back Dallas 115-103 in opening round games of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bucks erased an early Knick advantage and sprinted to a 29-16 first quarter lead at Milwaukee.

New York repeatedly narrowed the gap, but could never come closer than seven points. Bob Dandridge helped keep the pressure on the Knicks with 22 points.

NEW RECORD

Alcindor's 31-rebound performance wiped out the old Milwaukee record of 22, held jointly by Greg Smith and Don Smith.

Wilt Chamberlain, a notoriously poor shooter, sank two in a row with 17 seconds left to give the Lakers a 3-0 edge going to Sunday's game at Los Angeles. Atlanta's Butch Beard hit two free throws to tie the score at 105 after regulation time.

Chamberlain, who made nine of 16 from the free throw line, finished with 18 points and 26 rebounds. The Lakers lost Jerry West and Dick Garrett on personal fouls in the fourth quarter. West finished with 35 points while Lou Hudson and Beard each hit 22 for the Hawks.

FOREMAN

Ex-Olympic Ring Champ Wins Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Sadler, the manager-trainer, likes to speak of George Foreman as "a little old green pea in a pod" but the former Olympic champion has won 18 straight and is moving in on the big money.

Foreman, a pro only 10 months, stopped John J. Woody of New York in 37 seconds of the third round Friday night at the Felt Forum in Madison Square Garden. There were no knockdowns but Foreman was punishing Woody and had bloodied his nose and cut his left eye before referee Johnny Colan stopped it. Some of the crowd of 3,361 paying $10,834 disagreed but it seemed to be the right decision.

"I did my job," said the 21-year-old Foreman, and he (Colan) did his. I was pleased with his work and the way the Garden handled the fight professionally."

With 18 fights in 10 months and 15 knockouts to his credit, Foreman plans to keep busy on a schedule reminiscent of the old Joe Louis work load.

Foreman next will fight April 29 at Cleveland against Aaron Eastling of St. Paul. He as a ten active May 16 date in Los Angeles with Scrap Iron Johnson and another tentative May 25 date in Philadelphia with Roger Russell.

Teddy Brenner, Garden matchmaker, is holding Foreman as a possible opponent for Jerry Quarry in the Garden June 17 if a proposed Quarry-Mac Foster bout falls through.

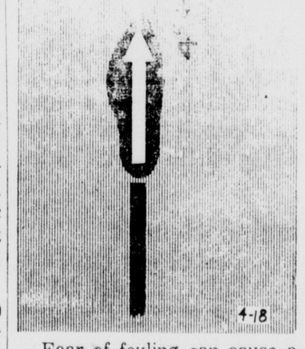
Skeet Match On Tap At Hamilton Field

The Hamilton Air Force Base Rod and Gun Club will host the "Golden Poppy Open" skeet match, April 25-26 at the Hamilton range.

Information about the event, which is open to all National Skeet Shooting Association members, as well as those wishing to join NSSA, is available from Col. Melvin Jarvis at the Hamilton Rod and Gun Club.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Fear of fouling can cause a twisted left foot at the foul line. If you are subconsciously afraid of going over the foul line, you may automatically turn your left foot to the right at this point. This causes an unnatural release. Plan your approach so that your left foot stops four inches behind the line. Most often it will be properly straight.

Marin Swim Team Second

A well balanced College of Marin swimming team, led by double winner Bruce Averill, placed second Thursday to De Anza College of Cupertino in the Camino Norte Conference championships at Cupertino. Marin scored 110 points of De Anza's 191.

Averill took firsts in the 100 and 200 yard backstroke events, and placed third in the 200 individual medley.

Taking seconds for Marin were Dave Topance in the 50 free, Bill Kuhn in the 200 free, Brent Bedayan in the 100 breast and Greg Myers in the 100 free.

Marin's league record was seven wins and eight losses.

Today is Saturday, April 18, the 108th day of 1970 with 257 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full stage. The morning star is Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1775 Paul Revere made his famous ride through the Massachusetts countryside, calling out "The British are coming!"

In 1906 the three-day San Francisco earthquake began. It killed 500 persons and left 250,000 homeless.

In 1942 Lt. Col. James Doolittle led a squadron of 16 B25 bombers on the first bombing mission against Japan in World War II.

In 1964, two transport planes collided over Ohio, killing 17 servicemen.

A thought for the day: British statesman John Selden said, "They that govern the most make the least noise."

Innocent Plea To Burglar Tools

known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of possessing burglary tools and attempted burglary. A jury trial was set for the week of April 27.

Sharper, who gave his name as Ray Byrd when arrested, was arrested March 26 in Sausalito when police saw him running out of an alleyway after a burglar alarm had gone off in the Sausalito Rexall Pharmacy at 701 Bridgeway.

They said he dropped two metal bars when ordered to stop.

Two men later arrested on the same charges were released when there was insufficent evidence to tie them to the offenses.

KING TO ACE

South ruffed the second round of clubs and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. Then he led a diamond, losing dummy's king to the ace.

Nobody said anything, but when a kibitzer delicately holds his nose you can tell what he thinks of the way things are going. Still, nothing went wrong because the hand was unbeatable. South ruffed the club return and ran his diamonds. West could take the queen of hearts when he liked, but the defenders could get nothing else. South won game and rubber, but no respect.

DANGEROUS PLAY

A good player almost invariably sets up the side suit before drawing trumps when both suits are shaky. If the side suit breaks badly, he will need dummy's trumps to help set the suit up; if the trumps break badly, he may need the long side suit to act as auxiliary trumps.

POSSIBLE STRENGTH

The danger of cashing the top trumps before leading diamonds is that the player with the ace of diamonds may also have started with the Q-J-x-x of trumps. If so, he will take the ace of diamonds, draw all of the trumps and then run the clubs.

South is somewhat safer if he knocks out the ace of diamonds before touching the trumps. If he runs into a bad trump break he may still go down, but he has a better chance to make the contract or save a trick from the wreckage.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 2 no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 9 8 2
♥ - Q 6 4
♦ - 5 3 2
♣ - J 10 9 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Partner's bid is very strong, but not forcing. You need about one additional point to respond.

Repairs Ordered To School Roof

The Old Adobe School District board has tentatively agreed to award a $2,100 contract for roof repairs at Bernard Elderedge School to Henris Roofing of Petaluma, according to Supt. Dean D. Magowan.

Henris submitted the bid Thursday night. The damage was caused in part by children playing on the roof, Magowan said.

In another matter, the board was informed the planned six-room addition to La Tercera School is being delayed again because of an inability to sell state bonds. Poor bond market conditions and uncertainty over the outcome of Proposition 7, raising the state bond interest rate, were cited as reasons.

Six Girls Competing For Crown Of West Marin Livestock Show

Six girls, including a resident of San Rafael, are competing for the title of Queen of the West Marin Junior Livestock Show to be held at Point Reyes Station June 20-21.

The winner will reign at the fair and will receive a $500 Lions Club scholarship, and the queen and her two princesses will win a trip to Disneyland and gowns for the inauguration ball and parade.

The girls who sell the most tickets to the livestock show will become queen, and those second and third will be princesses.

The contestants are:

JEANNE BALLATORE, a 16-year-old senior at Tomales High School, is a resident of Valley Ford.

She has served as freshman representative to the student council, freshman secretary, cheerleader, senior secretary, Girls Athletic Association president and sweetheart of the Future Farmers of America.

She plans to attend Santa Rosa Junior College to major in social science and minor in English. Miss Ballatore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spirito Ballatore, and a resident of Valley Forge for 15 years.

EMILIE BARNES, 16, a sophomore at San Rafael High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Barnes of San Rafael.

She has served as a volunteer for the Easter Seal Society and is a volunteer with the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department staff.

She is a member of the California Horsemen's Association and the Tamalpais Trail Riders and her horse is kept at Point Reyes Station, where she frequently rides.

In the 1969 West Marin Parade, she won first place in the junior cowgirl division.

Miss Barnes also plays violin with the San Rafael High School orchestra and Casadero Music Camp orchestra, and is studying classical guitar. She is a member of the American and Marin Recorder societies.

CONNIE FARNHAM, 17, of Marinwood, is a senior at Terra Linda High School, who formerly lived in Iran for five years.

She was a member of the Terra Linda High School delegation which recently won top honors in a national Model United Nations Conference in Washington, D.C.

Miss Farnham plans to attend the University of California at Davis, and hopes to be a delegate from the U.S. to the U.N. World Youth Assembly. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Farnham of 21 Valleystone Drive.

She is studying jazz dancing.

COLLEEN MARTIN, 17, is a senior at Marin Catholic High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zanardi of Olema.

She has been active in the 4-H Club for seven years achieving the rank of gold star and serving as a delegate to the 4-H leadership conference in Davis in 1966.

She is a member of the Spanish Club, Sodality, Pep Club and Yearbook staff at school. Outside of school, she is treasurer of a teen club and member of her church folk group.

She plans to attend College of Marin and Chico State College and major in social sciences.

MARY JO WHEELER, 16, is a junior at Tomales High School majoring in business education.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wheeler of Marshall, and works at Nick's Cove restaurant in Marshall.

Miss Wheeler was a member of the Tomales 4-H Club for four years and earned the bronze and silver stars. She hopes to become a secretary or an IBM keyboard punch operator.

ELAINE ZETTERQUIST, 16, a junior at Tomales High School is treasurer of the student body.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zetterquist of Inverness Park, and has lived in West Marin all her life.

She was a member of the Point Reyes-Olema 4-H Club for six years and was a county medalist in 1967. She is a member of the Girls Athletic Association, Girls League and Pep Club.

After graduation, she plans to attend a beauty college.

Supervisor Candidate Opens Headquarters

Campaign headquarters for Richard Day, a candidate for the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, opened yesterday at 159 Kentucky Street, Petaluma.

The office is scheduled to be open for six days a week and will serve as the center for volunteer efforts for Day.

Barbershop Night

A "barbershop harmony night" will be staged at 8:30 p.m. today at the Corte Madera Recreation Center, sponsored jointly by the Corte Madera Lions Club and the Marin chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Sonoma State Students Vote To End Fee Program

Students at Sonoma State College have voted overwhelmingly in favor of abolishing mandatory student activity fees, jeopardizing the future of regular campus programs.

The vote on a referendum Wednesday and Thursday was 713 against mandatory fees and 254 in favor.

An annual $18 student fee has been collected to support student government itself, athletics, the student newspaper and other programs. Under the vote, such a fee will be voluntary.

The referendum was prompted by a petition circulated by a group headed by student body president James Gillette.

The vote opens the door for a possible off-campus government and leaves the regular government in a position of seeking other sources of revenue for support of activities—if many students do not choose to pay a voluntary fee.

GET OFF THAT HOOK!

ARE YOU one of those guys who has swallowed the bait of a secure but mediocre income? Do you really want to spend years just trying to make ends meet? Are you looking forward to a gold watch when you're put out to pasture - and then to the ever shrinking purchasing power of a pension? Kind of scary, isn't it?

Why don't you get off that hook? A lot of people who were just like you did something about it. They became their own bosses as STA-POWER Distributors. Many are making more money now than they thought they ever would - and are having a ball doing it. They're involved in one of the largest industries in the nation, one which has no place to go but up. That's real security.

Get on the other end of that hook and line. Fill out the coupon and mail it -- NOW. You might just get off that hook and we'll be glad to help you do it.

I WANT TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT STA-POWER DISTRIBUTORS. PLEASE CONTACT ME IMMEDIATELY. I UNDERSTAND THERE IS NO OBLIGATION.

Commissioner Raps Corporate Censors

By NICHOLAS JOHNSON

There is censorship in this country all right.

Television networks censor themselves and their guests—while asserting their commitment to free speech and denying self-censorship.

The Nixon Administration attempts to control the broadcasters' comments—while professing its abhorrence of government censorship.

Meanwhile, notwithstanding a rare hassle in public, both parties agree well enough on what should be kept from the American people. It is long past time that we begin to examine the serious questions of "corporate censorship."

WHEN THE Founding Fathers drafted the First Amendment, they feared that the government might one day attempt to interfere with the freedoms of speech and press.

Accordingly, they carefully protected the people against censorship by the government, stating, "Congress shall make no law. . .abridging the freedom of speech, or the press. . ."

However, the power centers have changed since 1789—and the ability to influence thought and opinion has shifted from public to private hands. Today, 100 corporations own about half the manufacturing assets in the country. Our information comes in large part from three national radio and TV networks—ABC, CBS, and NBC—and from two wire services, AP and UPI.

We must recognize that we may have to expand the protections of the First Amendment if we are to eliminate censorship.

ON TWO RECENT occasions, CBS cut from its late-night Merv Griffin Show requests by Elke Sommer and Carol Burnett that people mail letters supporting world peace to Mrs. Martin Luther King, for forwarding to President Richard M. Nixon.

A few weeks ago, ABC censored remarks made by folk-singer Judy Collins on the Dick Cavett Show. The remarks were reportedly "sharply critical" of Judge Julius Hoffman and the Chicago conspiracy trial.

And last year NBC cut Robert Montgomery's remarks on the Johnny Carson Show when he mentioned that a CBS television station was being investigated by Congress and the FCC.

Yet these are the most recent incidents in which various TV networks have used their power to silence opinions with which they disagree, which they feel would offend advertisers or injure profits, or which they fear might stimulate official reaction.

Tommy Smothers has said that 75 per cent of the Smothers Brothers shows were altered in some way by CBS censors. The network censored Joan Baez's dedication of a song to her jailed husband. It banned any appearance whatsoever by Dr. Benjamin Spock. Ultimately, it censored the entire Smothers Brothers Show.

THE FCC WAS disturbed by Vice President Spiro Agnew's apparent intimidation of the networks after they had "commented" on the President's speech about Vietnam. The agency replied to letters backing the vice president with the official and unanimous observation that "the drafters of the First Amendment to our Constitution knew that the way to preserve truth was not through government surveillance or censorship, (for that government may also be wrong,) but by giving all persons with views the freedom to express them."

Even Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, in forthright response to the vice president, has acknowledged that "no more serious episode has occurred in government-press relationships since the dark days of the fumbling infancy of the republic when the ill-fated Alien and Sedition Acts forbade criticism of the government and its policies on pain of exile or imprisonment."

He went on to indicate that CBS would resist such pressures to "freedom of communications."

Yet what "freedom of communications" does this country really have if censorship is exercised, not by the government but by the large private corporations that control much of our access to news and opinion—the three national television networks?

I contend that the networks have so designed their programming that important information affecting lives and health is being kept from the public.

I believe that this is information that, if generally known, might damage the corporate profits of the networks and their advertisers.

I refer to a number of examples of this "corporate censorship"— such as information about shoddy products, critics' evaluations of the new TV shows, corporate profits from war. I do not say that the networks never broadcast such information; just that they broadcast very little, very seldom, and usually too late.

Goodtime Music Played Country Style

See Page M2

IN COLORFUL country and western dress, on stage, and ready to perform are the six members of the Thompson Brothers country music group, four of whom are Marinites. Left to right, they are Carl Remak who professionally is Carl Thompson, Steve Jossell, Warren LeRoy Jones, Linda Edmiston, Greg Lasser and Jesse Remak who in the music world is Jesse Thompson. Carl and Jesse formed the group two years ago and adopted the name Thompson Brothers.

Country Music Is Their Bag—

Thompson Brothers Like The Hillbilly Tunes Best

By DON KEOWN

"It's good-time music, fun to play and fun to listen to."

Thus does their spokesman explain the choice of repertoire of the Thompson Brothers, a six-member country music aggregation, four of whom reside in Marin.

Only two of the six are actually brothers. In fact, one of the other four is a very attractive girl. And not one of the six actually is named Thompson.

BUT JESSE and Carl Remak, the brothers who organized the group two years ago, chose the name Thompson Brothers "because Thompson has an American sound to it" and "because country music seems to be kind of a family thing — you know, the Carter Family, the Monroe Brothers. . ."

And professionally, they prefer to be referred to as Jesse and Carl or Slim Thompson.

Jesse, at 24 the oldest brother and a San Rafael resident, plays rhythm guitar and sings. Carl, 23, a Fairfax resident, plays bass guitar and also sings.

THE OTHER members are:

"Cousin" Linda Edmiston of San Francisco, the pretty girl vocalist who also plays the autoharp and guitar "and is our moral support." She is a housewife and the mother of three children.

"Pickin" Greg Lasser, also of San Francisco, who plays banjo, mandolin, guitar and sings.

Warren LeRoy Jones of San Rafael, lead and steel guitarist and the six-string dobro virtuoso.

"Speedy" Steve Jossell of Bolinas, the percussionist, who is the newest "Brother."

"I GUESS ALL of us got started in music when we were kids," says Jesse, who does the talking for the group.

The group itself began, he says, "when I went up to Carl one day and just said, 'let's start up a band.'"

Jesse goes on: "So we got in touch with some people we knew who were also country music pickers, and we started getting together and jamming a bit. We were so happy with our sound that we decided to go ahead and perform."

IT WAS THEN that Jesse and Carl Remak became Jesse and Carl Thompson for musical purposes.

There have been several changes in the lineup of the Thompson Brothers since that start, but the emphasis has remained steadfastly upon country music or country-rock.

"Most of us were raised in country music backgrounds," Jesse says. "In fact, Warren is from Nashville. And the stars

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"How Should My Wedding Gown Be Preserved?"

Naturally you expect me to suggest that the first thing you do is to send your gown to a reliable cleaner. I won't suggest it. I'll demand it! Though it appears clean there are scores of ways in which it can be soiled. Perspiration, liquid refreshments, wedding cake, etc. can result in spots or attract ravenous insects. Your cleaner will hand-clean your gown and package it carefully for storage.

Wedding gowns should be wrapped carefully with tissue between folds to protect each layer from the weight of the layer above. Thus folds are rounded, not creased, which over a long period of time can cause damage.

Store your gown in a dry place, an attic rather than a damp basement. Dampness causes mildew that thrives on cotton, linen and rayon.

Follow these simple suggestions and your wedding gown will be safe until the next wedding.

JESSE COMPARES the singing of "Cousin" Linda, a five-foot seven-inch brunette, to that of Tammy Wynette — "clear, powerful and pure."

Members of the Musicians' Union, the Thompson Brothers have appeared at such places as the Matrix in San Francisco, Marin's own Lions Share, the Poppycock in Palo Alto, Club Babylon in Berkeley, the End of the Beginning in Cotati, the Odyssey in San Mateo, College of Marin, San Francisco State College and San Francisco Art Academy.

On Easter Sunday they played and sang at sunrise services in Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais. Religious music is an important part of their repertoire.

THIS WEEK they were among the entertainers at the peace mobilization in San Francisco's Civic Center. On Wednesday, they will perform for an ecology fair in the Oakland Sports Arena.

They have a May 1 date at the Fairfax Pavilion.

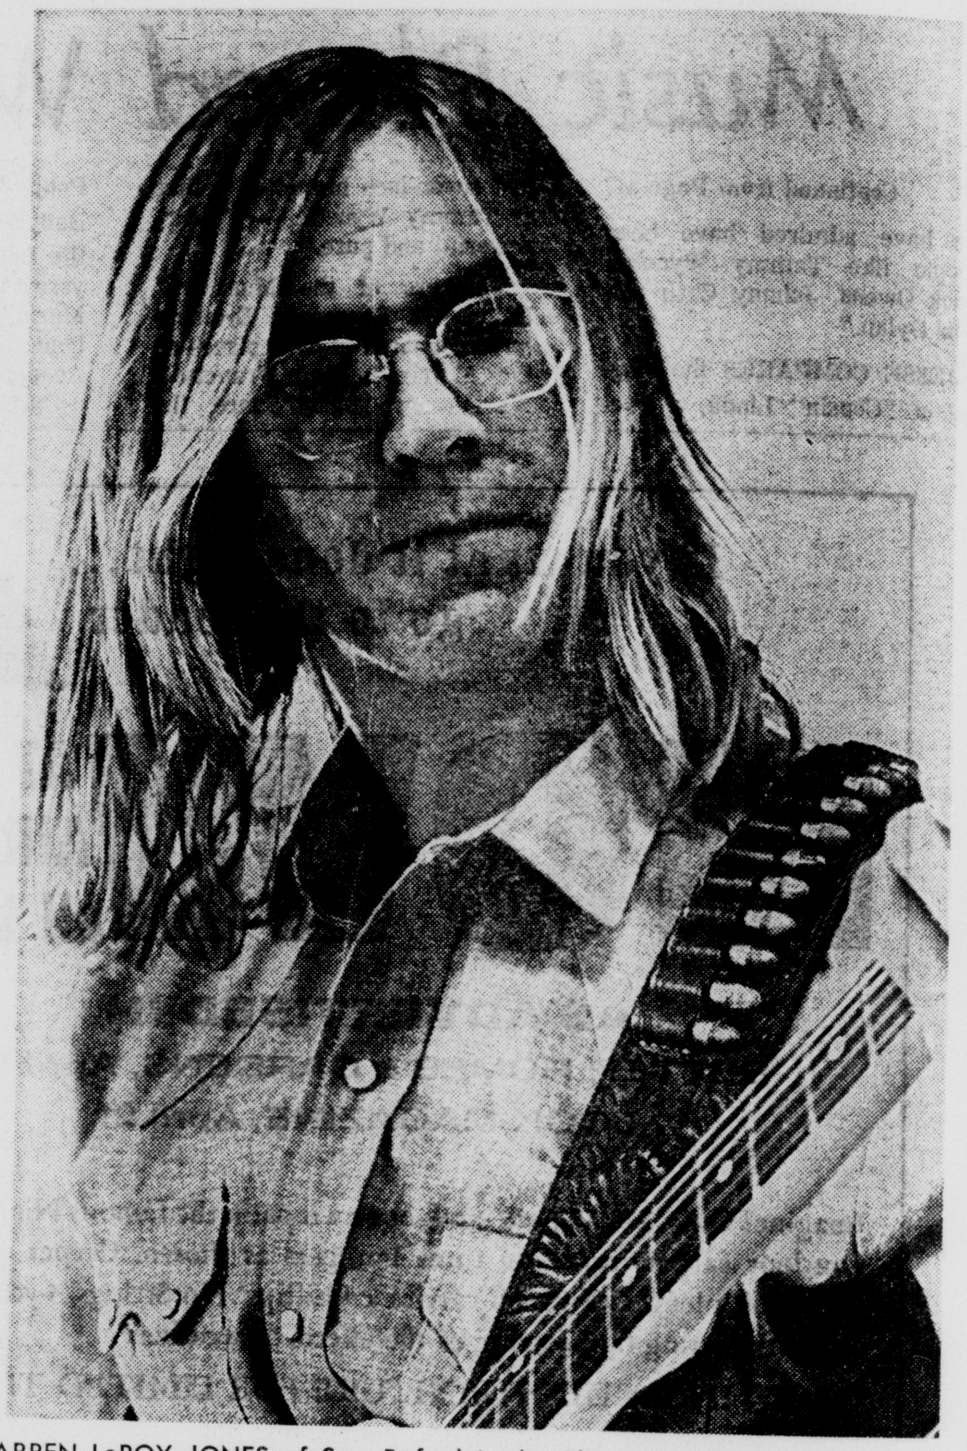
JESSE REMAK, or in country music circles, Jesse Thompson, was, with his brother Carl, a co-founder of the Thompson Brothers and plays rhythm guitar and sings. He is a San Rafael resident.



WARREN LeROY JONES of San Rafael is the Thompson Brothers lead guitarist who also plays the six-string dobro and other instruments. He hails from Nashville, Tenn., long a hotbed of rural music activity.

composed of high school youths and young people in their early 20s.

"But some old-timers also show up," Jesse says, "and some of them really get nostalgic listening to the country tunes, especially after a few beers."

ACTUALLY, MUCH of their music is of recent origin. But all of it has the feel and the flavor of the traditional old-style country music.

Jesse's favorite is "New Gold Mine" which he wrote himself. Linda also has composed. But her favorite is "A Good Girl's Going Bad." She also does "Act Naturally" exceptionally well. Beatle tunes are suited to her voice.

Sacred songs such as "Turn Not Away From Your Savior" and "Seek Jesus, He Still May Be Found" are frequently a part of their programs. So is "Earl's Breakdown." And Lefty Frizzell's classic "Love, I Finally Found It."

"SOME OF THESE may be contemporary songs," Jesse says, "but they give you the feeling of the old Irish, Scottish and English tunes that the Appalachian mountaineers have played for generations."

What is there about this kind of music that these young people of the rock generation find so appealing?

"It has that good beat to it," Jesse answers. "And it tells a story, about sadness, happiness or love, although we emphasize the good-time, happy tunes ourselves. It is more to the point than rock."

HE SAYS THAT all the Thompson Brothers have played "a bit of rock" the past few years and most enjoy it. "But we just happen to prefer country music."

He notes with satisfaction that rock musicians, more and more are adapting "country licks" to their own music, and admits that the reverse is also true.

Their country music is going over very well, Jesse insists. He attributes at least part of its appeal to the fact that it is so danceable — "a lively, different kind of dancing, square dancing, the reels, the stomp dance, the jig of the mountains and the prairies."

THE THOMPSON Brothers themselves represent a wide range of occupations. Along with his music, Jesse works in the community for the Economic Opportunities Council. Another member is a gardener and yet another is employed by a printing firm. One earns his living full-time as a professional musician.

The "brothers" include wearers of both the long and short hair styles. On stage, they wear country-western dress in bright and differing colors.

Their mainstay instruments are the guitar, banjo and the drums. But they sometimes include the gut bucket, the musical saw, the washboard, the Jews' harp, the harmonica, the autoharp and other instruments to create their authentic sounds.

THE SINGING is the high-pitched, nasal sound traditional with the hillbilly brand of music.

Contrary to some opinion, it is not, says Jesse, easy music to play or sing properly. "There are some very precise licks, and it takes good hands, good voices and good timing. Above all, you have to have a feeling for the music.

"There are always some experts in the audience. And if you aren't doing it exactly right, they'll let you know."

RIGHT NOW, says Jesse, the Thompson Brothers have two big goals in mind.

They would like to put out an album for a major recording company. And, as their ultimate ambition, they would like to play in Nashville on the Grand Ole Opry stage where the likes of the Carters and Roy Acuff have trod.

Jesse has yet another ambition of his own. He would like to visit the Appalachians some day and tour the by-roads.

He explains: "I've never been there. And it would be great to go there and listen to those old boys playing the real thing, just as their granddaddies did before them.

"OF COURSE, I've heard some of them on records and over the radio and television. But it's not the same thing as being there and hearing and seeing them in person.

"And some day, I'm going to do just that."

On The Route Kit Carson Once Traveled

Today Grant Avenue, Novato, Features Interesting Shops

By LOIS JANE CLEVELAND

In 1829, the famous Kit Carson became one of the first Americans to travel through the Novato Valley, then lush with apple, apricot and pear trees.

Carson, some historians have said, was on "a goodwill mission."

Others have reported more accurately that Carson was on a more war-like mission—headed for the Mission San Rafael Arcangel, where, he had heard, an Indian uprising was boiling up.

THAT SAME year, another American, the hardy fur trapper James O. Pattie, too visited the valley in the company of two Coriac Indians.

In his diary he recorded his appreciation of its ideal climate and his amazement at the fruit orchards that covered the landscape.

In 1839 the lands upon which these vast orchards grew were granted to Fernando Feliz by the Mexican Governor of California. Since then the Rancho on the Arroyo de Novato has passed through many hands.

BY THE MID 1890's, farmers to the east of today's busy Highway 101 were sending their children to the first school that had opened its doors in 1862.

In 1896 they attended the Community Presbyterian Church in the building that now serves Novato as its attractive City Hall.

The farmers pumped water out of marshes and creeks for their fertile farms surrounded by what was then hailed as "one of the largest orchards in the entire world."

AND EVEN THEN, they drove or rode into "downtown" Novato to do their shopping and their socializing, although in 1890 the main street consisted of little more than a saloon and a general store.

Certainly neither Kit Carson nor James O. Pattie, and for that matter, not the farmers of the 1890s could have visualized the Novato area as it is today with its extensive residential developments, or Grant Avenue with its imaginative, creative, progressive shopkeepers who seem to specialize in the unusual in wares and services.

For instance, at 869 Grant Avenue, one finds the Full O'-Flavor Shoppe.

THERE'S NO resemblance between Novato's downtown Main Street as it appeared in the early 1900s in the photograph at top, from the Al Lerch collection, and Grant Avenue as photographed today by an Independent-Journal photographer with its handsome business, professional and financial buildings that share the street with shops that specialize in unusual wares and services.

AN ATTRACTIVE table set in red and white adorns one window, as it supports platter after platter of delectable doughnuts which are made on the premises.

The smell of freshly ground coffee lures you inside. Here you will find coffee and tea blends from all over the world. Displayed in the burlap sacks in which they're shipped, the aromatic coffee beans are ground before your eyes to your particular taste.

The owner, Ed Schuffert, says "There is a difference between low-priced merchandise and quality merchandise. . .mine is quality."

THE SPOTLESS interior of the shop, sparkling white counters, red and white velvet decor and crystal chandelier speak of high quality and the best in taste delights.

Ingredients used by the former Chicagoan in his doughnuts are farm fresh eggs, soy, wheat, corn flour and pure vegetable oil. . .and the finished products are delightfully decorated.

At 813 Grant Avenue, Stanton's ceramic shop, owned and operated by Mrs. Anne Stanton, deals in greenware, tools, paints and firing. Mrs. Stanton offers free classes in both daytime and evening hours.

RECENTLY widowed, the attractive proprietor of Stanton's, a graduate of Kansas City Art Institute, feels that creativity such as ceramics should be made available to more people. She works with the elderly and hopes to bring a program of ceramics as a hobby into several convalescent homes.

Across from Stanton's is a gift shop, "The Owl's Nest." Here lies a story of courage and creative effort.

Mrs. Frances Eldredge had become interested in ceramic work when she was blinded with cataracts and unable to see for three years. During this time she suffered two heart attacks.

"I WAS FORCED to sit quietly and work with my hands."

Her health and vision now restored, she, together with Mrs. Dona Smith, her daughter, have created most of the gift items in the shop. Other pieces are taken on consignment.

Potted plants grace the sidewalk in front of Edwin Smalle Interiors. With a background of work in the Central Intelligence Agency and with several large department store drapery and curtain shops, Ed says, "I just fell into this profession."

Serving clients from throughout the Bay Area and as far north as Sacramento, Smalle's amiable personality and sense of good taste make discriminating Novato homeowners aware of his assistance, and in some cases, he has advised up to the third generation of local families.

IN HIS 13TH year at this shop, Smalle spends much time at the Ice House in San Francisco, where he and his clients may choose furnishings and ideas offered by world famous decorators. His own showroom consists of vignettes of every room of a home, and he invites browsing.

"Good taste," he insists, "reflects individuality rather than money."

Ed feels that men are becoming more interested in home design and effective decor. "More and more interior work is being done throughout the business world. There are fancy offices, ornate executive board rooms. . . and because men pay for decor, I am glad they are interested."

ED SMALLE is a member of American Association of Interior Decorators and has been featured in articles in several nationally known home idea magazines.

These Grant Avenue stores are but a sampling of the shops that have brought a new style and prestige to shopping in Novato. There are many other stores, equally well stocked, just as imaginatively operated, just as capable of surprising and pleasing the shopper by producing the unusual.

No, Kit Carson would not recognize today the verdant valley that so impressed him 140 years ago.

BUT NEITHER would the shoppers of only a few decades back recognize the business district today.

After long years of catering to ranchers and their basic, staple needs, downtown Novato and its Grant Avenue has taken on a new "cosmopolitan" look and function with substantial business buildings and quaint shops mingling colorfully and effectively.

KITCHEN-WARE ideas such as this Vallauris set from France for gourmet cooking, made from clay deposits discovered and used by the Romans, are just one of the enticements offered at Smalle Interiors on Novato's Grant Avenue.

THE TWO-STORY HOUSE that T. H. Richardson built for his family at Kentfield in the 1870s is shown as it looked then in the faded and somewhat tattered photograph at top. In lower photo, present occupant Mrs. Philip McCoy and A. H. Dewees stand before the same New England-style home as it looks today after undergoing remodeling and expansion through the decades. Dewees is chairman for the Garden Society of Marin Tour for Gardeners to be conducted May 2 include the McCoy grounds.

The House That Richardson Built 100 Years Ago

By CONNIE RICHARDSON

It was in about the year 1870 that T. H. Richardson moved to the West, to become a business associate of A. E. Kent who had acquired significant new holdings in Marin County.

As a millwright and farmer, it was Richardson's assignment to build a big house and barn for Kent, plus a home for his own family.

The two-story structure that Richardson constructed for his own use, since remodeled and expanded through the years so that it currently boasts 12 rooms and seven fireplaces, is now owned and occupied by the Philip J. McCoys.

AND THE McCOY grounds will be one of six gardens open for exploration by visitors on May 2 when the Garden Society of Marin conducts its twelfth annual Tour for Gardeners.

Coincidentally, present owner and occupant of the property at 7 Orchard Way, Kentfield, Philip McCoy, like pioneer Richardson, enjoys building and the outdoors, and has been in the lumber business most of his life.

"My husband loved traveling on railroads, learning the business," says Phoebe McCoy. "He even has an old caboose all fixed up next to one of his offices. Long ago there was a railroad station near here."

TODAY AN authentic locomotive's bell is attached to an elm in front of the house.

"A friend found it for me," smiles Mrs. McCoy, who gave it to her husband on his birthday. "We ring it by pulling on the rope and the sound is highly attractive to our dog Molly, named after Tamalpais. She likes to show off by trying to ring it."

Mrs. McCoy has followed the first owner's example by directing the planting of corn along with other vegetables and berries on a rear section of the property.

"I understand Mr. Richardson used a sharpened stick to make holes in which to drop the kernels," she adds. "I'm the basic weeder, myself, but I get some help from the children from time to time . . ."

ACROSS A WIDE sweep of lawn three of five original sequoia giganteas dominate the landscape.

"They were probably planted by John McLaren, a frequent visitor and friend of Mr. Kent," explains Mrs. McCoy. "Last year, they provided a fine background for my daughter Sarah's wedding." Other children are Peter 20, Jenny 17, Martha 15 and Lucy 8.

Phoebe McCoy feels her love of Marin undoubtedly stems from her happy childhood in Spokane, Wash., where he father maintained three acres of lawns and flowers.

"We first came to San Francisco during the World War II when my husband was in the Navy," she says. "Then we moved to Marin and lived in an Esherick-designed house on Woodland Avenue until eight years ago when we bought this property, which right away made me think of my old home.

"OWNERS BEFORE us had added rooms, porches, fireplaces and a swimming pool, and one re-did the foundation. They even gently took down the original wisteria vine and put it back up on a new trellis so that it continues to soften the entrance to the house."

The expansive living room built on after the 1906 earthquake and fire contains a fireplace made entirely of clinker bricks salvaged from that disaster when other materials were in scarce supply.

Although primary plantings were more suited to the Midwest, subsequenly cypress, magnolia, fruit and pine trees and flowering shrubs graced the property along with the sequoias. When the McCoys took possession of the two-acre parcel in 1962 further changes were made.

"THE STRAIGHT entrance road was curved for privacy

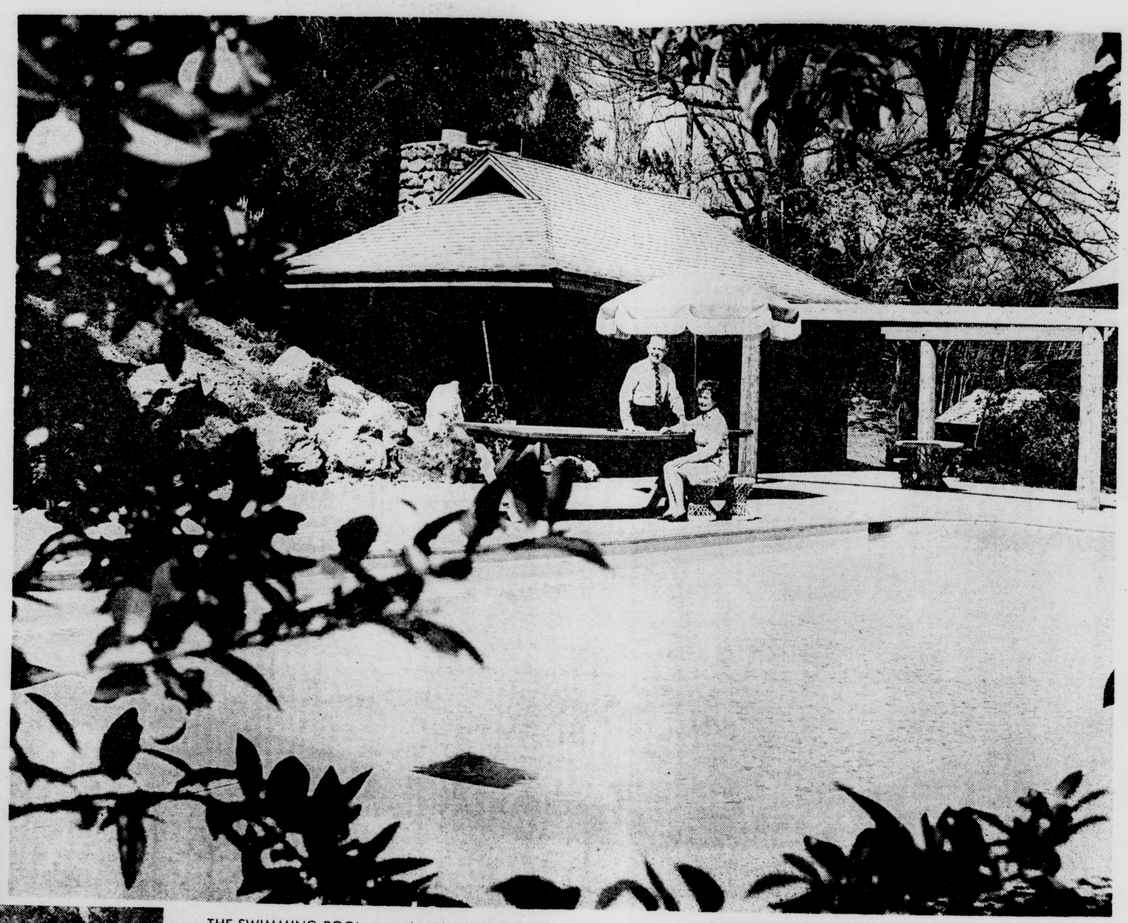
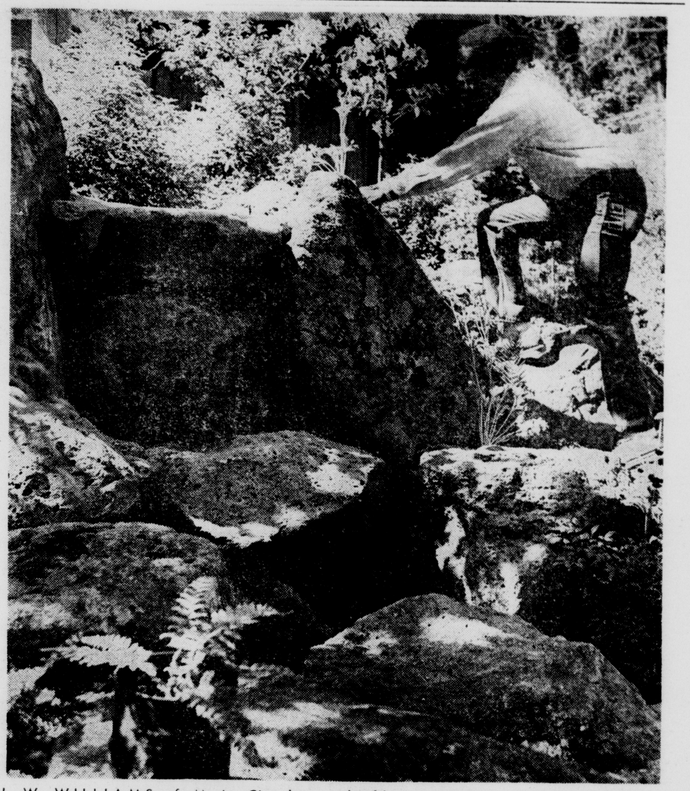
IN FRONT OF their Kentfield home, Mrs. Philip J. McCoy rings the authentic locomotive bell she bought her railroad buff husband. Molly, the shaggy family pet, enjoys the bell's sound and sometimes tries to ring it herself.



THE SWIMMING POOL was already in place when the Philip J. McCoys acquired their historic Kentfield home, but they added the structure that houses showers, barbecue and other facilities. Mrs. McCoy and Col. Todd H. Slade, president of the Garden Society of Marin, discuss plans for the May 2 Tour for Gardeners when the McCoy grounds will be open to the public. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)



J. W. WILLIAMS of Marin City has turned off the water for the waterfall while he makes adjustments of plants among the boulders in the Philip J. McCoys' new rock garden. Williams has worked with the McCoys in a number of their new additions to their garden.

Garden With A Marin History

and esthetic appeal," explains Mrs. McCoy. "We added San Francisco cobblestone paths bordering flower beds and a rock garden with a waterfall which is visible through the dining room windows.

"Our friend Samuel Newsom of Mill Valley helped us with the rock garden design."

Aiding the McCoys in many projects these days is J. W. Williams of Marin City.

"He's very good at so many things," smiles Phoebe. "Currently we are building a pool house with barbecue, smoke oven and a shower as an addition to our cabana. It was my idea to have a 'little retreat for mother,' but my husband likes to build, so it's turning into something a bit more substantial and it has a Far East motif."

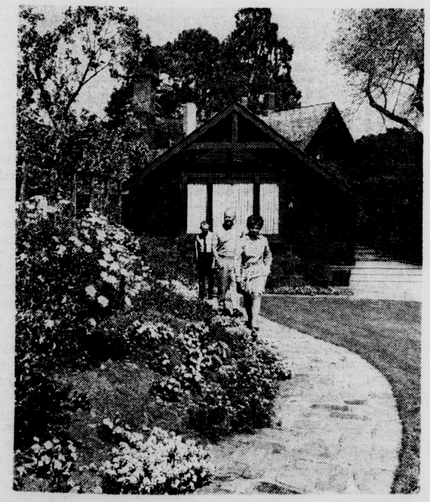
BECAUSE MRS. McCoy has always been interested in the culture and art of the Orient, she became one of the first docents for the Avery Brundage Collection in San Francisco's De-Young Memorial Museum where she guides visitors through the exhibits twice a week.

An event all the McCoys remember with special pleasure was their flag-raising party.

"We'd always wanted a flagpole," she explains. "So when we found this one, we planned a party for some hundred friends and neighbors and hired boys from nearby College of Marin to help with catering chores. After it was over, the young men refused any pay, saying they felt it was more a privilege than a job. We were all very touched."

OTHER GARDENS to be featured on the May 2 tour are those of Alex Black, 40 Blue Ridge Road and H. S. Meinberger, 2 Northridgewood Road, both in Kentfield; C. W. Caletti, 30 Moncado Way, and Herbert G. Pratt, 11 Westwood Drive, both in San Rafael, and C. W. Zumwalt, 73 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and tickets with maps for the Garden Tour for Gardeners may be purchased at the Marin Art and Garden Center or at any of the gardens on May 2.



THE CURVING pathway down which Mrs. Philip McCoy leads visitors A. H. Dewees and Col. Todd H. Slade is built of old San Francisco cobblestone, a rare and coveted paving product.

WISTERIA VINES that must be nearly a century old shade them from overhead while Mrs. Philip McCoy and guests Col. and Mrs. Todd H. Slade relax and chat.

The Perfect Honeymoon

Danish Fairytale Land Lures Many Newlyweds

What more natural destination for any honeymoon than the "fairytale country" itself, topped with the fun of Wonderful, Wonderful Copenhagen?

Denmark has long been a favorite of honeymooners, not only from the United States but from all over Europe. Why?

The reason is very simple: You'll find all the ingredients necessary — if you bring along the right spouse: fine food, fun, fairytales, furs, fabrics, furniture. . .

The "Copenhagen 24-Hours Fun" program is actually a non-stop custom built honeymoon program, from the festive Danish breakfast delicacies in the hotel room, through refreshing afternoon drinks at delightful sidewalk cafes, to late, late night snacks at cosy little fun places.

THE TOURS during the day are fascinating, whether they include visits to the world famous workshops of Copenhagen porcelain or beautiful Danish silver, or to the sights of marvelous crown jewels and royal reception rooms.

Or what about a romantic horsecab ride through the 300-years-old Deer Park with more than 1,000 deer?

And is any spot on earth more perfect for honeymoon-shopping than Wonderful Copenhagen, packed with stunning Danish design to be treasured for a lifetime?

And is there a more attractive place anywhere to finish a day of fun than in Tivoli, Copenhagen's lovely fairytale garden filled with beautiful flowers, millions of lights, good music and restaurants to remember?

HONEYMOONERS who prefer not to be in a big city will love Elsinore, Hamlet's town, 25 miles north of Copenhagen.

Here is everything: A delightful hotel which combines 100 years of traditions with the newest in facilities and entertainment including an indoor swimming pool, casino, dancing, beach, golf, fishing, sailing, walks in old streets, marketplace, monastery, glamorous castle and delightful excursions in all directions.

Honeymooners, however, should not only enjoy wonderful Copenhagen and historic Elsinore, but they ought to jump into a car and drive along Denmark's green roads through the countryside.

MANY OF Denmark's fairytale inns have special honeymoon-suites, and there is plenty of romance in the air whether you walk through the 1,000 year old streets of Ribe in Southern Jutland, enjoy the buildings in Aarhus' world famous Old Town Open Air Museum, or for instance stop a few days at lively Aalborg in Northern Jutland, with excellent hotels, many good restaurants and walking streets for shopping. Aalborg is a perfect headquarter for tours to the fabulous beaches, to old country inns and historic landmarks.

One thing is certain for the honeymooners visiting Denmark from all parts of the world: They will all want to come back to this fairytale country where a honeymoon in Denmark helped them to a perfect beginning of that happily-ever-after married life.

DENMARK IS ONE of the few remaining lands where the gasoline engine and the motor car have not succeeded in relegating the pedestrian to second-class-citizen status. Visitors can stroll and shop along the Stroget, the fascinating thoroughfare in the heart of romantic Copenhagen from which automobiles are barred, or sit in the sun at sidewalk cafes in that cosmopolitan city's spacious squares. And many Danish villages retain the quiet and serenity of past centuries.

Some Gems Among Paris' Many Restaurants

That wonderful little side-street restaurant which served a Lucullan feast for a pittance may have changed since the last time you saw Paris. Or, at least, the right side of the menu will have changed.

Paris — in fact all France — is still dedicated to the proposition that fine food is worth at least as much attention as the other favorite French diversions. But inflation has stabbed at the palate, and finding gourmet fare at bargain prices takes more initiative these days.

The American traveler to Paris aboard today's airliners isn't much interested in food for the first day — he's too stuffed already.

But the appetite revives after that first day of walking around Paris, search for plebeian-looking restaurants or cafes. If they inspire a crowd, you may have discovered a new gem, despite the barren decor.

IN ALL OF Paris' 6,000 restaurants, some still can be found which offer bargains.

For example, a few feet from the expensive Tour d'Argent, a small, homey cafe called Au Beaujolais offers excellent food at moderate prices in a typical Parisian setting. The waiters wear long, black aprons and the first glass of wine is on the house.

If you arrive early — before 7:30 p.m. — you'll find the staff enjoying their own dinners at long tables in front of the tiny bar. But someone will leap to your attention, turn up the bright lights and lead you to a small table set with a white cloth.

Strings of dried sausages hang from the ceiling beams, the windows overlook the Seine and by 8 p.m. it is crowded.

START WITH terrine maison or celeri remoulade, coq au vin, a dessert of creme caramel or tart maison and coffee. Two can enjoy this meal, with a bottle of "vin ordinaire" for $10. In 1960 it might have been 25 per cent less, but that's inflation.

Parisian proprietors close their doors eccentrically on various days of the week to suit their own convenience and drive the tourists and localites to distraction. Sunday is a favorite closing time and it is difficult to find a restaurant open on the Right Bank on the Seventh Day unless you rally 'round the Ritz or similar hotel dining rooms.

On the Left Bank, it is easier and one of the more charming Sunday exceptions to the closing rule is Au Chat Riton at 45 du Cherche-Midi, a few blocks from Boulevard du Montparnasse. This intimate little cafe is popular with residents of the neighborhood who are happily familiar with the Basque specialities of the maison and the pleasant atmosphere created by mellow brick walls and soft lighting.

THE RESTAURANT'S hors d'oeuvre cart carries a miniature smorgasbord on wheels, offering a first course that is almost a meal in itself. Two can dine and wine deliciously here for about $15, including tip and dessert of fresh North African pineapple swimming in rum.

Offering more in the way of atmosphere is La Gaudisserie at 19 Rue St. Louis en l'Ile, modestly tucked away on the main street of this exclusive residential island in the River Seine.

Only about 30 people can be seated in the 300-year-old dining room under the low, beamed ceiling. Candlelight and red homespun curtains warm the shadows playing on the rough stone walls, while the good wine and the fire in the ancient fireplace warm the guests.

Dinner with wine will be about $18 for two and could include a casserole of ham-filled pancakes bubbling in a cheese sauce; a filet mignon, garnished with watercress, deep-fried egg plant, salad, cheese or dessert and coffee. A bowl of escargot, little boiled snails, is passed around with after-dinner drinks.

AN INFORMAL after-dinner program of guitar music, songs and poetry follow. Each lady receives a long-stemmed red rose to carry home through the midnight streets.

If you are really tied to a shoestring budget, La Popote on

Rue Vernon in Montmartre is a bistro still serving a six-franc lunch with wine. Get in before noon as it becomes crowded to capacity for a meal equal to $1.32, U.S. Workmen in overalls, shopkeepers, office workers and artists working in the neighborhood dine around the oil cloth-covered tables.

Tourists who smile are drawn into the conversation immediately and if their contribution to the discussion is a bit vague, nobody really minds.

The menu, soaped up on the mirrors lining the walls, consists of a few simple and filling dishes like beef bourguignon and veal stew with mashed potatoes. The wine, poured out of unlabeled bottles, is served in thick tumblers; there's lots of crusty bread and fresh butter and the pie is home-made.

DINERS WITH expensive appetites could run the tab up to $2.50 by ordering extras like soup, tomatoes and cucumbers vinaigrette, cheese and brand-name wine.

Coffee is served at the little bar down the street because La Popote doesn't encourage customers to loiter once the meal is over. Eating is a serious business here and Madame, who directs the entire production from her post near the kitchen door, will scold those who don't clean up their plates smartly. In fact, she'll send the unfinished portions right back to the table with caustic comments about wasting good food.

A Roll Call Of Americans Who Have Chosen To Live Abroad

By DON KEOWN

THE EXPATRIATES by Ishbel Ross; Crowell, 358 pages, $7.95.

Ishbel Ross may well have succeeded in breaking the world record for name-dropping in her big new book "The Expatriates."

It is the kaleidoscopic story of Americans who have chosen or who have been required to live abroad, beginning with Benjamin Franklin while our War of Independence was still being waged, and continuing down to the present with its Jet Set, diplomatic bureaucracy, Peace Corps, Hippies, exchange students and draft evaders.

Two and a half million Americans, better than 1 per cent of the national population, now live outside our boundaries, continuing a tradition that thousands have practiced before them.

To the reader, it must seem that Miss Ross has omitted but few of them from her book.

What "The Expatriates" really is is a digest of scores of other, earlier books written about expatriatism and its prominent practitioners. The bibliography in the back of "The Expatriates" is immense. And one cannot doubt but that Miss Ross has read and faithfully recorded notes from all of them.

What you get then is a three or four paragraph paraphrased excerpt from a source about a particular expatriate, summarizing how he lived abroad and with whom he mingled, after which you move on to another subject covered by another source and accord him similarly quick treatment. But you can be sure that your first subject—and the second as well—will reappear time and time again later in the book, linked by yet other sources to still other expatriates. The result is considerable repetition and some jumbling of the chronology.

There's a gossipy flavor to the book, particularly when you reach the 1920s and 1930s where Miss Ross, working as a New York Herald Tribune reporter, has personally interviewed and known many of the principals. Unfortunately, just when she has gained her reader's full attention, she finds it necessary to move on to her next celebrity.

To say that her book is devoid of interest would be unfair. It is impossible to resist her colorful cast. It is just that one winds up wishing Miss Ross might have limited her introductions to a smaller number, so that your visits might have been more sustained.

Only a few, such as Thomas Jefferson, Jefferson Davis, John Singer Sargent, James Whistler, Benjamin West, Ernest Hemingway and Scott Fitzgerald are accorded space that is almost, if not quite, adequate.

One is given tantalizing but incomplete glimpses of the likes of the John Adamses, Gilbert Stuart, John Singleton Copley, Charles Willson Peale, Washington Irving, Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Russell Lowell, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Hiram Powers, Horatio Greenough, George Ticknor, Rose Greenhow, Matthew Maury, Kate Chase Sprague, Mary Todd Lincoln, Victoria Claflin Woodhull, Clara Barton, Isabella Stewart Gardner, Bernard Berenson, Henry James, George Santayana, Edith Wharton, Mary Cassatt, Jennie Jerome Churchill, Ezra Pound, Isadora Duncan, Consuelo Vanderbilt, Lady Nancy Astor, Mabel Dodge, Gertrude Stein, F. Marion Crawford, Peggy Guggenheim, John Dos Passos, Sinclair Lewis, Malcolm Cowley, James Joyce, T. S. Eliot, Robert McAlmon, Josephine Baker, James Gordon Bennett, Louis Bromfield, the Duchess of Windsor, Merle Oberon, Princess Grace, Elizabeth Taylor, Lee Radziwill, Fleur Cowles, Charles Chaplin, Anthony Quinn, William Holden, Paul Bowles, Mary McCarthy, Janet Flanner, Richard Wright, Alexander Haley, Irwin Shaw. Some rate only the barest mention.

It is a rich and intriguing cast. But Miss Ross only titillates, never satisfies, our curiosity. Her technique is more that of the society page columnist, dealing primarily with the friendships and the feuds that have flourished in expatriate circles, than it is that of the serious social commentator probing a phenomena that has drained America heavily of some of its finest, most creative talent.

Not until her closing pages does she make any real attempt to come to grip with the factors that have caused this leak, and then her effort is not convincing.

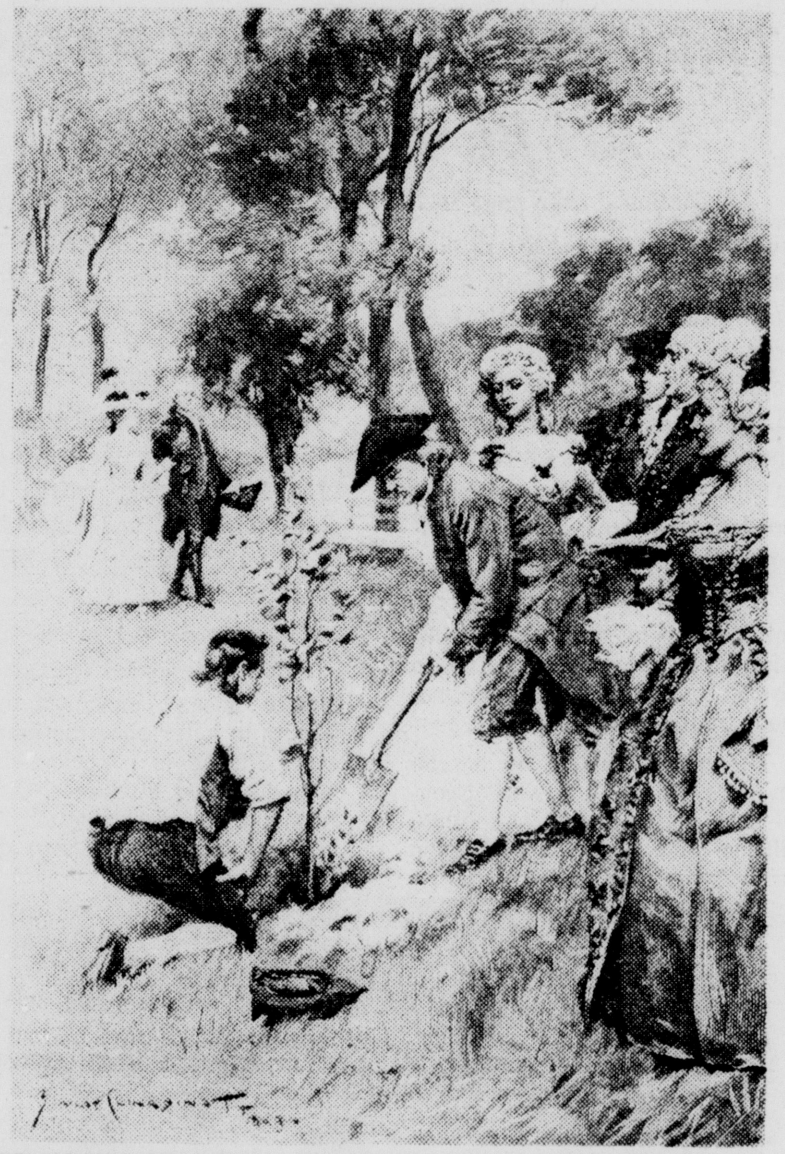
"The spirit of adventure, the longing to see the world, the patriotic spirit, all have their place in this great army of exiled Americans," she writes of the present generation.

But she also says: "The old quest for isolation to pursue artistic expression is not in the contemporary mood. . ."

One suspects that just such a quest is still very much the decisive factor in the decision of many Americans to spend extended periods in other lands. Their own country has grown more rather than less crowded and noisy with fewer opportunities for the privacy and contemplation that artists and other thoughtful persons cherish.

Miss Ross is correct when she says that American writers and artists who work abroad no longer starve and freeze in garrets (the youngsters, both Hippie and non-Hippie, who stream from the country, are now the ones who "rough it"). But congestion, despoliation, the absence of tranquility remain no less a cause of their migration.

With all its advantages over other lands, and these are many, the United States also has its flaws. One alternative is to flee them. Another is not to see them. But there is a third possibility—to remain and to confront them. More and more Americans, alarmed but not despairing, are choosing that course.



BENJAMIN FRANKLIN was the first American expatriate of prominence, arriving in France in 1776 on his third trip abroad to establish his new country's first diplomatic headquarters. He won the affection of the French and produced the first daily newspaper intended for Americans in Paris. The illustration is one of 23 reproduced in Ishbel Ross' new book, "The Expatriates."

THE YEAR 1969 was not the period of momentous, blockbuster events that the preceding year had been.

It was, instead, a year of trends — some of them new and some of them holdovers from previous years that hardened, accelerated or decelerated during the 12 months.

This is reflected in "1969: The Year in Review," Time-Life Books' annual summary of the news as prepared by the Time magazine staff.

For the observers, 1969 was a year of cautious middle-of-the-road government in Washington; of growing dissatisfaction with the lingering war in Vietnam; of rising inflation and a slumping stock market; of worsening world tensions in many areas — the Middle East, the China-Russia border, Southeast Asia, Northern Ireland, etc.; of an awakened interest in ecology and our environment; of a widening in the gap between the generations; of declining interest in civil rights; of increased hostility between the President and a Democratic-controlled Congress.

There was, of course, one spectacular "spot news" story that rivaled 1968's biggest events — the first visit by earthmen to the moon.

And there were many lesser stories — about personalities, the cinema, the theater, literature, sports, business, fashions, aviation, politics, the courts, all of which are covered by "The Year in Review."

For Time, 1969 was a year that "began in an atmosphere of transitional tolerance" and ended "on a note of acrimony," perhaps typified by Vice President Spiro Agnew's bellicosity.

Time-Life, of course, has immense resources for illustrating this kind of book, and uses them freely and wisely here. It also provides a day-by-day chronology of the major news events of the year.

Despite the annoyance one sometimes experiences with the Time staff's supreme conceit in its own cleverness and infallibility, the book is unquestionably a valuable candidate for the reference shelf, well worth the space and price.

MEREDITH PRESS has put out a new edition of its "Better Homes and Gardens Handyman's Book," a volume which its publisher says has already sold more than 1,850,000 copies in its original version.

The new edition retains the ring-bound format, but the smudge-resistant hardcover is now an eye-catching red, and the 400 pages of contents reflect new developments in home maintenance products and techniques. The indexing, too, has been improved.

This attractive, useful book for the do-it-yourselfer, heavily and effectively illustrated, is reasonably priced at $6.95.

RANDOM HOUSE has launched a new, black-oriented literary magazine in a softcover book format entitled Amistad with Charles F. Harris and John A. Williams as its editors. The first issue of the magazine, which will be published biannually at the outset and probably later become a quarterly, features a selection from a new George Davis novel, Williams' "An Interview with Chester Himes" and Calvin C. Hernton's "The Ordeal of James Baldwin." The price is $1.95 per copy.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SPANISH SEASON by Bernard Oldsey; Harcourt, Brace & World, 371 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

When restless English professor Curtis Fielding accepts a Fulbright Award to teach in Spain, he also undertakes two other Iberian missions.

One is to write a magazine article about the relationship of the Spanish people to the American servicemen in their midst. The other, for a friend, to look into the death, supposedly a highway accident, of a young airman stationed in Spain. The family has received letters hinting that the death might not have been accidental.

Bernard Oldsey, himself a college English teacher, has done a splendid job of taking Fielding over the twisted route that he must travel to conduct that investigation, involving him with an interesting assortment of Spaniards and Americans-in-Spain, including the inevitable beautiful women, and with racketeers and killers.

Spanish geography and character are well depicted, and the sterile atmosphere created by its totalitarian government also permeates this excellent suspense novel.

Story Of Midways Offers Readers A Pleasant Escape

CARNIVAL by Arthur Lewis; Trident Press, 315 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

You'll be amazed. You'll be delighted. You'll see wonders: daredevils, snake charmers, freaks and kootch dancers.

Just step into your bookstore and buy "Carnival" — a journey to places where men are men and women, too, are bearded.

The Tattooed Lady is here with the Three-Eyed Man. The Midway lures the "marks" to play its games and the "tips" to watch its shows.

Carnivals are bigger and better than ever (if better is the word), according to author Lewis. And there are more of them now. A thousand "carnies" operate in the U.S. and Canada, mostly in the East and Midwest. Lewis travelled with many of them during 1968. Some are big operations with Midways a half-mile long. Others are tiny, sleazy and usually near bankruptcy.

The big carnies operate fair and square; some small carnies dare not play the same town twice. Most games and shows are concessions, called "privileges" in the lingo of the carnival. The operators pay a percentage to the owner. These concessionaires furnish most of the anecdotes and episodes for the narrative. They are an oddball lot for the most part — uneducated and sometimes misanthropic. But Lewis writes unabashedly in favor of carnie people, if not of carnie life. He sympathizes especially with the freaks who find social acceptance in the carnival world where elsewhere they would be kept out of sight by shamed relatives.

Carnies large and small have problems with the police, some of them deserved. But the gendarmes tend to be avaricious and payoffs are made almost everywhere, and especially in Brockton, Mass.

Some games and shows net their operators up to $50,000 for six months work.

Some shows are for real and dangerous — like sword swallowing. Sword swallowers have died from injuries caused by a cough during their act.

Other shows, like the Bearded Lady, are usually a fake.

Don't ever box a chimpanzee — even if you weigh 200 pounds to his 60 pounds. He may knock your teeth out while tearing your clothes off. All within 20 seconds.

"Carnival" is fast, funny reading, and a pleasant escape to a different world.

THOMAS MORAN'S depiction of Lake Tahoe is reproduced as one of the many illustrations in "The Pacific Tourist," which appeared in the 1880s as "an illustrated trans-continental guide of travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean" and which has now been reprinted in a $2.95 facsimile edition by Bounty, a division of Crown Publishers. Frederick E. Shearer edited into the book a wealth of information about the geography, the life and the transportation of the time, and the facsimile copies are certain to have a considerable appeal for students of Americana, particularly for rail buffs saddened by the rapid demise of our once proud passenger trains.

The Man Behind The Legend Of Lawrence Of Arabia

THE SECRET LIVES OF LAWRENCE OF ARABIA by Phillip Knightley and Colin Simpson; McGraw-Hill, 333 pages, $8.85. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

The decisive battles of the first World War were fought in France — the bloody trench-trading of Verdun, the Marne, the Somme. The battle that captured the imagination of the English-speaking world was hardly decisive—it was a sideshow—led by an anachronistic romantic, Col. T. E. Lawrence.

The Arab "revolt in the desert" broke the Ottoman Empire, promised Arabian independence and thrust into prominence Lawrence of Arabia, more a legend in the "Beau Geste" tradition of P. C. Wren than a man.

In their efforts to portray the man behind the legend, Knightley and Simpson have written a fascinating biography of a complex human, as well as providing new insights into an extremely confusing historical period. The authors, correspondents for the London Sunday Times, are beneficiaries of good fortune in having new sources of information made available to them—Lawrence's papers; private personal materials of people close to Lawrence, and classified British documents—hitherto forbidden to researchers.

Lawrence of Arabia, spokesman for the Arabs, becomes a myth before our eyes and on the basis of quite convincing evidence becomes Lawrence of the Foreign Office, whose first loyalty was consistently to the cause of British imperialism.

The description of Lawrence at the end of the war trying to serve British, Arab and Zionist interests all at the same time is spellbinding.

Lawrence comes through as an extremely competent person of many dimensions—military campaigner, foreign policy-maker and administrator and poet-philosopher. But even such a "Renaissance Man" could be stretched too thin and Lawrence's wartime experiences and strains plus the post-war frustrations of having his Mid-East policy urgings rejected brought him near to madness. He fled into the ranks of the Royal Air Force and the Tank Corps to lose and degrade himself without ever losing touch with the mighty he had known when he was at his romantic pinnacle.

Historically, the book gives a well-documented picture of the wide variety of motives influencing British policy in the Middle East, most of which had nothing to do with the welfare of the inhabitants. As for the results of such meddling of West in East, the authors are quite specific: "The whole area, marked with bitterness inherited from Britain's 'war-time Eastern adventure,' still presents the same melancholy and alarming picture which Churchill saw in 1921."

For this reviewer the authors were much more successful as historians than as psychiatrists. Their efforts to unravel Lawrence's psyche were less convincing than their analysis of his role and Imperialist Britain's in the Middle Eastern politics at a time when both oil and Zionism were becoming major factors in that area.

Some Fun With The Therapists

GAMES ANALYSTS PLAY by Dr. Martin Shepard and Marjorie Lee; Putnam, 189 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Described by its publisher, G. P. Putnam's Sons, as "a much-needed, long-overdue bomb under the seat of the psychoanalytic establishment with its rigid, unchanging techniques and attitudes," the book, "Games Analysts Play" pokes satirical fun at therapists and their methods.

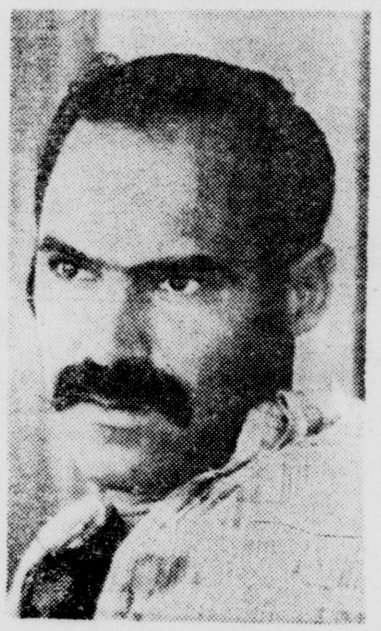
But it is also intended, its co-authors say, to offer some genuine and cautionary understanding for patients of psychotherapy and thus aid them in a wise selection of their therapists.

Yet another objective is to awaken the therapists themselves to some of the pitfalls and inanities of their profession.

The authors are Dr. Martin Shepard, consulting psychiatrist to the New York City Department of Corrections and a private practitioner, and Marjorie Lee, novelist and veteran writer in the field of mental health.

And despite their lightheartedness as they discuss such games played by analysts with their patients as "Tell Me a Dream" (to deny boredom), "I Wish You Could Hear a Tape of Yourself Three Years Ago" (to justify fees) and "You're a Victim of Countertransference" (for second-rounders), and with their fellow analysts, the co-authors maintain their book has an underlying serious purpose and benefit.

"The traditional pretense, or game structure, in much therapy today, is, although safe in its wide professional acceptance, the brick wall between treatment and resolution," they declare. "With further education and self-searching, we must grow — so that one day we may discover the wasteful overarmament in our human psyches. It will be with this realization that we drop our iron-clad defenses, to find that there is little need for our crippling fears after all."



CO-AUTHORS of "Games Analysts Play" are Marjorie Lee, professional writer, and Dr. Martin Shepard, psychiatrist.

New Work On Bison: Good Notes, But Bad Book

THE BUFFALO by Francis Haines; Crowell, 226 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

It takes more than knowledge of a subject to make a book.

Francis Haines, retired history professor, has made the American bison his special hobby, and is recognized as an authority on it. But his new volume, "The Buffalo," billed as "the story of the American bison and their hunters from prehistoric times to the present," reads more like a series of notes from which a book might be written than like the finished product.

There is much information about the bison, but it takes more than information to make a book.

BOISE CASCADE

New On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

Here's what the important jazz and rock record label Atlantic has been doing lately. . .

MARION WILLIAMS — "The New Message" — Atlantic SD 8228:

ROBERTA FLACK — "First Take" — Atlantic SD 8230:

Two magnificent new black gal singers, the first in a pop-gospel bag with tunes by Bob Dylan and The Rascals as well as the more traditional gospel tunes, the second more of a jazz vocalist, but one of wide-ranging versatility covering everything from a beautiful Spanish song to Leonard Cohen's "Hey That's No Way to Say Goodbye." "Compared to What" is another hard-hitting contemporary protest song. The orchestral backing for both Miss Williams and Miss Flack is provided with great taste by William Fischer.

"THE BEST OF CARLA THOMAS" — Atlantic SD 8232:

The current vogue of "Best of .. ." albums provides a fine opportunity for record buyers to simplify their choices and at the same time enter some musical territories they might not otherwise explore. Carla's soul duets with the late Otis Redding turned this writer on, and here are 14 of her best tracks from over the last 10 years to sample her solo work in the land of soul inspiration.

MABEL MERCER AND BOBBY SHORT — "Second Town Hall Concert" — Atlantic SD 2-605:

Two more black vocalists, but working not in the soul, gospel or even jazz areas, but in that small inbred and super-sophisticated musical area known as the New York intimate show tune. Neither Short nor Miss Mercer have what one would call great voices. The whole interest is in their unique, highly-polished treatment of the often rare Broadway material by such stand-bys as Vernon Duke, Cole Porter, Cy Coleman and Alec Wilder. An attempt at being "with-it" is introduced with such modern hits as "Both Sides Now," and Lennon & McCartney's "Goodnight."

This double-disc set will surely do better sales-wise on the East Coast, but there is a great deal of fascination in it for the ordinary listener who is not privy to the hot-house world of the Broadway theater song.

HERBIE MANN — "Concerto Grosso in D Blues" — with Symphonic Orchestra conducted by William Fischer — Atlantic SD 1540:

It's a bit late to startle the musical world with experiments in combined jazz and the classics at this point, but Mann and Fischer have put together a very successful half-hour excursion in the title number of this LP.

Often the straight symphony musicians in this type of combination just don't "feel it" and the results are rigid and unswinging. The 80 members of the Berlin orchestra behind flutist Mann and his quintet get the point excitingly, however. The piece is not avant-garde, but has much intensity and feeling. The three tracks on Side 2 are interesting too, for the Quintet is increased by addition of brass ensembles or double string quartets for a swinging symphonic sound.

"Wailing Wall" was a standout here.

IRON BUTTERFLY — "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida" — Atco SD 33-250:

This top-selling rock album has been around for a while but has only just found its way to my turntable. Iron Butterfly has a rather acidy-rock "sound" but with more of a beat than many similar groups. The title tune is a 17-minute "trip" that begins to pall musically for this listener part way through, but who am I to argue with a Gold Record award?

ARS NOVA — "Sunshine & Shadows" — Atlantic SD 8221:

Either the second or third release by a versatile six-man rock group.

Ars Nova is one of the many groups expanding their music beyond the strictures of standard rock. The classics are a big influence, as their name implies, but so are bossa nova, blues, Oriental music, Spanish guitar, you name it.

"Walk on the Sand" is a sensuous and lengthy cross-fertilization of rock and bossa nova, and "Rubbish" reminds

Some Basic Hand Tools Are Necessity

Handyman's Page

By ANDY LANG

Even if you are only a once-in-a-while do-it-yourselfer around the home, you simply cannot do without certain hand tools.

High on the list of these is the wrench. But the word wrench encompasses objects of so many different shapes and sizes that some of them appear to belong to some other family of tools. The hex head wrench, also known as the allen head, seems far removed for instance, from the adjustable wrench with which most of us are familiar. But their function is similar: to tighten and loosen; in one case, nuts and bolts, in the other, headless setscrews.

THE ADJUSTABLE wrench, which includes the so-called monkey wrench, has flat jaws designed for gripping nuts and bolts with flat surfaces. One jaw can be moved by means of an adjusting nut. When using this wrench, it should be placed on to the head of a nut or bolt so that the force will be applied to the back of the handle, thus relieving the strain on the adjustable jaw.

Similar in appearance to the adjustable wrench is the pipe wrench, one jaw of which also moves by turning a nut. But the pipe wrench has toothed jaws, meant for holding round items. Too often it is used on nuts, chewing them out of shape so that they cannot be turned with an adjustable wrench. When used on a pipe, as it should be, a pipe wrench should be used with a partner; one wrench for holding, one for turning. A sure way to ruin a pipe fitting is to attempt to turn a pipe with a single wrench. When a plumber or other mechanic finds that space will not permit him to turn a pipe wrench properly, he uses a chain-strap wrench, but this is a specialized tool which most home owners usually do not require.

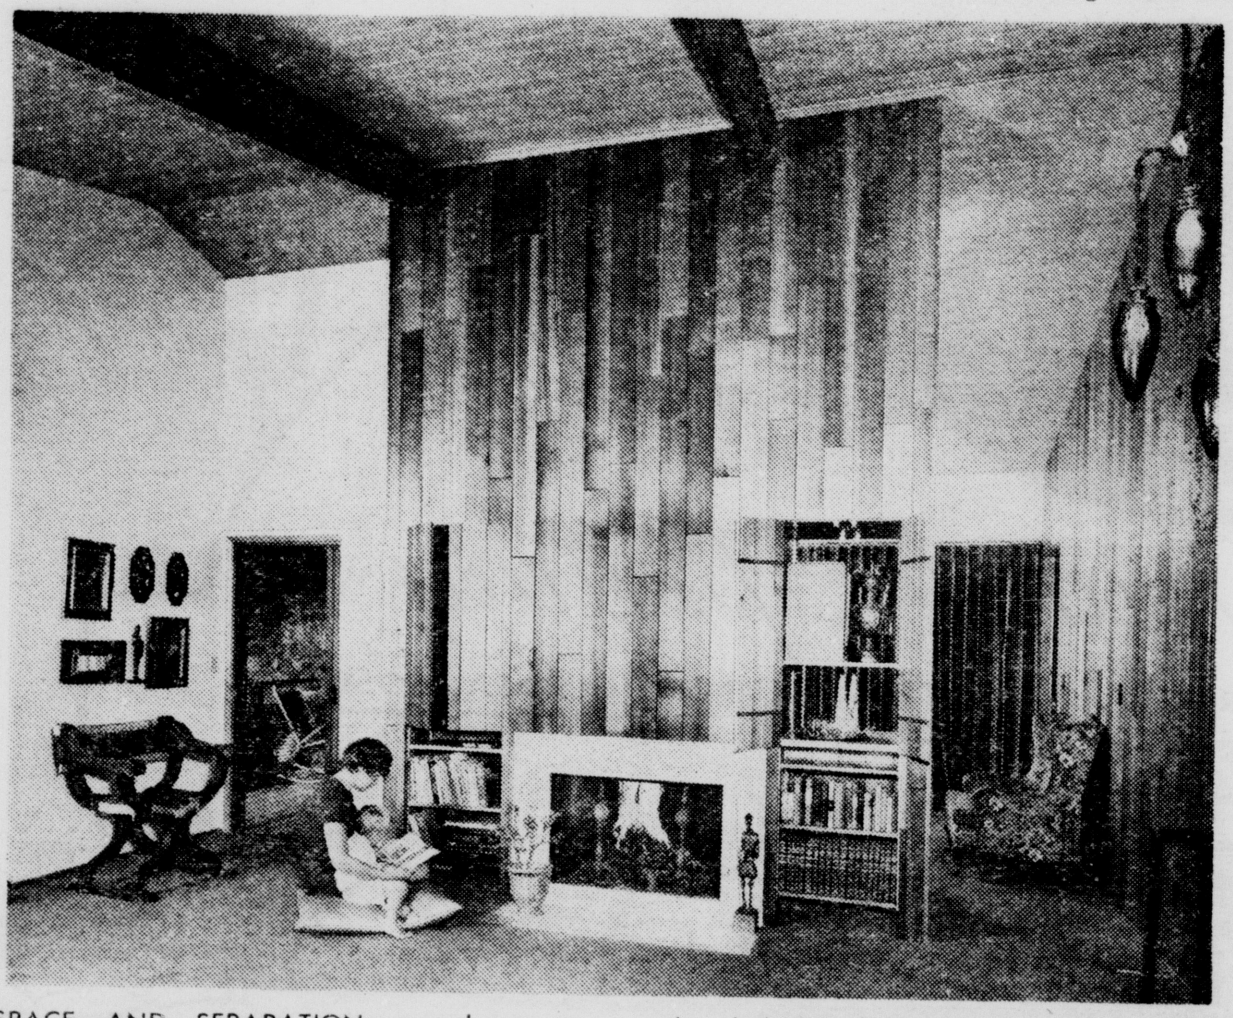
There are many varieties of the adjustable wrench, one of which has a self-adjusting arrangement. And then there are the open end wrenches with non-adjustable jaws. They usually have different-sized openings at the ends. With a set of these, an opening can be found for virtually any sized nut or bolthead. A combination wrench, also non-adjustable, has an open end and a closed or box end.

BECOMING increasingly popular with do-it-yourselfers, especially those who make automobile repairs, are the socket wrenches, which usually come in sets or kits. One end of a socket wrench has teeth on the inside to grip a nut or bolt. On the other end is an opening into which a handle fits to provide the turning force. There are many different types of these for special purposes. The main asset of socket wrenches is that they permit work to be done in cramped quarters where other wrenches could not be used.

Perhaps you do so little work around the house that you can get by with a single adjustable wrench. But whether you buy one wrench or 20, purchasing quality is a good investment. A well-made wrench will outlast you.

Some Combinations For Indoor Growing

Professionally grown combination plants — three or four "go-together" varieties in the same container — make attractive spring decorations for table centerpieces, shelves and mantles. Some winning combinations, in large, standard or three-quarter clay pots, include Boston "yellow daisy" pot mums and flowering maple; and ferns, with a "prayer plant."



SPACE AND SEPARATION are keys to livability. Here a fireplace wall divides the living room from a small den. There's red cedar shelving for books and music with inexpensive random length panel boards that create an informal feeling.

Clever Design Can Expand Home And Give Separation

The American family craves expansion—visually, mentally, and in terms of activities and the space that's needed for them.

The average home, after all, has to accommodate two sexes and several age groups.

Elbow room is not so dificult to achieve if you can afford to ignore the square-foot-dollar factor, but few of us can. That's where the "think-tank" sessions come in for would-be homeowners, their architects and builders.

IF SMALL BOYS want to rough-and-tumble, older girls play house or primp, and parents want to read or put in overtime at home, there obviously has to be some degree of separation.

One way to find it is vertically. Even two or three short steps can lift a living room from the hubbub of the rest of the house. A small part of that area, tucked into a corner behind a divider wall becomes a really secluded den.

The wall may have other purposes, too. A fireplace there will serve both areas and built-ins will hold books, hi-fi equipment and portable television set, that can be swiveled.

A vaulted ceiling, good window treatment, and an accessible deck also expand the space.

LUMBER ON interior walls ties the floor plan together. Random cedar, finished clear, exudes cheer and informality. And (back to the budget) it is considerably less expensive than uniform length boards. And when built-in cabinet doors are fitted with touch latches and hidden hardware, the narrow cracks around the openings are all but invisible.

A ceiling of unfinished knotty pine provides a good balance for the cedar in color and in texture. Carried through to other areas in an open-roof system, it provides a fine balance between separation and togetherness.

Plantings In Pots Dress Up A Patio

Gardening in pots has become an important phase of landscape design.

This isn't surprising, as pots full of color add a colorful dimension to their surroundings—especially outdoor living areas such as patios and terraces.

Some veteran gardeners go a step further by bringing potted color into bloom in an out-of-the way garden spot so it can be moved into the spotlight wherever and whenever the situation calls for it. With such a system you merely sink the pot in the ground and instantly achieve a colorful effect.

IT'S POSSIBLE to enjoy pots of color from now to early winter.

Bright orange, yellow and gold calendulas are cool season performers which will carry the color standard into early summer. There are many others ready to take over when these fade.

Nurseries will have several sizes of marguerites—from small plants in nursery flats to landscape-size containers which probably will be in bloom now. They'll flower until frost. The yellow and white varieties are very popular for their daisy-like flowers and continuous color.

Don't overlook the unusual pink forms and doubles.

MARIGOLDS—especially the dwarf and intermediate growers—are reliable choices for pots; as are petunias and the California favorite—geraniums. In small containers try cockscomb with bright red or gold plumes through summer.

For shady locations, rely on coleus with brilliant markings and hues of complimentary colors in its foliage, and impatiens to fill-the-bill. Fibrous begonias will take part shade. Pink, white and red flowers cover the plants into winter.

Check your nurseryman's offering of flowering plants for growing in pots. He'll have a wide range of plants and containers to choose from.

A Beet That Doesn't Bleed

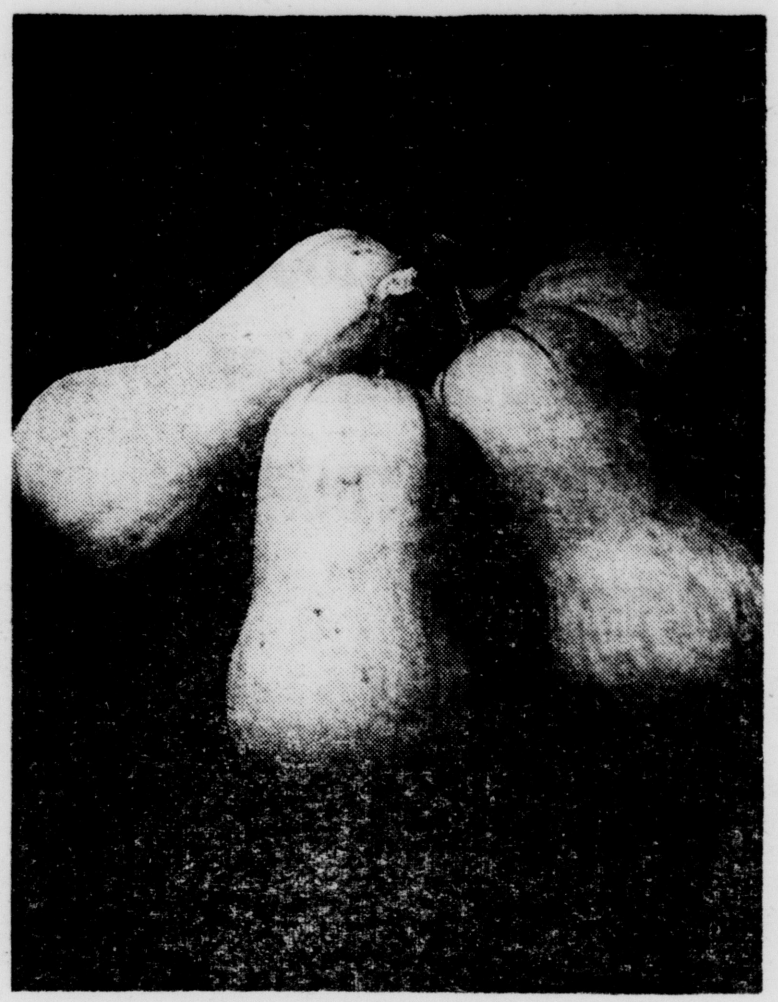
A golden beet?

That is what the W. Atlee Burpee Co. says it has come up with in its new introduction for 1970.

The Golden Beet, says Burpee, does not bleed like the ordinary red beet.

Furthermore, its tops are touted as being better tasting than spinach when cooked for greens.

It is also described as "just as easy to grow as any other beet."



MARINITES can plant the new winter squash, the Waltham Butternut, by seed now and anticipate some good eating later this year. It is a product of Prof. Robert E. Young of the University of Massachusetts Waltham Field Station. Its developer says it is larger than other Butternuts and produces fruit that are virtually free of crooks. Each plant also yields more fruit, and these are more uniform in size. The flesh inside is richer in color and tastes better when cooked. And finally, the Waltham Butternut keeps better than does its ancestors. If your nurseryman's or market's seed rack does not now contain the Waltham Butternut, keep looking. Being new, they aren't yet available everywhere. But they should be showing up.

If Ground Is Warm, It's Dahlia-Planting Time

When spring's sunshine and balmy breezes have warmed the soil of your garden, it's time to plant dahlia tubers.

You'll be investing your money and time in one of the most versatile of flower families. They produce summer-long color in great quantity and in a wide variety of flower sizes and shapes on plants that are dwarf, medium and tall.

Dahlias come in such a multitude of models that there are a dozen or more different classifications.

THE SMALLEST are the pompons and the largest are the formal and informal decorative dahlias. These last are more for show by the hobbyist than for general garden use.

If you plan to grow the massive decorative types, plant them in a bed by themselves. They don't take kindly to competition, and show off better unto themselves.

Dahlia tubers are available right now for planting, and besides the many flower forms available, the range of colors is a gardener's delight. From the purest white through bright yellows and reds to the deepest violet, the colors are so appealing they're practically irresistible.

THE COLORS blend nicely with other garden shrubs, annuals and perennials—complimenting the summer and fall garden in a striking manner.

Dahlias thrive best under coastal conditions where humidity is high and the soil is sandy. Inland, they want plenty of water.

Create favorable growing conditions by incorporating a nurserymen's planter mix with the soil when you set out the tubers.

Nurserymen can provide cultural advice, which includes immediate staking of the larger varieties, and monthly feeding—after the plants have become established and show good growth.

FOR SHOW-SIZE blooms, pinch back growth and disbud the plants. More flowers and increased garden color are to be had by pinching the plants a few times to encourage bushy growth, than letting flower buds form and bloom where they may without nipping them off.

Take a special look, too, at the dwarf dahlias, now available as inexpensive seedling transplants which, during the coming months, will reward you with dazzling garden color all summer-long.

You can stretch your gardening dollar when you use these dwarf dahlias to fill-in large beds and wide borders. Each plant covers about a square foot—and provides a full season of bloom.

Nurserymen suggest combining dwarf dahlias with a background of giant marigolds or zinnias.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Now is the time to get those annuals started, whether you are planting seeds or seedlings.
- This is planting time, too, for tuberous begonias, gladiolus, cannas and dahlia bulbs.
- If you forgot to plant that shade tree during the winter months, it is not too late. Nurseries have container-grown trees that may safely be transplanted now.
- Except when late spring rains help out, it is time to begin that regular lawn and garden watering schedule. And water deeply while you are at it.
- For a striking addition to a shaded patio, grow coleus in hanging baskets. Their rich foliage color is enhanced by handsome markings.
- As spring-blooming shrubs go out of bloom, perform your pruning chores.
- Be on the alert for aphids, and get after them at once with the proper chemicals should these pests appear.
- Snails and slugs, too, are stirring. Put out ample bait for these.

Peacock Gap Plane Crash Kills Private Pilot

Plane Narrowly Misses Houses

An attorney from Los Ranchitos was killed today when his single-engine plane slammed into a hill near the intersection of San Marino Drive and San Pedro Road in Peacock Gap, narrowly missing a dozen homes.

The victim, Steven J. Dedina, had taken off from Smith Brothers Ranch Airport in San Rafael shortly before 9:30 a.m., reportedly headed for San Francisco, when he radioed a distress signal to Hamilton Air Force Base, and turned back.

Witnesses said the plane hit the embankment in the middle of a densely populated area under full

Astronauts, Nixon Head For Hawaii

ABOARD USS IWO JIMA (AP)—As the Apollo 13 astronauts journeyed to Hawaii today, President Nixon presented the Medal of Freedom to the space agency flight control team and said the troubled flight was "not a failure," because it "reached the hearts of millions of people."

Standing in front of a model of the moon lander, in a stopover at Houston, Tex., President Nixon presented the nation's highest civilian award to the mission control team which guided the crippled Apollo 13 flight safely back to earth. (See also photo, page 18.)

He said he was "speaking for people all over the world" in thanking the space workers "who made it possible for the astronauts to return to earth."

Nixon said thousands of telegrams and letters from thousands of people all over the world had poured into the White House in response to the astronauts' problems in space.

"Out of this," he said of Apollo 13, "We recognize that it was not a failure. They (the astronauts) reached the hearts of millions of people."

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., John L. Swigert Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr., meanwhile, head for Hawaii. There they will reunite with their families and greet the President.

Mrs. Lovell, three of her children, Mrs. Haise and her three children and the parents of Swigert, a bachelor, accompanied the presidential party from the space center. They fly to Hawaii aboard the presidential jet to greet the astronauts.

Mrs. Nixon, wearing a yellow suit dress, accompanied the president.

As the ceremony began, Dr. Thomas Paine, administrator of the space agency, introduced the wives and children of the astronauts.

Mrs. Lovell he described as "a very brave lady who waited on earth while her husband set forth on four space missions."

A score or more demonstrators stood in the crowd of several hundred as the president arrived at the space center holding such signs as "Poor people care about astronauts. Who cares about poor people?"

Sheriff's officers quietly escorted 15 of the demonstrators

SAUSALITO SCHOOL TAKEOVER SOUGHT

By PAT ANGLE

Sausalito Citizens for Excellence in Integrated education asked the Marin County Superintendent of Schools yesterday to take over management of the Sausalito School District "immediately" in the wake of a two-day strike by 58 of the district's 121 employees.

The CEIE, in a letter to County Supt. Virgil S. Hollis, said the takeover was necessary "due to the chaotic conditions" which the organization says exist in the district.

Hollis could not be reached for comment on the request, but Lawrence A. Lindberg, director of instructional services for the county, said the schools office plans a careful study of the Sausalito situation over the weekend.

"We hope to have a decision on the CEIE petition sometime Monday," he said, adding he had visited Martin Luther King School yesterday and found "everything in order' and the school "functioning smoothly."

Before making any decision on the request, Lindberg said, the county schools office will try to "learn the desires of the Sausalito school board and the district administration and talk to as many persons from the community as possible. There are many factors to be considered.

Board President Nathaniel Johnson also could not be reached for comment, and Vice President David E. Freedheim (who, with Trustee Martha Freebairn-Smith is facing recall in a June 2 election initiated by the CEIE) said he would refrain from making any statement at present.

When told about the proposed takeover of the district by the county, James T. Toliver Jr., vice principal at King School, said "that's good news," but declined to explain his statement.

Sausalito Supt. Phillip W. Schneider disagreed with the CEIE assessment of chaotic conditions in the district's four schools. Although he acknowledged about 161 of the district's 708 students were absent yesterday, Schneider said the schools were operating smoothly.

"It is unfortunate that a number of children are being hurt by not attending school," the superintendent said, "But those who have come are being quite responsible under a minimum amount of supervision."

He said students handled office work at King School yesterday "and we received many compliments on how well the youngsters were taking care of telephone calls and visitors."

Substitutes are filling in for absent teachers, he said.

Schneider called upon CEIE members "to offer their assistance to our schools during this difficult period, if they are genuinely concerned about educa-

Bolinas-Stinson Trustees Hire New Superintendent

The Bolinas-Stinson School District board, by a 3-1 vote, last night named a Southern California educator as new superintendent.

He is Lester M. Horning, 53, curriculum coordinator and administrative assistant of the 12,000-student Colton Joint Unified School District in Riverside County. He will be given a two-year contract at $16,000 per year, according to Jessie Reasoner, trustee representative.

Horning was the board's second choice for the post—the first, John A. O'Shea of Yuba City, having decided against taking the post after the board selected him in late March. Horning was selected from among three educators under

Marin's mental health program should be under a single organization with a direct line of command, instead of the present system of administration by the county and Marin Hospital District.

This is the recommendation made by the Marin County council of the Bay Area Social Planning Council in a report to the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. The Marin council is headed by chairman Lillian D. Kettenbach.

The evaluation and recommendations were made by a special evaluation committee headed by Justice Richard M. Sims Jr. of Belvedere, associate justice of the State Court of Appeal.

While a single organization and one line of authority is the ideal method, the report said, it concedes that the county may have to live with dual administration for the time being.

That being the case, the evaluation committee recommended the following:

1. The county and the hospital district clearly define the new administrative arrangement and relationships between the

THE DAY THE TRAIN FELL OVER

Point Reyes Station was the picture of bucolic calm in the first dawn of this date 64 years ago. And then at 5:13 a.m. the earth shuddered, much of San Francisco fell down and began burning, and damage was terrific all along the San Andreas Fault—which runs through the Point Reyes area. But as this historic photo by John Ault, electrical superintendent of the old North Shore Railroad shows, probably the worst damage was to Old Engine 14, narrow-gauge steamer stopped overnight on the run from the North Coast to Sausalito. The train's crew, asleep in the baggage car, got shaken up; Point Reyes Station residents lost some crockery, but their frame houses mostly weathered the great quake well.

Killer Tornadoes Rip Texas Plains

CLARENDON, Tex. (UPI)—A cluster of tornadoes laced with rain and hail roamed the flat farm country of the Texas Panhandle early today, killing at least 22 persons, injuring hundreds more and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Twisters, too many to count, struck at least 11 cities and towns in the darkness of night over a 200-mile stretch from the tiny village of Whiteface near the New Mexico border to Pampa, about 60 miles from the Oklahoma line.

One tornado ripped through a sleepy trailer park on a lake shore outside Clarendon at 3:30 a.m. Twelve persons were killed there, and 150 house trailers were tossed about like toys and destroyed.

Around the tornadoes, winds of more than 100 miles an hour raked towns from the Red River Valley to the tip of the Texas Panhandle. Gusts blew in storefronts and twisters ripped out gas and power lines and knocked out telephone lines across hundreds of miles.

"There are people getting killed and injured all over the country," said Carroll Clark, a state police dispatcher at Amarillo, 60 miles northwest of Clarendon.

C. O. Layne, Texas Coordinator for defense and disaster relief in Austin, said damage was estimated at daybreak at $5 million. He ordered Civil Defense crews into the "tornado alley" to clean up and help the hundreds either injured or homeless.

Sausalito Regent Loses Pro-Nader Proxy Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Regents of the University of California have decided to back the management of General Motors in a proxy fight with consumer crusader Ralph Nader to seat environmentalists on the auto firm's board of directors.

The university owns 100,000 shares of General Motors stock which is worth $7 million.

Regent Frederick Dutton of Sausalito asked the board Friday to vote its shares at the annual stockholders' meeting next month in favor of Nader's "campaign to make GM responsible."

Dutton received no support for his proposal and then suggested the Regents hold a public hearing on how to vote the stock, but that idea was voted down overwhelmingly.

Dutton said other public institutions, including the University of Pennsylvania, have decided to support Nader's proposals.

Nader's plan would add three environmental specialists to the GM board and would have the corporation conduct a study on whether it is doing enough for consumers and minority groups.

Dutton said the university should manage its investments in a way that is "profitable but also good for the citizens."

He questioned whether General Motors "is doing what it should for its size as a good citizen."

Regent Edwin E. Pauley an oil company executive who heads the committee which manages the university's $300 million in investments, told the Regents it was routine to back management.

"I think it would be very unbecoming to investigate one company," he said.

Regent John E. Kanaday, a Lockheed Aircraft Co. executive, said Dutton's proposal was "ridiculous, ludicrous and politically-oriented."

The Regents also appointed a special committee to study a series of proposals on better utilizing the university's facilities that were suggested by Regent Norton Simon, who said $70 million a year could be saved.

Simon's proposals included making the summer quarter mandatory instead of optional as at present, reducing the time undergraduates must attend from four years to 3½ years, changing the investment policy to get higher returns and better use of libraries and other buildings.

"The various savings I have outlined total over $70 million per year," said Simon, a candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator.

Reagan told newsmen after the meeting that he supported Simon's proposals.

The Regents also appointed Dr. Harold M. Agnew, a 49-year-old physicist, director of the Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory. He will succeed Dr. Norris E. Bradbury effective Sept. 1.

Agnew is currently a weapons division leader. Bradbury has been director of the lab since 1945, when he succeeded the late Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

The university operates the laboratory under a contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lebanese Demonstrate As U.S. Aide Arrives

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco arrived in Beirut, Lebanon, today on the third leg of his Middle East peace mission. Arab students protested the arrival of the American diplomat by burning an American flag, stoning the U.S. embassy and chanting "Sisco Go Home!"

Elaborate security measures were imposed at Beirut International Airport as Sisco's chartered Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 touched down on a flight from Cyprus. He had flown to the Mediterranean island from Tel Aviv aboard a camouflaged Israeli air force transport plane.

Security guard armed with submachine guns were posted atop the terminal building as Sisco stepped from the jetliner and boarded a Lebanese army helicopter for the three mile flight to the home of U.S. Ambassador Dwight Porter at Yarze on the outskirts of Beirut. Another helicopter escorted the flight.

Tentative plans were made for Sisco to drive to the nearby Baabda Palace for talks with President Charles Helou.

In Amman, U.S. Ambassador Harrison M. Symmes was preparing to leave Jordan at the request of King Hussein's government. The U.S. State Department agreed to recall Symmes at the insistence of the Jordanians who objected to his reaction to the anti-American demonstrations.

Symmes criticized Jordan for failure to protect the U.S. embassy and information center against the demonstrators, who tore down the American flag at the embassy and burned the library. Sisco's visit was canceled at his recommendation.

Political sources said the Jordanian government felt misunderstood and humilated. They said that to ask Jordanian policemen to use arms in defense of American property against Palestinians or fellow Jordanians was an invitation to civil war.

Security forces felt they were perfectly capable of ensuring Sisco's safety and to call off the visit suggested an abdication of power to the guerrillas, who had apparently had this objective all along, the sources said.

An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv announced that an Israeli patrol killed two Arab guerrillas one mile from the Lebanese border near the Israeli village of Malkiyya.

In Amman, a Jordanian military spokesman said Israeli forces fired mortars and medium artillery across the border at Jordanian troops north of the Dead Sea Friday night, but there were no Jordanian casualties.

Pro-Kremlin Patriarch Alexius Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Patriarch Alexius, the leader of the Russ Orthodox church, died Friday night from a "sudden cardiac deficiency," the news agency Tass said today. He was 92 years old.

Alexius, the Patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, has been the spiritual leader of the Russian Orthodoxy since 1945.

Tass said the Patriarch would be replaced temporarily by Metropolitan Pimen of Krutitsky and Colomna, member of the Holy Synod of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Funeral arrangements for the late Patriarch were not immediately disclosed.

Alexius was born as Sergei V. Simansky in Moscow in 1877 and was graduated from the law school of Moscow University in 1899. Subsequently he entered the Moscow Ecclesiastical Academy. He became a monk under the name of Alexius in 1902 and was ordained a priest and deacon. He became Bishop of Tikhvin in 1913.

After the revolution, Bishop Alexius consistently supported policies of the Soviet government and the Soviet Communist Party. In 1922 he governed the See of Petrograd (now Leningrad) and was appointed archbishop of Nocgorod in 1927. In 1933 he became Metropolitan of Leningrad after he was elected to the Holy Synod.

Since he became in 1945 patriach of Moscow and all Russia, the top post in the Russian Orthodox hierarchy, he became active in the peace movement but followed the soviet policy line.

Alioto Is Winner In Bay Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Regional Water Qulaity Board lost an appeal Friday seeking the renewal of sewage connection bans in the city until it improves waste disposal.

Superior Court Judeg Carl H. Allen reaffirmed his earlier ruling which lifted a ban on new connections for $98.9 million worth of building projects in San Francisco.

Mayor Alioto, emerged from court Friday apparently satisfied with the ruling, but still angry over the rift between the board and the city.

"It's disgraceful, unconstitutional conduct that has been going on in connection with the building halt," he said. "We have to fight to keep an ongoing program from being stopped."

The water quality board had previously named San Francisco as the principal polluter in the bay and slapped the ban on sewage connections on March 26th.

The ban was to take effect April 26, but last week, after a meeting with Mayor Alioto, the board was partially lifted the ban allowing construction of a high school, hospital, and public housing.

Fewer In Jail

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's jail population has dropped since 1964 from about 11,500 to about 7,900, Minister of Justice, Law and Order, Desmond Lardner-Burke said.

Collier, Petris Argue Use Of Gas Tax Funds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. Raldolph Collier, chairman of the powerful Senate Transportation Committee, sees no legal need to change the State Constitution to produce more antismog research money.

But an antismog crusader, Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, whose proposal to use gasoline tax revenues to fight smog and help rapid transit is before Collier's committee, disagrees with Collier.

CITES OPINION

Collier, D-Yreka, produced a legislative counsel's opinion Friday which said state funds already are available under existing law to pay for antipollution studies.

"It is quite obvious now that such a proposed change in the constitution is not needed, as we already have the tools to work with," commented Collier, known as the "father of California's freeways."

Collier based the conclusion on an opinion by Jimmie Wing, deputy legislative counsel, who responded to a Collier query:

"It is our opinion that appropriations may be made from the State Motor Vehicle Fund for the support of the State Air Resources Board activities relating to the air pollution problem caused by motor vehicles operated on the public streets and highways."

PETRIS REPLIES

"Sen. Collier's revelation," Petris, D-Oakland, responded through an aide, "still won't ease the need to find reasonable, dependable ways for fighting air pollution."

Petris added: "The supply of extra money in the State Motor Vehicle Fund is dwindling. The same fund is needed to finance expansion of the California Highway Patrol and other growing highway needs."

Petris proposes to earmark one penny from the current 7-cents-a-gallon state gasoline tax to go for smog research and to foster development of rapid transit.

Collier has stymied such non-highway uses of gasoline tax revenues for years.

Petris said his constitutional amendment would not use revenue from the motor vehicle fund but "fuel tax money" which he said is dependent on the "growing number of motor vehicles in the state."

"The amendment is necessary," said Petris, "because it gives California a reliable source of money to fight encroaching smog."

The Petris proposal is one of several before the legislature to change the law so revenues exclusively earmarked for highways in past years may be spent for other transportation-related purposes.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Seale Trial Delay

CHICAGO (UPI)—The trial of Bobby Seale, national Black Panther party chairman, on charges of conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago has been postponed until at least June 8.

The delay was granted by U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman Friday. The government requested the postponement because Seale is facing trial in Connecticut on a charge of conspiring to murder a fellow Black Panther.

Seale had been scheduled to go on trial on the conspiracy charge next Thursday in Chicago.

Jumbo Jet Limps

LONDON (UPI)—A Trans World Airlines (TWA) 747 jet from New York limped into London's Heathrow Airport today after flying 1,300 miles on three engines, an airline spokesman said.

Few of the 341 passengers were aware of any trouble, he said, and airport authorities did not think it necessary to have crash trucks at the ready when the jet landed with its outer starboard engine out of action.

"There was a lack of oil pressure showing in the engine about two hours out of London," he said. "But it was not serious."

Alaska Rocks

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) —A strong earthquake, the third in Alaska in the past 11 days, hit about 150 miles south of here near the Kenai Peninsula at 3:51 a.m. (EST) today.

The earthquake registered 6.3 on the Richter scale.

The coastal geodetic seismic observatory at nearby Palmer said the quake was felt in the Anchorage-Palmer area as well as at Cordova and Middleton Island about 225 miles east of the quake center.

Filipinos Killed

MANILA (UPI) — Five Filipinos were killed Friday when a mortar shell exploded in a restricted training area of U.S. Marines at Subic Bay Naval Base, 45 miles northwest of Manila.

The Filipinos were reported gathering empty mortar shells at a beach near the training area when they came across one unexploded shell. Philippine military authorities said the victims apparently were extracting powder from the shell when it blew up.

White House Humor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Country and Western singing star Johnny Cash was the featured entertainer at the fourth in a series of "Evenings at the White House," and had to take some good-natured ribbing from President Nixon.

"I'm not an expert on his music," the President said Friday night. "I found that out when I told him what to play. I understand he owns a Cadillac but won't sing about it."

The reference was to Nixon's request that Cash sing the song "Welfare Cadillac." Cash declined to offer his rendition of the controversial tune.

Nixon said Cash's music "speaks to all America."

Sirhan Loses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A biography of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan can be published in spite of objections by Sirhan and his family, a court has ruled.

Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer said Friday he would not bar publication of the book, "R.F.K. must Die" by Robert B. Kaiser, because Sirhan and his family had accepted $32,615 from Kaiser for material in the book. Sirhan is on death row after being convicted of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sirhan said in a Superior Court lawsuit that information in the book would hurt appeal of his death sentence. But Schauer said there is no proof that the data is "not already in the public domain."

Fugitive Nabbed

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — James John Brynes, 42, one of the FBI's ten most wanted fugitives, is in custody in his native Los Angeles after his arrest here by FBI agents who described him as a saxophone-playing escape artist.

Byrnes, said agents, offered no resistance Friday night when he was apprehended on a Huntington Beach street. They said he was armed with a two-shot Derringer pistol.

He had been sought on federal charges of kidnaping, interstate transportation of a stolen aircraft, interstate transportation of a stolen car and interstate transportation of a firearm.

Jet Claimed U.S.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian President Nuredin Atassi said today that an Israeli Phantom jet shot down in Syria April 2 actually belonged to the U.S. Navy.

He said this was "clearcut proof of America's active involvement in Israeli aggression" against Arab countries.

Syrian army spokesman had already said the plane carried U.S. Navy colors and markings and that information on its instruments was in English. The pilot and copilot, both Israelis, were captured.

Files Still Secret

BOSTON (AP) — With litigation pending over reproduction rights of the Mary Jo Kopechne inquest papers, Judge Wilfred J. Paquet has extended indefinitely his order keeping the records secret.

The Superior Court judge said Friday the order will remain in effect as long as any litigation remains undecided over rights to reproduce the inquest transcript and the judge's report on the inquiry into the drowning of Miss Kopechne last July in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car.

Sidney R. Lipman, a professional court stenographer who made the record of testimony in the closed inquest last January before District Court Judge James A. Boyle in Edgartown, claims that under Massachusetts court practices he alone has the right to make copies of the record.

Lipman has set a price of more than $800 a copy. Edward V. Keating, clerk of Suffolk Superior Court, had copies prepared at a cost of about $75 each.

Ammo Ship Sails

MANILA (AP) — The hijacked U.S. munitions ship Columbia Eagle has departed the Subic Bay U.S. Naval base after unloading its cargo, a Navy spokesman said today. He said he did not know the ship's destination but understood it was not the United States.

The freighter, commandeered by two crewmen while en route to Thailand and forced to Cambodia, arrived at Subic Monday after being held for three weeks by Cambodian authorities.

The hijackers have requested asylum in Cambodia.

Clash In Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese government police today lobbed tear gas into a crowd of about 100 students who marched on the National Assembly to protest the arrest of 20 students who go on trial next week for alleged pro-Communist activities.

The students dispersed as police moved among them with canisters and clubs during the noon hour in downtown Saigon. There were no arrests.

Cartoonist Hunted

WALL, N.J. (UPI) — Police said today they have received no response yet to their warrant for the arrest of cartoonist Jack O'Brien, the cartoonist who draws "Sad Sack". He is wanted in connection with raids that netted eight truckloads of pornographic material.

Five persons were arrested Friday in simultareous raids at a house owned by O'Brien and a printing shop here.

Campus Cooled

ALBURQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Demonstrators at the University of New Mexico were told to "play it cool" Friday after barricading a building in which a committee heard evidence against two students charged with heckling U.S. Sen. Strom Thrumond, R-S.C.

Officials agreed to open the hearing to the public after about 100 demonstrators blocked the doors of the building on the north side of the UNM campus with boards, paper and rocks.

"Play it cool and don't start anything," the head of the state police criminal division, Maj. Hoover Wimberly, told the dissidents.

The Wrong Akron

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — An Army DC3 landed at Akron Municipal Airport Friday night with 17 West Point skydivers aboard for an exhibition, but had to take off again.

The pilot thought he had landed in Akron, N.Y. He went to a pay phone at the airport, called New York and found he had been given the wrong flight instructions.

As one of the parachutists got back on the plane he was heard to mutter, "With this kind of navigation I'm glad I'm not on an Apollo flight."

Soviet Fleet Busy

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (UPI)—Soviet naval activity in the Pacific has recently increased sharply with the deployment of warships, submarines and auxiliary vessels, the U.S. Navy Pacific Fleet headquarters announced Friday.

The Navy said a sizeable Soviet naval task force is steaming south through the Philippine Sea.

"Another Soviet naval task force is southeast of Japan heading into the northern Philippine Sea," the statement said, "and a group of naval units from the Soviet Pacific fleet is deployed in the Indian Ocean."

TROUBLE BY TELEPHONE

Cycle Accident Puts Wrong Man In Jail

A 23-year-old Forest Knolls man has taken a friend's place in Marin County Jail because he made a phone call which he thought would get them both out of trouble.

Out of jail was Jose Roberto Sanchez, 33, of Bolinas. Into jail was Robert Forgrieve Berner of 21 Resaca Avenue, who was held for Santa Barbara authorities on suspicion of grand theft and burglary in the January theft of a motorcycle from a Santa Barbara home.

Sanchez was involved in an accident at 1:45 p.m. Thursday in Bolinas while driving the motorcycle he thought belonged to Berner, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Karen Jo Munson, 23, of 481 Mesa Road, Bolinas, a passenger on the motorcycle, suffered a fractured skull and chest injuries in the accident. She was reported in poor condition today in Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit.

Sanchez was treated at the hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises, and then booked into county jail when officers discovered the vehicle was stolen.

About 6 p.m., Berner went to the jail to bail out Sanchez. While waiting at the jail, he telephoned Mert L. Baarts, highway patrol auto theft investigator, and identified himself as Christopher Morris of Santa Barbara, the real owner of the stolen motorcycle.

He told Baarts that the motorcycle had been recovered about two months ago, but he had failed to report the recovery to the highway patrol.

Discrepancies in the story made Baarts suspicious and he telephoned Santa Barbara authorities who reported the motorcycle had never been found. Highway patrol officers went to the county jail and arrested Berner, who was still waiting to bail out Sanchez.

The innocent Sanchez was released, Baarts said.

away from the ceremony site. They made no resistance but raised their fists in a defiant gesture as they were led away. Nixon gave no indication of having seen them.

Aboard the Iwo Jima Friday night, the astronauts got their first good rest in a long time.

Astronauts Lovell and Swigert indicated at a shipboard dinner Friday night that they were not always sure of that safe return.

Swigert told ship's officers attending the dinner that the best part of the flight for him was getting out of the spacecraft and seeing this carrier waiting for them.

"At times," he said, "we thought we would never see it."

Swigert noted that this was his first space flight and said, "I don't know what space flights are where all systems work well. Actually, I thought this one was normal."

Lovell, a four-time space flight veteran, recalled that returning from space on Apollo 8, "I remembered how much we don't realize what we have on earth until we leave it."

"This time, looking back and feeling just that much farther out, I was not too sure where we would end," he said.

Haise, suffering from a mild infection, did not attend the dinner. He rested in his cabin.

Girl's Nightgown Catches Fire

An 8-year-old Inverness girl was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with second and third degree burns suffered when her nightgown caught fire at her home.

The hospital said Molly Fries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Fries of Park Avenue, has burns over 35 per cent of her body.

Details of the accident, which occurred yesterday, were not known.

Motorist Hurt On Richardson Bay Span

Roger C. Earl, 28, of 192 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, was treated for multiple cuts at Marin General Hospital last night after his car first hit the guard rail and was then struck by two other cars on Highway 101 at the Richardson Bay Bridge, the California Highway Patrol said.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. The other autos were driven by George E. Wurzburg, 61, of 48 Porto Bello, San Rafael, and Raymond L. Wilson, 26, of Sebastopol.

Marin City Suspect Held on Morals

Jerry Lee Page, 25, of 175 Drake Ave., Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of statuatory rape early today after sheriff's deputies reportedly found him in his car in Marin City with a 15-year-old girl.

Bail had not been set this morning. He is to appear for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court Monday.

Car Turns Over; Driver Is Injured

A 40-year-old Petaluma resident was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital after suffering a burised back and shoulder in a 11:30 p.m. auto accident yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol quoted motorist, William R. Mosher of 1405 Sierra Drive, as saying he was westbound on Highway 116 when his auto was forced off the road near Frates Road. Mosher's car overturned.

consideration after O'Shea balked.

Trustee Warren P. Fairbanks cast the dissenting vote. He said today he objected because the board awarded Horning an annual salary of $16,000, while a brochure inviting applications for the position had said the salary would be $12,000 to $14,000.

"I think we should have called for more applications on the basis of the new salary," Fairbanks said. "We might have entered into a whole new arena of candidates."

Horning will replace Clarence B. Larison, superintendent since June 1968, who resigned under fire from the board in December. Horning will assume his duties July 1.

A graduate of San Bernardino High School and San Bernardino Junior College, Horning attended the University of California at Los Angeles and received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of Redlands. He has done graduate work at the University of Southern California.

Horning was superintendent of the Terrace Union School District from 1955 to 1966, when the district was absorbed by the Colton district.

In his letter of application, Horning said he was leaving his $20,000-a-year post in Colton because he was "concerned with air pollution in Southern California." He said that he didn't want to take a salary cut but knew he would have to make some sacrifices.

Mrs. Reasoner said the trustees talked to Horning by telephone after last night's meeting and the educator said he and his wife and daughter would live in the school district. A son attends San Jose State College.

Horning will be given no definite teaching assignment, Mrs. Reasoner said, but he will take part in the teaching program.

Tanker Sinks After Explosion

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI)—The 11,500 ton Liberian tanker Silver Ocean exploded and sank 130 miles north east of Durban early today, killing at least three crewmen.

Ten others were listed as missing.

Twenty-seven crewmen were rescued by French, British, Indian and South African ships that battled heavy seas to aid the stricken vessel.

Survivors were taken aboard the Sa Nederberg (9,535 tons) belonging to the South African Marine Corp., and headed for Lourenco Marques in Mozambique.

Spelling Bee Date

The annual spelling bee for seventh and eighth grade students of Marin's parochial schools will be held April 24 at 8 p.m. The Independent-Journal erred Tuesday in saying the event, sponsored by the San Rafael Council of the Knights of Columbus, would be held last night.

When Robert Frost graduated from high school in Lawrence, Mass., in 1892, he served as valedictorian with Elinor Miriam White, whom he married three years later.

U.S. Calls For Truck Talks; Teachers Idle

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the number of industrial workers idled as the result of wildcat strikes by truck drivers climbed past 100,000 the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has called for a meeting on Monday of Chicago carriers and union representatives.

Chicago is one of four metropolitan areas where the wildcat strikes by about 75,000 drivers are centered. Industrial layoffs in these areas and elsewhere have resulted from jammed warehouses and shortages of parts and materials.

Drivers in Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Louis and the Cleveland-Akron area of Ohio have struck to protest a proposed nationwide contract settlement which provides pay increases of $1.10 an hour over three years. The drivers now average $4 an hour.

The federal mediators reversed a hands-off policy announced three days ago regarding the Chicago dispute.

In other labor disputes, teachers continued to strike in Los Angeles and Minneapolis; and New York newspaper negotiations again appeared to be facing a newspaper shutdown.

However, a teacher strike in Muskogee, Okla., ended when teachers voted 274-50 to return to work Monday. They ended their week-long walkout when school board officials moved to submit a new desegregation plan to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

tion of our children." He said the district would welcome "any help from the group."

The employees—teachers, teacher's aides, clerical and custodial personnel—called in sick on Thursday. The absentees include most of the district's black employees.

It is believed the strikers are seeking reinstatement of a number of positions recently eliminated for next year by the board in an economy move. Also a factor in the strike is the board's decision to close Bayside in September and move its students to Central school.

Last week the board called a special meeting for Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the district office, 630 Nevada Street, to further discuss those decisions with the community and the staff.

power and bounced into the street. Dedina died instantly.

One witness, a Clover Dairy deliveryman, said, "I don't know what he was doing, but his engine was going full power and he came down like a shot," he said. The milkman said he had just completed a home delivery and looked up when he heard the plane's engine.

Several children who were playing in a backyard less than 30 yards from the plane's impact said they saw the aircraft hit the ground. All of them said the plane's engine was running.

"It was making a lot of noise coming down," said one youngster.

Dedina's wife, Sandra, daughter of Maurice Koch, a luggage manufacturer in Corte Madera, was called to the scene and identified her husband's body from a ring.

She said her husband had planned to pick up an instructor before the flight, but a witness at the airport said Dedina took off alone.

The aircraft, a new Belanca, was an unrecognizable mass of wreckage after it missed one home by less than a hundred feet and dug a large hole in the hillside. The plane was owned by Dedina.

The victim practiced law in San Francisco.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Sausalito Asks Plan For Tiffany Park

The Sausalito Recreation Commission has asked the firm of Environmental Planning and Design Associates to prepare a landscaping plan for the city's Tiffany Park, according to Normal Wholschlaeger, director of public works.

Wohlschlaeger said the commission, meeting Thursday, asked architect Roland Mays of the firm to attend the commission's May 21 meeting with preliminary sketches of plans for the park.

Cambodians Press Purge Of Vietnamese Civilians

TAKEO, Cambodia (UPI)—Cambodian police and soldiers conducted a house-to-house search Saturday for suspected Viet Cong in this provincial capital, already the site of another massacre of Vietnamese civilians.

They said they were looking for Communists but most Cambodian military men freely admitted they consider all Vietnamese to be Viet Cong.

At least 100 Vietnamese civilians were killed and about 20 others wounded in Takeo, 40 miles south of Phnom Penh, Thursday night inside a school complex.

The death count of 100 was confirmed by soldiers. One of them said, "We shot them because they were Viet Cong."

Cambodian military officials disclosed that an army colonel on the staff of the province governor was relieved following the slayings.

Military officials said, as they did following a massacre at Prasaut a week earlier, the Vietnamese civilians were killed in a "cross fire" during a Viet Cong attack. There was no evidence of an attack on Takeo Thursday.

Among the other military commanders at Takeo is Lt. Col. Hin Nim, who was in charge of the soldiers involved in the Prasaut incident in which at least 90 civilians were killed. He was a major at the time but promoted and sent here after the massacre.

At least two of the Takeo wounded died Friday night. The remaining wounded, about 15, were taken to a government dispensary only 100 yards from the scene of the slayings.

They received first aid treatment which hardly seemed adequate for some of the wounds. One man had been shot through the left eye, and the bullet apparently remained in his head. He lay writhing on the steps outside the dispensary, and it appeared unlikely he would live much longer.

About 30 other survivors who were not wounded in the gunfire were taken to a nearby police station where they were held under arrest. Newsmen were not allowed to see them and were given no indication what would be done with the survivors.

Ly Van Phat, 50, wounded in the chest, said he was arrested last Tuesday between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. while at his home across from the central market in downtown Takeo.

Phat, a cloth merchant, said he was asleep with his wife and five children when the soldiers came to his home. He and his 19-year-old son were arrested. His wife and four daughters were allowed to remain in their home. Phat has not seen them since and has given up hope of seeing them again.

Phat's son also was wounded in the massacre but was among a half a dozen of the more fortunate victims who were carried by newsmen to Phnom Penh hospitals for treatment. It was more than 24 hours before first aid was given to those who remained in Takeo.

Phat said at no time during his detention was he told why he was arrested. But other Vietnamese men in the grounds said Cambodian soldiers accused them of being Viet Cong. All denied the accusation.

Phat, a native of Takeo, said he felt certain he would be killed if he remained much longer. He asked newsmen how it would be possible for him to get to Saigon.

Berkeley Lull As Officials Figure Costs

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Damage to University of California property is estimated at $18,000 after three days of violence on and around the campus.

For the third straight day, antiwar demonstrators sirmished repeatedly Friday with police.

Twenty-two arrests were made Friday bringing to 80 the three-day total by 200 campus police, highway patrolmen and officers from 20 surrounding cities.

Police said they were prepared for perhaps more trouble Sunday, when attorney William Kunstler and Jerry Rubin, a "Chicago 7" defendant had been scheduled to speak in the Greek Theater on the campus.

Permission for the talks was withdrawn by university officials after Chancellor Roger W. Heyns declared a state of emergency.

Viet Troops Operating In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces smashed two North Vietnamese and Viet Cong base camps inside Cambodia this week, killed 450 enemy and seized huge munitions stockpiles, informed sources said today.

The two operations were reported in a communique by South Vietnamese headquarters but were placed just on the Vietnamese side of the border, obviously because of the political implications.

Elsewhere, the siege of Dak Seang Special forces camp moved into its 18th day with only sporadic mortar fire when a helicopter landed or anyone stayed above ground too long. (See photo, page 2.)

A visit by reporters earlier this week to the Highway 1 border crossing disclosed that one of the operations was in fact inside Cambodia. Highly placed sources confirmed this and also confirmed the second operation also was across the border.

There was no evidence of any American involvement except the use of U.S. infantrymen as blocking forces on the Vietnamese side of the border.

South Vietnamese losses were reported as 13 troops killed and 104 wounded.

The communique from South Vietnamese headquarters reported that both operations had been terminated. Witnesses from the border crossing 42 miles northwest of Saigon said South Vietnamese troops and armored personnel carriers were seen today crossing into South Vietnam.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and President Nguyen Van Thieu met for about 45 minutes, presumably to discuss the Cambodian situation and the South Vietnamese military forays across the border.

U.S. sources said South Vietnam "is fully aware" of the American stand on Cambodia — respect for its frontiers and souvereignty.

Other informed sources said South Vietnam was launching the operations inside Cambodia with the consent of local Cambodian authorities.

Witnesses reported that a token force of Cambodian troops —perhaps 100 men—fought with the more than 3,000 South Vietnamese troops in one of the operations near the Cambodian village of Bavet.

Snipers Slay Youth In New Isla Vista Woes

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—Sheriff's officers maintained a light patrol in the Isla Vista area near the University of California campus Saturday after a night of violence that took the life of a 22-year-old student.

A county sheriff's office spokesman said things were "real quiet" and the department was using only its own forces in the area, although they were prepared to send in more men if a situation arose.

Police and several snipers exchanged gunfire during the night, after the shooting of UCSB senior Kevin Moran as he emerged from the window of the embattled Bank of America.

Moran and several other students had just put out a fire in the bank caused by a Molotov cocktail and a group of about 500 dissidents stoned them as they climbed through a broken window.

The shooting started a manhunt that included the exchange of gunfire between officers and snipers who were "firing from behind buildings, rooftops, trees and behind cars," as a sheriff's spokesman put it.

The rampaging students began to roam the area about 10 p.m. Friday despite a dawn to dusk curfew imposed after the rioting erupted late Thursday.

Breaking windows and setting small fires as they went, the groups finally converged on the temporary bank office which replaced the one burned out in February. Moran and other students followed the rioters putting out fires until the shooting occurred.

Two old cars which deputies described as junk yard ressurections were rolled onto the streets and set afire. A leather shop near the bank was also set ablaze, but damage was minor.

Youth Declared Narcotics Addict

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court yesterday committed Mathew Michael Letsos, 19, of Fairfax, to the California Rehabilitation Center for treatment for narcotics addiction.

Doctors had earlier testified that the youth, who was convicted in December of selling heroin, was an addict.

He is the brother of James Michael Letsos, 21, who was found dead in his Sausalito apartment Sept. 10. An autopsy showed that he died of drowning in a shower where he had been placed by roommates after becoming unconscious from heroin.

HELEN HELP US!

Grandmother Now Wants To Take Over The Child She 'Paid For'

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I became pregnant but the boy and I did not get married. His parents wanted me to give the child away, so as to preserve their social status in the community. Their strong disapproval was one of the reasons we broke up. But they did help pay my hospital bills, and a little for support. My lawyer made them.

I kept my baby and love him dearly. Now his "illegitimate" grandmother wants to take over. I think she'd like to raise him and push me out, as she "paid for him." Does she have the right to take him away from me? — D.L.

DEAR D.:

Your baby belongs to you. When his grandmother prevented the marriage, she forfeited her rights to claim him as a grandson. If she causes trouble, consult your lawyer. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have graduated from high school, but know I could never make it through college. I have made some very foolish mistakes that hurt not only myself but my family.

My parents lost money learning I was not college material. They financed me after I had an unhappy love affair that ended disastrously. You can see they are reluctant now to hand out money for further training that might not take.

I've been told I'm no longer a child but must go out and make it on my own.

Why then, are they so upset when I want to join the Womans Army Corps? I can get any type of job training there — free. I would get salary, room, board, clothing allowance, and five years of good experience.

But my folks have heard bad things about the WACs. They feel I would ruin my reputation. What reputation? I've already made enough mistakes so that I'm not exactly lily-white.

Do you think I'm wrong in insisting that the WACs is what I want? — WHAT NEXT?

DEAR W.N.:

I think the WACs might be a fine opportunity for you. Good luck. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Please help!

Our father doesn't work. It doesn't bother us too much in the daytime as we are at school, but when we come home and try to watch TV or just sit around, there he is, chewing on his gum.

This may not sound bothersome to you, but you should hear him. He'd scream us out of the house if we told him how noisy he was, but it's driving us crazy.

Maybe he'll read this if you print it and learn to chew silently. — KIDS WHO NEED EAR PLUGS

DEAR KIDS:

Let's hope all noisy gum chewers read this and realize that Pop, Crackle, Snap is for cereal, not gum. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

SEW SIMPLE

No Pattern Needed For Pleats

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

As I look at the new patterns, I find that many of them look just exactly like my patterns I used last year except there might be a large inverted pleat at the center front or a deep pleat at the two side front seams. Do I have to buy a new pattern just for this, or can I cut my own pleat?

MRS. L. S.

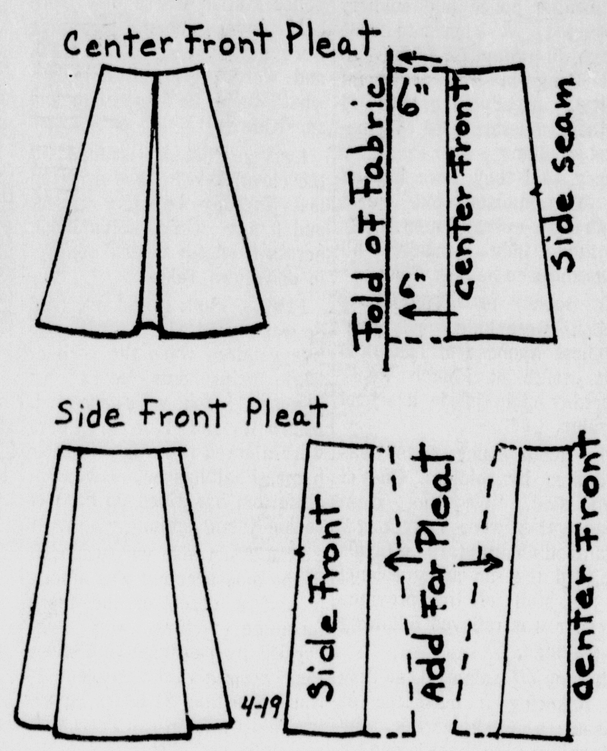
DEAR MRS. L. S.,

It is very simple to cut your own pleat. If it is for the center front of your skirt, place the center front of your pattern about 6 inches from the fold of your fabric. This will give you a 3 inch deep pleat. You may make this deeper if you wish. If you don't care for the entire width of the pleat to come all the way to the waist, it can be tapered somewhat by making a seam at the inside of the pleat and angling it to about 2 inches wide at the waist.

When making pleats for side front seams, you must add to the center front section and also the side front since this type of pleat will lie to one side.

MRS. JULIAN WIERZBA, Almond, Wis. is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion.

"When I recently tried covering buttons with a loosely woven fabric, I discovered an easy way to line the fabric so the metal wouldn't show through. Just take a small circle of iron-on sock patch, just enough to cover the top of the button only, press it on the back of your fabric and it works perfectly. This small circle covers the top and prevents the sides from being too bulky to work in smoothly."



DEAR EUNICE,

I want to start my summer sewing, but with the big news of the longer skirts coming back, I'm afraid to make any more dresses with short skirts as I can't afford to spend the money to sew and then not wear my clothes. You have such a sensible approach to fashion and home sewing, I would love to have your advice on this matter.

MRS. W. K. L

DEAR MRS. W. K. L.:

I can only give you my honest opinion which has been backed personally by several top designers I have talked to personally. Yes, of course they are coming back — but they won't be for everyone, they will simply be another new look.

Ask yourself this question, "Did you really ever wear a mini skirt 8 inches above your knees the way they were designed to be worn and did you ever wear a maxi coat for daytime wear?" If you have answered with a negative, the chances are that you won't wear the exaggerated midi length.

The time has come for all of us to stand in front of our mirrors and study our figures long and hard, then decide what length does the most for us. It's difficult when you see a beautiful young thing who weighs about 90 pounds photographed in a high fashion garment and then try to relate this same garment to ourselves, not only as to our figures, but our age and our way of life. Don't forget that there are many women who would wear a brown burlap sack if it would get their names and pictures in the paper.

I hope the garment industry doesn't back itself into a corner and out of business, as the manufacturers of ladies shoes in this country almost did when they tried to force the American women to wear the heavy, clog-type shoes so unattractive to the feet and ankles. The women who did buy them, found it safer and cheaper to buy the imports.

This could very well happen to our clothes unless we exercise our rights and demand to wear the clothes we feel best in. Personally, I feel the midi length is all right for evening and certainly for the young generation who make a game of fashion.

Let's not take it too seriously but remember that the most important thing is to look well in your clothes. If you look well, you will feel well and give everyone around you the feeling that you truly have the confidence to "do your own thing."

DEAR EUNICE,

I would like to make a vest out of rawhide but can't seem to locate it at our fabric shop. Where else should I look?

MISS SUE L. B.

DEAR SUE,

Usually only larger fabric shops will carry specialty items as this. Perhaps you have a leather company where you live; if not, watch for ads in quarterly pattern books that are available at most stores. They usually have a list of items that are hard to find and the addresses where you can find more information.

DEAR EUNICE,

I would love to wear one of the new pleated skirts but my hips won't allow the extra thickness and bulk that would be created. If I make a skirt with the pleats added at the lower section only, do I have to wear a long overblouse that ends where the pleats begin?

MRS. H.S.E.

DEAR MRS. H.S.E.,

If your hips are overly large, I feel it would emphasize them if you wear a tuck-in blouse, and to wear an overblouse that doesn't meet the pleats, you would be creating three different eye levels, again not too slenderizing

It is possible to make a dress to go with the jacket instead of a separate skirt. You could also use a lighter weight fabric for the dress, and it would still look perfectly with the jacket. Try to visualize the over-all picture and use your best judgment when it comes to the fabric and the pattern.

Women's Equality Long, Hard Battle

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The new surge of Woman Power shows in everything from bra burnings to office sit-ins to protest discrimination against the female of the species.

How effective are they? A noted woman sociologist looks on these "skirmishes" as far less effective than a long and thorough campaign. There will be no magical transformation to a state of sexual equality, says Dr. Alice S. Rossi, associate professor of sociology at Goucher College in Baltimore.

"I think we are in for a long, hard, cultural, legal and political battle before we reach any goal of sexual equality for black or white in this nation," says Dr. Rossi, an outspoken authority on the role of women in the world today.

"IT WILL SCARCELY be won by will-of-the-wisp quickie action skirmishes, but by the steady, persistent beat of the hearts and the work of the minds of at least another generation."

The writer-researcher-teacher points out that already there are many laws on the books to assure equality for women. The statutes are one thing, enforcement is another, although Dr. Rossi feels that "passage of an equal rights amendment to the constitution would cover a wide range of sex inequities in law and practice."

But the "mere existence" of the laws does not solve anything "unless and until women press for their implementation through concerted efforts to educate their sex and to develop test cases that will effect real changes in women's employment status.

"This is unglamorous hard work," she says.

Dr. Rossi sees in the women's movement in the 1970's an "intense masculine backlash to the demands we make in personal and professional life that are rooted not merely in the specific area of work or home management or parental responsibility, but are displacements from a deeper level, as a threat to men's self esteem or sense of sexual turf."

She continued, "Some feminists will say, fine and good; men have been our oppressors long enough, now they must give ground." But most women do not wish to live embattled and manless lives, and my impression is there are far more men in the younger generation than there were in my own who are eager to acquire a new life style, a gentler and more meaningful relationship with women... "But the male backlash is bound to come...

Leather Cleaner

Casual care — meaning suds and water — keeps casual suede shoes new-looking longer. During processing, the leather is impregnated with a chemical. This finish is then a part of the leather, resisting stains and keeping the leather soft and pliable. In fact, brushing and suds-scrubbing really renews these shoes.

"Positive Approaches to Discipline" will be the topic. Mrs. Harms comments, "The topic of discipline, as I see it, is closely bound to the topic of creativity and one helps to build the other. It is a positive, constructive approach to discipline that we use in nursery school and one which parents can learn to use in the home."

Among the many facets of Mrs. Harms' work were contributions to two research projects in the Child Study Center, one in teaching science concepts and the other in building competence through creative arts programs.

The latter project resulted in a file, "My Art Is Me," which was released in June, 1969, and has since won two national awards.

AUCTION WORK — Somewhere in the middle of a wide style range is this painting by Harriet Frances, which along with all the work at the College of Marin gallery, will be auctioned at the KQED auction in May.

ART REVIEW

Donated Art Must Be Fair Sample Of Work

By LAURA DEVENDORF

An artist, especially a prominent one, gets begged repeatedly each year to donate work to this or that auction for this or that worthy cause. Usually he won't give his newest show pieces or most marketable work. But the quality of what he does give is often directly proportionate to the exposure, publicity and rang of the event at which his work will be sold.

Therefore, when his work will be previewed in a good public gallery for two weeks and with luck, will then be selected for weekend previewing at the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts and finally will be auctioned off on color television before thousands of viewers—if he has any pride at all he can't afford to submit one of his closet cases or lesser dogs.

So much for the cynical psychology of auction donating.

But it does explain why Marin artists' work donated to the KQED auction and previewed through May 1 in the College of Marin gallery is pretty close to what the artists are doing or have done almost at their best.

Since they aren't sacrificing the only one of its kind they'll ever have, the artists donating prints are more apt to give their newest and their best.

John Ihle's torso in a circle and his shattered form of a Santa Barbara beach bird, Nelcy Tarics's soft toned abstract patterns, Eleanore Bender's "Poetics I," Dennis Beall's deadly looking bugs and Al Garvey's "What this country needs is a good 5-cent buffalo," are some of the best. And if you have a particularly good eye you might find Mary Tift's minute, old fashioned flowers.

Other than prints, Marty Stoelzel's soft overlapping landscape forms, Gwen Stone's orange shapes on white and Farhad Moezzi's huge steel column are among the works easily connected with their artists.

Most are less obviously so. Margie Horton has moved from places like Woolworth's to the outdoors with a landscape that still has the artist's bright-hued, multi-patterned signature. And frequently, there are paintings such as Harriet Frances's thick, loosely painted racing carts which, while it isn't in her more familiar neat mod style, is still interesting work.

Really, for a giveaway, this show is far from bad. There are plenty of gems to compensate for the few horrors and it will be interesting to see which bring the highest bids when they are finally on the block.

For now, it's a good opportunity to see what these things really look like before they change their personalities on most maladjusted TV sets.

Fairfax Undecided On Fate Of Ebents

No decision on continuing Fairfax's annual bicycle and walking races, threatened by the demise of the city's festival, was reached at a special meeting of the Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission last night, according to Joan Brown, commissioner.

After further study and receipt of additional information, the commission either will hold a special meeting on the matter or discuss it at its regular meeting May 5, Mrs. Brown said.

Bill Aids Police

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Friday unanimously pssed and sent to the Assembly a bill which makes it illegal for any person to forcibly resist questioning by a law enforcement officer.

The bill by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, extends the law against resisting arrest to persons being "stopped or detained for questioning."

Span Board Will Hear Citizens—If

Members of the public should be permitted to address the Golden Gate Bridge District board only with the unanimous consent of all directors, a district committee recommended yesterday.

In addition, members of the public should be allowed to address the board only if they so request in writing before the meeting, the rules and policy committee agreed in a unanimous vote.

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras, arguing for the new rule, said, "If there is some reason a director doesn't want someone (from the public) to speak, he should have that right." He noted this was the practice on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, "and it has worked very well."

The board now has no policy on the subject. The recommended rule, to be ratified by the full board next Friday, would not affect free public discussion before committees, directors said.

Director L. E. Castner of Sonoma County said the rule was necessary "so we're not here all day."

Director Dean M. Meyer of Mill Valley, not a member of the committee, argued unsuccessfully for a more flexible rule. "This problem can be overcome very easily if you're not afraid of it," Meyer said.

No one from the public attended the committee meeting.

The committee also recommended acceptance of a bank's offer to donate a $50 bond each month to a "bridge officer of the month." Meyer joked that fair award of the bond would be impossible "since there are 18 directors and only 12 months a year."

In other business, the committee recommended a policy to prohibit soliciting contributions from district employees, except for the United Crusade. Director Ben K. Lerer urged the policy, saying that "substantial funds have been contributed, and it's been an embarrassing situation."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said that political contributions had been solicited, and other directors noted that solicitations for contributions from employees had been made by directors.

Protest In Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — More than 100 persons invaded the University of Oregon Administration Building Friday afternoon to make demands in the wake of disturbances the two previous days, over ROTC and police issues.

They left when told that University President Robert Clark was out, then engaged Clark in an hour discussion outside the building when the president returned.

OPERA REVIEW

Dominican Presents A Bit Of Americana

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Interest in the performance last night in Angelico Hall of the two-act comic opera, "The Agreeable Surprise," centered largely around its historical value as an authentic early American opera.

Presented by the Dominican College Opera Workshop under the stage direction of Arthur Conrad and the American Music Research Center at the college with musical direction by Sister Mary Dominic, O.P., the opera was one of events of this week's Festival of the Performing Arts at the college.

Actually the "opera" was more a musicale—the first ever performed in St. Louis, Mo., in 1817, though it was composed in 1781 by Dr. Samuel Arnold—for there was more speaking than singing.

Only one voice, that of soprano Elizabeth Heffernan in the leading feminine role of Laura, was outstanding, though there were many fine bits of acting, especially by mezzo soprano Marjorie Broughton as the man-chasing widow, Mrs. Cheshire. In the first act, Miss Heffernan's beautifully floated, silvery high notes were a perfect match for an accompanying flute, and her portrayal in a mannered style of the innocent young girl was just right for the period.

Miss Broughton has a good voice, but the role required too much distortion in the acting to permit any musical distinction.

Tenor Jackson Austin as Laura's guardian, Sir Felix Friendly, who plans the whole "agreeable surprise," that of allowing her to marry the man she loves, sang and acted well the role of the jolly, scheming nobleman, and baritone Dan Jones as her handsome lover Eugene was better in the speaking parts than the singing.

Bass John Graulich as the Latin-spouting butler Lingo did his usual good job of characterization but muffled his singing in a very odd manner.

Baritone Scott Wright was satisfactory as Compton, Eugene's father, and soprano Alicia Snyder made a delightfully flouncey milkmaid, Cowslip. Others performing satisfactorily were Tom Farley as the lawyer Chicane, Robin Reid as Fringe, the maid, and Hugh Brashear as the doltish servant John. Don Walker was very convincing in his depiction of the aged servant Thomas.

One of the best parts of the production was the excellent colonial costuming. As in all productions staged by Conrad, the set effectively suggested the period and place with a minimum of detail and props.

Sister Mary Dominic conducted a small orchestra of flute, two violins, cello, bassoon and harpsichord. There was some insecure intonation but for the most part they played well, especially Judith Storss, who had the major accompanying work on the harpsichord.

Adding to the feeling of courtly manners and music of the era was a Haydn wind quintet played before the opera by flute, oboe, clarinet, horn and bassoon.

The opera will be repeated tonight at 8 o'clock. Because of unavoidable acoustical problems, anyone attending is advised to sit well toward the front of the auditorium in order to understand the words.

Bitter Fight Ends; Span Board Hires New Lawyer

A bitter fight to find a new attorney for the Golden Gate Bridge District ended yesterday with a vote behind closed doors — generally on political and parochial lines — to hire Thomas M. Jenkins, mayor of San Carlos in San Mateo County.

Jenkins, a law partner of Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, reportedly won solid support from all eight San Francisco directors present, all of whom are Democrats. Jenkins also is a Democrat.

Support from two other directors representing northern counties in the district apparently gave the edge to Jenkins over the only other candidate, San Rafael attorney Joseph E. Sheeks.

Sheeks, a resident of Belvedere, is one of Marin's three representatives on the board. He is a Republican.

Directors waited 45 minutes after the scheduled 10 a.m. start of the meeting for the arrival of an apparently key director, John E. Dearman of San Francisco. After he arrived, the 50-minute-long closed session began.

The only directors on the 18-member board absent were Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum and San Francisco Supervisor Robert Gonzales.

Jenkins will replace Jerome B. White, 87, also of San Francisco. White has been the attorney since 1957.

Board president William Moskovitz of San Francisco said that Jenkins' retainer will be set by the finance-auditing committee. White is paid $17,000 a year, plus additional fees for any special work. Last week, White was paid $11,500 for work on special litigation by the district.

Moskovitz said that only one vote was taken after the candidates were discussed, and that the vote was unanimous.

Moskovitz said that Jenkins was nominated by director Joseph P. Mazzola, a San Francisco labor leader.

Jenkins, 49, is on the board of governors of the State Bar of California, chairman of the San Mateo County Council of Mayors, a director of the American Association of Homes for the Aging, a trustee of the United Bay Area Crusade, a director of the San Francisco Association for Mental Health, and a member of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's national advisory committee on Medicare.

A native of Illinois, he graduated from Hastings College of Law at the University of California. He is a member of the San Francisco law firm of Hanson, Bridgett, Marcus and Jenkins.

Jenkins and his wife, Anne, have three children: Thomas Mark III, 20; Joanne, 19, and Dirk, 15.

Greek Culture To Hold Sway Over Marin Campus Session

The Greeks are coming back to College of Marin.

Not the saddle-shoe Greeks of Fraternity Row, but Fifth Century B.C. Greeks, as in Aeschylus.

With the aid of $8,000 in private financing, the College of Marin drama department has set up an encompassing project called "Athenaeum 70" in which a hundred students will immerse themselves in the Periclean age.

Students will study history, philosophy, literature, religion, and physical education in the Greek manner, as well as art, music and drama.

At summer's end they will produce Aeschylus's Oresteian trilogy, "Agamemnon," "The Libation Bearers" and "The Furies," the only complete Greek trilogy extant. The three one-hour plays will be presented together.

James Dunn, chairman of the drama department, said the challenge is to combine studying and learning with participating in stage production. The program was conceived by the drama faculty to reverse the trend of young people to "turn off" from education. "Students have never been apathetic about participating in plays," Dunn said.

All the 100 students will be involved in the productions, either on stage or in backstage units, and each will make a full report on the summer's activity at its end.

Enrollment will not be limited to students already enrolled and may include people from the community at large. The program will offer six units of credit.

The plan is for students to live as nearly as possible the life of Fifth Century B.C. Greece with seminars in open air spots such as the peak of Mount Tamalpais, the north campus site near Novato, or the campus mall. Guest lecturers will lead symposiums, workshops and classes, and professionals in Greek music, art, history and philosophy will be sought. Some lectures will be held in the evening and open to the public.

Studying the Greek heritage will teach the student what Western men evolved from, Dunn said. He said the Greek society was similar to ours. "The plays are all about revenge, justice, mercy, forgiveness, jealousy and hatred," he said. The chaos the Greeks experienced while creating their society is relevant to us today, he said.

Courses will not be limited to Greek methods, however, nor will the plays. The faculty is studying ways to include new techniques such as film and original music.

The College of Marin Drama Association, headed by Jiri A. Herrmann of Kentfield, was formed to raise the $8,000 needed for the program.

Instead of programs, playgoers will receive outlines giving the background, mythology, maps, and subjects the students have taken up during the summer.

Auditions for the program will be held April 25 in the college fine arts building. Persons interested in auditioning may call the drama department for applications.

RIGHT STREET, WRONG COUNTY

Motorists traveling on Novato Boulevard at Simmons Lane were perplexed—had Novato been annexed by Sonoma County? Certainly not, but the construction crew of Grover Wilson Excavating and Paving Contractor wouldn't say where the Sonoma County road sign had come from. The firm is widening and paving the boulevard in front of the Church of Christ.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Timing Of Girl's First Period Depends On Heredity, Glands

GIRLS of 16 who have not had their first menstrual period should consult a physician. This is not a hard-and-fast rule, but is suggested when the girl or her parents are concerned.

During adolescence, there are wide variations in growth patterns, and normal development of the reproductive organs may be a year or two behind the girl's actual age.

Most American girls have their first period (menarche) between the ages of 11 and 15.

THIS LATE STATUS SYMBOL of adolescence is preceded by other signs. The first sign, the development of the breast bud (thelarche), occurs from 9 to 11 years of age. It indicates that the pituitary-ovarian glandular axis is intact and beginning to function.

Shortly thereafter, there are changes in the birth canal followed by the appearance of secondary sex characteristics. At age 12, there may be a growth spurt indicating adrenal gland activity (adrenarche). All of these manifestations culminate in the occurrence of the first period.

WHEN THE GIRL goes through all of these preliminary stages and fails to menstruate, chances are the glands are in order but an anatomical defect exists. This is especially true if the girl is of normal stature and appearance.

A careful pelvic examination at this time is much more sensible and logical than receiving needless remedies to bring about the menses.

Genetic factors also play a role in that delayed menstruation may be a family trait. A prior or recent illness, such as infectious mononucleosis, may also delay the menarche.

The possibility of a glandular cause for amenorrhea appears likely when the preliminary stages (thelarche and adrenarche) are delayed or fail to occur.

IN THESE CIRCUMSTNCES, there may or may not be a disturbance in the development of the breasts, pubic hair, or sexual organs. Stature and height also suggest a glandular cause along with the presence or absence of hirsutism and genetic anomalies.

INWARD GOITER

G. R. writes: How does the doctor tell when an inward goiter is bothering the heart?

REPLY

Through examination, including X-rays of the neck and the upper chest. Inward goiters generally hide behind the upper part of the breastbone and cannot be felt, but X-rays disclose them. The effect on the heart of an inward goiter is no different from that of an ordinary goiter. Enlargement leads to pressure on the windpipe or the esophagus, leading to difficulty in breathing and swallowing.

CHOLESTEROL THEORY

K. G. writes: Will lowering a high cholesterol prevent a heart attack?

REPLY

This is a moot question and represents one of the main stumbling blocks to the theory that lowering blood cholesterol will clean out clogged arteries or reverse the arteriosclerotic process. Many physicians believe that the time has come to prove or disprove the dietary hypothesis that long term changes in the diet will lower the high incidence of premature coronary disease.

BUNIONS

F. E. writes: What causes bunions?

REPLY

Poorly fitting shoes and faulty walking habits are the chief causes. Our leaflet on bunions can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

Arraignment In Two-Fatal Crash

Lionel Raymond Hall, 25, of Cotati, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on two counts of manslaughter and one of felony drunken driving stemming from an accident Monday on Highway 101 in which two persons were killed.

Hall pleaded innocent and a preliminary hearing was set for May 12.

A California Highway Patrol officer said he chased Hall's car at speeds up to 90 miles an hour north of Novato before the auto struck a center divider and rolled over twice.

Dead in the accident were Hall's passengers, Lloyd W. Hickey, 33, and his wife, Oksan, 30, of Daly City.

Portland Teen-Ager Denies Two Charges

Ralph Leonard Human, 18, of Portland, Ore., pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of petty theft and possessing marijuana. A preliminary hearing was set for May 12.

The youth was arrested Tuesday at a Mill Valley market for allegedly taking a package of bologna. Police said he had a small amount of suspected hashish in his pocket.

Weed Suspects To Enter Pleas In San Francisco

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO—Two Marin men, arrested Wednesday on narcotics charges, were ordered to appear for plea in Department 13 of municipal court next Thursday.

Lee D. Malcolm, 26, of 1 Lincoln Road, Sausalito, and Henri P. Baylacq, 26, of 14 Hillside Drive, Mill Valley, are charged with offering to sell marijuana and possession of marijuana for sale. Malcolm is also charged with assaulting a policeman. Police said he tried to escape at the time of his arrest and was subdued.

Inspector Charles Wettstein of the San Francisco police narcotics detail said the two, along with a San Francisco man, attempted to sell 203 kilos, about 400 pounds, of marijuana to an undercover agent.

The marijuana would be worth about $500,000 on the open market, Wettstein said.

He said one of the men said that the shipment came from Mill Valley, but police were not sure exactly where.

The Spanish and the Portuguese introduced sugar cane to the Western Hemisphere in the 16th century.

OH, NO—MORE WOES!

The crumpled remains of a lunar lander mockup lie on the sidewalk of the Manned Space Center in Houston, Tex. It collapsed yesterday as workmen were dragging it to a new position to prepare it for a ceremonial visit by President Richard M. Nixon. (See story, page 1.) NASA officials said the plywood and metal full-scale model would be repaired in time for today's visit.

Gun Count Denied By 'James Bond' Juvenile Aide

A San Francisco juvenile officer, who had been living in Sausalito under the name of "James Bond," pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a machine gun.

A preliminary hearing on the felony count was set for May 19 for Kenneth Theodore Chelton, 41.

Chelton, listed in the telephone book under the name of the fictional spy hero, was charged after officers came to his apartment on March 27 in response to neighbors' complaints about noise.

They said they found Chelton badly beaten but later investigations have not turned up the assailants. Officers said they found the machine gun in his bedroom.

Single Guide Sought For Mental Health

county and the hospital district and their staffs.

2. As new programs are developed, a proportionate amount of new resources be allocated for program planning and evaluation.

3. Interagency councils on (A) alcohol and drug abuse, (B) mental illness and (C) mental retardation be encouraged to assume a more active and defined role in planning.

4. Proposed planning projects be coordinated to avoid duplications and contradictions among official organizations and voluntary groups.

5. Facilities should be set up to handle crisis cases involving alcoholism, drug abuse and suicide. Marin lacks facilities for housing chronic alcohol and drug abusers, the report said, and a detoxification center and half way houses are essential.

The Marin mental health community was severly split last year in a feud between its two top officials, Dr. Clyde G. Miller and Dr. Donald P. Wilson.

Miller was director of Marin Community Mental Health Services, responsible to the board of supervisors. He was fired and replaced by Dr. Leon R. Wanerman, who in turn was replaced by Dr. Donovan O. Cooke.

Wilson was and still is director of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital. He was hired by the hospital district and is responsible to the hospital board of directors.

Last September, when the supervisors fired Miller, they also tried to fire Wilson, but the hospital board refused. Following a series of closed meetings, the supervisors and the hospital board agreed to a new contract beginning July 1 this year.

Under the new agreement, the inpatient, outpatient and other services will remain under the director of the mental health center. The county director of mental health services (now Cooke) will restrict his work to administration, not programs. Also under the new agreement, the mental health center director would be a joint appointee of the supervisors and the hospital board.

No program change would be made until the county and the hospital district agreed to it. The Marin Mental Health Advisory Board would be the sounding board on any program changes.

The evaluation committee said a single organization could be set up in two different ways:

1. The county can assume total responsibility. County supervisors would appoint the director of community mental health services, who in turn would hire a program chief directly responsible to him. A contract between the county and the hospital district would be solely for the use of mental health center facilities.

2. The county could contract for all mental health, programs under the state Short-Doyle Act to be provided by the hospital district. The hospital district would hire the director to operate the program. Contracts for all other mental health services between Marin agencies and the county supervisors would be negotiated directly by the county administrator's office.

In either situation, the mental health advisory board would consult directly with, and would be staffed by, the director of the program. The advisory board would make recommendations to the board which employs the director.

Mother Joins Planning Staff

Mrs. Marjorie W. Macris of Mill Valley, a blonde mother of two, joined the Marin County Planning Department yesterday as a planner.

Mrs. Macris, whose monthly salary is $849, succeeds Margaret Porter, who resigned March 1.

Mrs. Macris previously worked 11 years in the City of Chicago's planning department. Since coming to California, she has worked for several Bay Area planning consultants.

Her husband is a planner in the San Francisco planning department.

Novatan Fined, Gets Probation On Pot

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court yesterday placed Charles Henry Doyle, 21, of Novato, on probation for one year and gave him a $100 suspended fine for possessing marijuana.

Doyle was arrested Feb. 14 in San Rafael where police said he had a plastic bag of pot.

SEA OF GRASS—AND WEEDS

Suburbanites in Lucas Valley take meticulous care of their lawns and landscaping. This botanist's delight, however, is a vacant lot at Mount Lassen Drive and Mount Darwin Court that isn't tended by anybody. A county employee said it's excess road right of way, and county practice is to let adjoining residents maintain or landscape such areas if they wish. The board of supervisors has set aside no funds for such maintenance, and the county only clears the areas if they become critical fire hazards. A disgruntled neighbor has made her disapproval known with the sign hanging on the fence.

Striking Against Children In The Public Schools

When teachers absent themselves from work en masse—whether or not they call it a strike—they generally claim it is "for the good of the schools" or "for the good of education."

Gov. Ronald Reagan called the Los Angeles teacher strike something else this week.

He said the teachers are "striking against the children and they ought to review their consciences and figure that out."

THE GOVERNOR is right. Whenever teachers stay off the job, it is the children who suffer. Either they go without schooling during the strike, or they are instructed by fill-in substitute teachers who—although they might be even more capable than those out on strike—are handicapped by not knowing what material has been covered in the classes, and by having no lesson plan.

Teacher strikes are strange things, anyhow. The teachers sign contracts specifying what they will be paid. They are aware, if they have been in the district the previous year, what working conditions to expect. Yet they walk out while the contracts they signed and the working conditions they accepted are still in effect.

It would seem that, if pay or conditions (or both) fall below acceptable standards, the teachers would refuse en masse to sign contracts (something that was done, incidentally, last year by teachers in Utah.). They could then force an improvement before the schools are staffed for a new academic year.

Having once accepted their contracts, the teachers are in poor position to decide that they made a mistake and call a walkout.

THE LOS ANGELES teachers walked out because they did not get improvements in pay, supplies and class sizes which were contingent on passage of a proposal to increase the tax rate ceiling. (The general purpose tax rate of the Los Angeles Unified School District is $2.65 per $100 assessed valuation; the total tax rate, as of last year, was $4.24.)

Governor Reagan had a comment on that, too .

"They were unable to present a case that could win the support of the people of their community, including the parents of the children going to school," he said. "The vote was three to one against the tax override they requested."

He added that he did not think striking would convince the voters.

IN SAUSALITO the other day, many Martin Luther King School teachers stayed off the job in what appeared to be a protest over staff reduction and decision to release a vice principal and a community worker.

They, too, were striking against the children. Many children were denied one or more days of schooling because these teachers stayed away—reporting "sick," a gambit that has been tried widely by teachers as a substitute for a formal strike.

THERE ARE OTHER ways, also, in which teachers sometimes strike against the children—without staying off the job.

When a mathematics class or a French class or a science class is passed over for a "teach-in" or "rally" or "special class"—as happened on Wednesday at San Rafael High School—students in those classes are the victims of the teachers who failed to show up to teach them their special subjects—or of those who conducted the "special class' which they attended in lieu of their regular class.

The school year is set up for a minimum of 175 days because that is deemed the amount necessary for teaching the material to be covered. When class periods are devoted to other purposes, the students are shortchanged.

SOMETIMES SCHOOL Administrators themselves "strike against the children" by setting up minimum school days—the least amount of class time for which the state will allot funds—so that teachers can attend institutes or other in-service training.

This is fine for the teachers. But it is not fine for the children. The classes must be telescoped into shorter periods, or some of them eliminated. Again, the children are shortchanged.

IT IS TIME that all of us realized that the purpose of the schools is to educate children. It is time we realized that any hours or days that are taken away from that purpose—no matter for what other purpose they may be used—defraud those very children.

Everyone operating a shop or factory knows that he cannot shut it down for a day, or part of a day, without reducing production. Everyone in retail trade knows that he cannot close his store for a day or part of a day without losing business. It seems strange that school teachers and administrators pretend they can close the school, or dismiss classes early, without impairing education of the children.

They, of all people, should know better.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Tiburon City Council for its decision Monday night to delay adoption of a downtown plan because two council members were to be replaced in Tuesday's election. "Lame duck" approval would have handicapped the plan.

BOUQUET to Wilber Dale Hawkins on his appointment as superintendent of Tamalpais High School District. We wish him well.

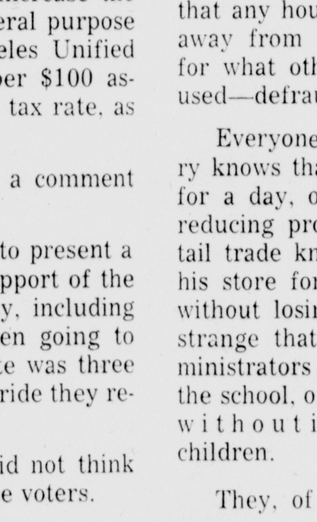
BOUQUETS to all those voters who turned out to ballot in city and school district elections Tuesday—and BRICKBATS to those who failed to fulfill their obligation to vote.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A couple who had recently announced their engagement barely escaped coming to a parting of the ways last weekend over where they would spend their honeymoon. She wanted to go to the Bahamas. He wanted her to get a job.

When an old producer, fond of good food, came to New York last, he demanded the name of a restaurant that served the best borscht soup in town. He was told of a place in the lower East side that was so fastidious in its preparations that an order had to be placed two days in advance. Happily, the producer ordered the borscht by phone. Just before he left for the restaurant, a friend warned him. "That's a tough neighborhood you're invading. Full of crooks. Better keep an eye on your hat and coat."



The producer turned up at his New York office the next morning in a very subdued mood. "How was the borscht last night?" he was asked. "I never had it," he grumbled. "It's your advice that's responsible! While I was watching my hat and coat, somebody stole my borscht!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

All Candidates Should Leave Jobs

Defeat April 14 of the Novato school tax increase and two incumbent city councilmen seems warning to office holders on the county payroll not to campaign as the taxpayers' expense. Paul C. Zucker already has taken a leave of absence without pay while campaigning for supervisor. Harold J. Truett, assistant public defender, has announced he will do likewise while campaigning for the Municipal Court vacancy. Will the two deputy district attorneys, Joshua Thomas and Ernest Zunino, also candidates, do likewise?

If either should be elected, our Municipal Court faces increased congestion and delays. Many defendants in criminal cases, especially dissidents, will be quick to file an "affidavit of prejudice" against a former prosecutor sitting as judge. Section 170.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure permits "any party or an attorney" to do so, and "no judge or court commissioner of any superior, municipal or justice court of the State of California shall try any civil or criminal action" when such an affidavit of prejudice is filed at least five days before trial date.

Lundborg Earns High Accolade

One man with an idea can help topple the nest of warhippies, to paraphrase the saying, and today's one man for congratulations has to be Louis R. Lundborg.

Compare the ephemeral "public relations" in Bank of America's full-page protest advertising, following its branch burning at Santa Barbara, with the integrity in a complete indictment of war-business-as-usual by the same bank's board chairman.

Mr. Lundborg, big enough obviously to bug the Pentagon and its satraps, rir his own thinking to go behind the burn-out of his branch for the real corrective. This time he is not protesting too much.

Unique as it is, man in high place makes senators look like mice.

Letter Not Needed If Record Clear

Your edition of April 15 contained a story in which you quote one of my opponents for the Republican nomination for state senator as having written a letter to the other candidates for the Republican nomination and myself in which he "urged them to observe the party's 11th commandment which bars Republicans from speaking ill of one another."

So that the record may be accurate, I have not mentioned any of my opponents by name or otherwise since this campaign began . . .

Incidentally, I have never received the letter which is referred to in the article.

As a member of the Republican State Central Committee for 16 years and campaign chairman for the Republican state senator for 20 years, I do not find it necessary to write a letter(?) to other candidates or to a newspaper in order to establish my Republican credentials.

LINES ON LIVING

Man Must Have Ritual; Let It Not Be Pagan

By RABBI HAIM KEMELMAN

As much as anything else, man is a ritualistic creature. Since man's primitive dawn, when he was dancing his cannibalistic rhythms in death circles, to our own time when he orbits the moon in space circles, ritual is conscious-stamped in human nature.

There are all kinds of rituals. There are the pagan rituals of a Moloch for which one's self and one's children may be sacrificed upon the altar of some hauntingly drifting incense. And there are the rituals of faith and humanity that ennoble and exalt the human person.

Man on earth depends upon a heaven above him. For he will either humble himself before a heaven he believes in, or he will create a hell of his own heaven and die for it. He cannot live without a God. And when he finds not one, he creates one, or several, of his own. It is this god-image worship which the Commandment decries.

IN MAN'S ARTS and sciences there can also be idol worship—a distortion of their highest ideal and nobility. The ominous shadow of the bomb and the pill are unassailable proof to this image-profanation. In a word: man is a worshipping ritualistic creature. If he worships not something higher and nobler than himself, he comes to worship only himself and his things.

Prophetic faith and psychological truth warn against this danger. We need to belong, to grow out of ourselves, never to shrivel in superstition. There are symbols of faith and rituals of life that help us reach into meanings and mysticism to fuse us with higher values and other people. They help us gain a higher sensitivity in the living person of ourselves and in an involvement with the lives of others, linking us to the immortal chain of humanity.

FOR ONLY MAN dies. Humanity never dies. And if we live our lives and perform those rituals of life that will add dignity and nobility to our span of years on earth, we will then register ourselves in the immortal ledger of the undying human spirit.

What we need are positive rituals of faith and of life. Not artificial practices and superstitions, but real deeds and thoughts of faith that will bring the true-life dimensions in all that we do, or think, or believe.

If you hear today of practitioners of high sensitivity training, who dance in the nude before the altar, you are reminded of Dagon's time, when the pagan cult prescribed super sensuousness for spiritual sensitivity. But the experiences of more than 3,000 years of human civilization should have taught us not to fall for the superstitious rituals of a darker age. We have not gone to the moon to retreat to the days of Eve's fig-leaf fashions and mode of life, to make of ritual a pagan rite.

HUMANISM, scientism, secularism, instantism, have not brought us salvation.

Sooner or later, we come to see that we can hatch a better living out of our sciences, modernity and affluence, but not the values of a richly rewarding life, unless we add the personal commitment of an authentic faith and enthralling ritual to our arts. It must not be said of our age that this generation which has walked on the moon in outer space, has permitted itself to see its children walk into a hell of needle's inner space of explosive kicks and misadventure, to join the brotherhood of miserable joy-riders and happiness-puffers.

High Stakes In Poker Game Where Nobody Shows His Hand

Vienna — Some 500 newspaper correspondents and at least 300 television commentators and technicians are here from all over the world to report on the strategic arms limitation talks. With the exception of the 10 Russian correspondents, in effect part of the official delegation from Moscow, the view of what may — or may not — be about to happen is as opaque as though seen through a thick London fog.

The prospect is for weeks of sparring as Washington and Moscow each seek to pry loose the other side's negotiating position. The mystery is deep and dark. There is even doubt as to whether either side has a fully formulated negotiating position. In this obscure poker game both sides may be playing down the openers, ready to react to any cards put face up on the table.

BEHIND THIS cautious sparring are two cautious men, neither of whom is really a free agent. One is Leonid I. Brezhnev, the 64-year-old general secretary of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union.

As nearly as a cautious Communist leader could, Brezhnev the other day put his country's economic troubles on the line. In a major speech, much of it carried on television, he spoke of the shortages in food and consumer goods that are reported to have stirred widespread discontent within the Soviet Union. He went so far as to talk about the failures of the bureaucracy and the need for more efficient management and technical innovation.

Without putting it in just that way, this cautious man was saying that the cost of the arms race is depriving the Russian people of the goods and services they have so long been promised. His position is curiously like that of the second cautious man sitting behind the players at the conference table in Vienna.

PRESIDENT NIXON and Brezhnev seem to be poles apart in almost every respect. Yet in their respective spheres they have come to positions of power conditioned in such a way that taking bold initiatives is difficult, if not impossible. Each has had to make compromises along the way. On both sides a powerful military bloc enforces caution and inveighs against taking any risk that might endanger what must seem in the objective view a wholly mythical security.

They are alike, too, in that each has the strongest possible motivation to get an agreement that would mean a pause and prevent a new and probably reversible escalation in the arms race. If the Kremlin faces serious economic problems, the Nixon administration in Washington can hardly conceal the depth of America's troubles, both economic and political.

Whatever the actual military superiority in missiles and submarines, the United States can hardly be said to be negotiating in Vienna from a position of strength. The troubles on the home front—the war in Vietnam, crime, organized violence and nihilism—are too great. While the defense budget has been cut by as much as $10 billion it still, at $70 billion, takes far too great a toll from the surplus that might go toward correcting the profound disorders disrupting life in America.

THAT IS the reason to hold out some hope for this beginning of a serious effort to go beyond mere appraisal of the vast stores of nuclear annihilation on each side of the divide. Plain, common sense would seem to dictate terms that each side could live with.

This would mean undeniably a risk—a risk, say, that a moratorium on deployment of the new many-headed missile, the MIRV, would be violated by the Russians. That risk must be weighed against the danger of a new round in the race and the accumulation of new and far more deadly weapons into an unforeseeable future. Surely, the military blocs in the Pentagon and the Kremlin cannot simply dismiss that risk.

No matter what the ultimate outcome, the side first to propose a bold course duly weighing the risks would win, in the view of this observer, a victory in public opinion around the world. It would be good to say that, as the ceremonial opening is staged while the cameras whir, such a move is in sight. But it would not be true.

ART BUCHWALD

Martyrdom Of Rory Edelweiss To Preserve Sacred Form 1040

WASHINGTON — The dismissal of Rory Edelweiss from the Internal Revenue Service has been upheld by Bureau 1040 as well as 1040A of the IRS and has been confirmed by Clark Mollenhoff, the White House assistant in charge of income tax returns.

Edelweiss has become a cause celebre in taxpayer circles because he tried to simplify the federal tax form, much to the horror of everyone in the Department of the Treasury.

His supervisor, Glenndenning Hindsight, said that the IRS was perfectly right to fire Edelweiss.

"HE WAS a troublemaker," Hindsight said, "and could have destroyed the entire tax-collection system in this country."

"What did Edelweiss try to do?"

"He tried to write a tax form that the average taxpayer could understand."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"Who knows what goes on in a mind like that? Some think he was working under too much pressure. Others say if he had been given a test when he was 6 years old, we would never have hired him.

"In any case, Edelweiss came to us eight months ago with a simple tax form which anyone could have filled out. He had eliminated references to forms 2440, 3903, 2106 and 2350SE, and such phrases as 'see tax rate schedule III on T-1 and tax table B on T-2'."

"WHAT DID you do?"

"We thought he was joking at first. But Edelweiss said he was dead serious. He had worked on the return for over a year and felt that the implementation of it could cut down the taxpayer's work to three hours."

"I hope you told Edelweiss where to get off," I said.

"As his immediate superior, I tried to talk sense into him. I told him that if we simplified the present federal tax form so people could understand it, they might decide not to pay their taxes. The real purpose of a complicated tax return form was to wear the taxpayer down, so by the time he finished making out the return, he was so exhausted he would be willing to pay whatever he had just to get the return out of his house."

"HE MUST HAVE seen the logic in that," I said.

"Edelweiss was adamant. He said under his system the tax forms were so simple that he could save the country the 1,700,210,000 man-hours of work which are now devoted to filling out the 1040 return.

"But I told Edelweiss that if God wanted the American people to have a simple tax return he would have created one for them. He wouldn't budge, so I have no choice but to turn him in to the au horities."

"They must have been upset when they heard Edelweiss was trying to make a tax return that anyone could understand."

"Absolutely furious. The IRS has a staff of 1,400 people who do nothing but complicate the income tax forms. Whenever they discover that an item is comprehensible, they immediately take it out and replace it with something so vague and confusing that no one will get it. When they heard one of their own was trying to simplify the life of the taxpayer, they considered it treachery of the first order."

"SO HE WAS fired?"

"We made an example of him. After what we did to Edelweiss, it's going to be a long time before anybody comes up with any bright ideas on how to save the taxpayer his sanity and time."

Holy Week Observances

Holy Week for the Eastern Orthodox Church will begin tomorrow. The Marin church will begin the week's events with services at 10:15 a.m. at Montgomery Chapel of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo with Rev. George Bogdanos as celebrant.

Holy Wednesday and Thursday services will be at 7:30 p.m., as will the Epitafion service on Holy Friday. Women of the church will decorate the Epitafion or Tomb of Christ on Friday morning at the chapel.

Service of the Resurrection or Anastasis will begin at 11 p.m. next Saturday. The traditional red Easter egg will be distributed to the congregation at the close of the service.

Psaltis or chanters for Holy Week will be William Poulopoulos and Jerome Caran. The choir, under the direction of Caran, will sing on Holy Friday and Saturday.

On the Feastday of St. Thomas, May 39, services will be moved up to 10 a.m. so the congregation can assemble at the Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax for its "Grecian Holiday in Marin" picnic-fair.

The picnic-fair is the major fund-raiser for the newly organized congregation. It will feature food, refreshments, pastry and imported gift sale and games. Entertaining will be the Trio Orfeo bouzoukia from San Francisco's and the Balkanke dancers, who will perform and offer free dancing lessons.

The general public is cordially invited to enjoy this typical Greek holiday celebration.

The Eastern Orthodox church celebrates Easter at a different time that Western churches do three out of four years because of one variant in setting the date.

While both divisions hold Easter the first Sunday after the first full moon following the spring equinox, the Eastern church adds the stipulation that it must also fall after Passover.

A Theological Link Made To Environment

NEW YORK (AP) — "Earth Mother," the ancient mystery religions called it. St. Francis of Assisi expressed man's identity with nature in terms such as "Brother Ant" and "Sister Water." The late theologian-missionary Albert Schweitzer summed up the same attitude in the phrase, "reverence for life."

Such recurring intimations of the interrelationship of all creation, great and small, and humanity's stake in caring for it, is moving to the forefront of theology today in the awakened anxiety about environmental abuse.

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," said the Psalms, adding that so are the mountains, stars, seas, rivers and "every beast of the field . . . the cattle on a thousand hills . . . all the birds of the air . . . and all that moves in the field."

DIVINE PROPERTY

It is divine property that men occupy, not theirs, and not to be ravaged by their tenancy of it, religious scholars are emphasizing increasingly, bolstering the modern church accent on God's involvement in the material affairs of this world.

"Eco-theology," it has been called, a theology of ecology, of land, of conservation, of environment, of nature, an "ecological ethics." A headline in the Jesuit weekly, America, read: "Ecology—the new religion?"

For "too long Christians have interpreted the Genesis command to exercise dominion over the earth as a mandate to conquer and exploit nature," says Dr. Richard A. Baer Jr., a New Testament scholar of Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., now serving on a new Environmental Stewardship Team of the National Council of Churches.

He adds that the ulitarian attitude, coupled with modern technological capabilities and America's constant urge to boost industrial production, threaten the survival of life on the planet.

"Failure to fulfill our obligations as faithful trustees of creation will inevitably bring God's judgment upon us," he says.

"BLASPHEMOUS"

Rev. Dr. Joseph Sittler, of the University of Chicago Divinity School, who has long stressed the unity of the divine with the material cosmos, says the present despoiling of land, air and water not only is idiotic, "it is blasphemous."

"We have fashioned a society and industrial order at a cost and the bill is now due and payable," he says.

Churches across the country were urged by the National Council to observe a special "Environmental Sunday" this weekend.

Astrophysicist To Be Guest Lecturer

Dr. Donald W. Aitken, an astrophysicist and environmentalist, will speak on "Our Paradoxical Views of Nature," at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere.

Currently doing research for the National Science Foundation, Aitken will be the second speaker in the church's ecological series, "The Care of the Earth."

BARE FEET TROUPE GETS APPROVAL FROM BISHOP

LONDON, (London Express) — Visitors to Southwark Anglican Cathedral got a shock recently. A dozen shapely girls in ballet tights and with bare feet were dancing during the Sunday Holy Communion service.

Dr. John Robinson, former bishop of Woolwich, in golden chasuble and mitre, looked on approvingly from his place in the sanctuary.

The dancing girls came in as the large congregation rose for Sydney's Carter's modern hymn, "Lords of the Dance." At the words, "They cut me down and I leapt up high," one girl who had held a crucifixion pose jumped high in the air.

At the start, Rev. Roger Boyle, the succentor, "warmed up" the congregation by saying: "Just let yourselves go today."

He said that one hymn, "Shake and Shiver in the Light, My Love," also by Carter, was having its world premier. "We practiced it for four hours on Friday, behind the locked doors of the cathedral.

The gospel reading, traditionally reserved for a priest, was done by John Hudson, a teacher.

The sermon was a two-way business by Carter and another composer, Donald Swann. Carter said, "Religion and dancing are not opposites although some dancing is awful as some Christianity is awful," and, he added: "These dancers are younger and better looking than any of the theologians."

Retiring Professor Has A Full Calendar

Retirement will be no rest period for Dr. J. Winston Pearce, professor of preaching at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Strawberry.

Pearce, who recently announced his retirment from the post he has held since 1961, has charted a busy year at the close of the spring semester.

During the week of May 17, he will lead the State Pastor's Conference in Arkansas and the following week will visit in Nevada, Mo., where he will be honored with a church homecoming. The Nevada First Baptist Church was his first assignment.

Before returning to the seminary for a short period, Pearce and his wife will attend the Southern Baptist Convention annual meeting in Denver on June 1-5

On Aug. 3, he will deliver the 12th anniversary sermon at the First Baptist Church in Durham, N.C.

His biggest role in the first year of retirement will come late in August when he and his wife will leave for Switzerland where Pearce will serve as professor of preaching at the Baptist Seminary in Ruschlikon.

The Problem Growing On Departures

LONDON (AP) — The number of Roman Catholic priests leaving the ministry is posing a pastoral problem for bishops and religious superiors, says a confidential report circulated to Church leaders all over the world.

The report, from an international Church research center in Western Europe, says the attitude of the Catholic community is far from unanimous in the way it handles the issue.

"According to region, it can still today very from unqualified condemnation to acquiescence, passing through all the stages of understanding," the report said.

NO OPEN SUBJECT

"The subject is still, in the majority of countries, one of those not discussed except by hints on the level of the hierarchies. The result is that the most fantastic information is circulating among ecclesiastics and laymen, all tending, in our experience, in the direction of a grave exaggeration of the number of leavers."

The report suggested it might be better to publish the true figures than to allow "false rumors, generally exaggerated and alarmist" to spread without the possibility of denial.

Only in Holland have complete figures been published. Out of the country's 8,000 priests, 30 left the ministry in 1965, 60 in 1966, 115 in 1967, and 400 in the two years since. At the same time the number of priests dying has exceeded the number of new priests ordained. The present rate of 145 ordinands a year is running at about half what it was 10 years ago.

MAJOR DECISION

The Dutch Pastoral Council has voted overwhelmingly that permanent celibacy should no longer be a condition of ordination.

Bishops supported the council, but Pope Paul VI has ruled that to abandon celibacy would mean "a lowering of the authentic concept of the priesthood."

The Environment Will Be Theme Of Church Rite

The growing concern over environment will be the theme tomorrow at the 10 a.m. service at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church.

Worshippers will be greeted with a banner calling attention to the "good earth as God's gift," according to Rev. John O. Najarian, pastor.

Replacing the sermon will be a choral reading, "Water, Water, Everywhere, and Man Without a Drink."

Displaying materials in the church's patio following the service will be the Marin Ecology Center, Sierra Club, Palnned Parenthood and Zero Population Growth.

Lutherans Urged To Restudy Confirmation

NEW YORK (LC) — America's three major Lutheran church bodies are being called upon to adopt a new and broader concept of confirmation that would radically change practices followed for centuries.

In a marked departure from tradition, changes are recommended that call for earlier communion and later confirmation of pupils in parish education of the American Lutheran Church, Lutheran Church in America, and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Together, they total nine million members.

Under the proposed concept, confirmation would encompass the entire period from infant baptism to mid-adolescence, introducing first communion in grade five at 10-11 years of age, and concluding in grade ten when pupils are 15-16 years old.

Since the Reformation in the 16th Century, many protestant denominations, including in grade ten when pupils are 15-16 years old.

Since the Reformation in the 16th Century, many protestant denominations, including Lutherans, have withheld eligibility for first communion until the end of confirmation, usually in grades eight or nine at 13-14 years of age.

Drafted by a Joint Commission on the Theology and Practice of Confirmation, the copyrighted report, on a study initiated six years ago, has been submitted to the presidents of the three lutheran bodies for consideration by their upcoming conventions.

The first scheduled to consider and act on the report is the LCA, which will meet in biennial session at Minneapolis, June 25-July 1.

Next will be the ALC, whose fifth biennial convention is scheduled in San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 21-27. The LC-MS, whose last convention was held less than a year ago, will meet in Milwaukee in July 1971.

The commission stressed that "the church should become more keenly aware of the fact that all of the pastoral as well as the educational experiences throughout childhood are confirmation ministry."

On the subject of pastoral ministry, the report explained that "it is a style of ministry that calls for greater emphasis on the entire congregation's pastoral care of the child."

Bishops Set Major Talks On Attitudes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — More than 200 Roman Catholic bishops will meet here next Tuesday through Thursday for discussions of moderinization of the church.

They will consider a proposed statement, entitled "Christians in Our Times," dealing with attitudes Catholics should have toward current problems.

The statement, drafted by a committee headed by Bishop Bernard J. Flanagan, Worcester, Mass., offers assurances of church renewal.

Also on the agenda is the question of Catholic membership in the National Council of Churches and a proposal to open portions of future meetings to the press.

Another proposal would create a Coalition for Social and Economic Development which would educate Catholics concerning problems of foreign and domestic poverty.

The gathering will be for semiannual meetings of the National Conference of Bishops and the United States Catholic Conference.

The Giants' Newest Hero Majored In Baseball

CINCINNATI — Alan Gallagher is as Irish as his name and like a good Irishman he has a sense of humor. Gallagher wasn't born a bog trotter in the old sod across the sea. But his ancestors were and he inherited his sense of humor from them.

Gallagher is a native San Franciscan, as Candlestick Park fans know only too well after all the copy written about him during the first week of the 1970 baseball campaign when he became the early season rookie sensation of the National League.

The columns of copy about Gallagher recalling how he prepped for big time baseball at Mission High and later Santa Clara University was heady stuff for the first local boy to play for the San Francisco Giants.

Jesuits Insist On Books, Too

"I picked up a little book learning at both places," said the 24-year-old Irishman, emphasizing the word little. "Even though baseball was my major at Santa Clara, the good Jesuits insisted on qualifying with the books, too. They have an insistent way about such things. But it didn't interfere with my major."

Naturally, Gallagher was delighted with his .500 (15-for-30) batting average after his first seven games against major league pitching. But what concerned him was an erroneous boxscore reflection on his third base glove.

In Atlanta, first stop of the Giants on their present road trip, Gallagher bought both morning and afternoon newspapers, the Constitution and the Journal. Like every major league baseball player before him, the rookie immediately flipped the pages to the sports sections.

A Spectacular Double Header

The press association stories of last Sunday's doubleheader confirmed that Gallagher indeed did go 7-for-9 but that wasn't enough to prevent the Cincinnati Reds from sending the Giants into a double dip.

Then, still like every major league player before him, Gallagher studied the agate type boxscores. The Giants made four errors in the first game of the doubleheader. Gallagher's name was among those listed in the error department.

"Are these boxscores official?" he asked one of the baseball writers traveling with the Giants.

When he was assured they weren't and that he hadn't been charged with any error in the official boxscores, Gallagher said:

Will Have To Depend On Glove

"That's a relief because I'll have to depend on my glove after the pitchers whittle my bat down to size."

Did Gallagher know that pitchers throughout the league have a way of passing along information to each other about hot early season hitters?

"Somebody told me they have their own union in compiling books on hitters," he said. "Obviously, the one on me hasn't been completed yet. When it is I'll have to rely on my glove. That's why I asked whether those boxscores were official.

Errors Bad In Anything

"I don't want any errors in my record. They're bad."

But surely he realized he already had one error, an unnecessarily hard throw in the fifth game of the season that even Willie McCovey, a first base artist in scooping short hops, couldn't handle.

"That," said Gallagher, "was a beneficial error. I learned something from it. If you yearn from an error, it's good."

Redwood Wins Key Marin Battle

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Undefeated Redwood High School Giants scored twice in the first inning yesterday and held on to edge previously unbeaten San Marin of Novato, 2-1, and take over first place in the Marin County Athletic League baseball race.

San Marin, which had been tied with the Giants of Larkspur for the top spot, fell into a second place tie at 3-1 won-lost with Novato and Terra Linda, both winners yesterday. Novato demolished Tamalpais, 17-1, and Terra Linda clipped Drake in nine innings, 5-4.

In the day's other games, the San Rafael Bulldogs rode the shutout pitching of Charley Gray to their first league victory this season, 4-0 over Marin Catholic.

San Marin's Steve Francis, who pitched no - hit ball the final six innings, allowed back to back doubles by Pete Cooney and Frank Pomilia and a single by Tom Wickert that gave Redwood (4-0) two runs in the bottom of the first.

The Mustangs got their tally in the third on a single by Ken Gnoss and Jack Burnam's double.

Redwood's Roger Smith, who took over the pitching for Jeff Ned in the second inning when the latter sprained an ankle coming off the mound, received credit for the victory.

Novato pounded Tamalpais for 17 hits, including home runs by Kim Kirwin and Bill Busher, and two doubles by Randy Jackson, as the Hornets ran their league won-lost record to 3 and 1. Busher, only a sophomore, had three hits to raise his average to .643.

Catcher Rick Payne stroked a line drive into the open spaces to score Bob Daniele with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth as Terra Linda handed the Drake Pirates their fourth straight loss. Larry Kerr had been walked intentionally to load the base after Daniele and Dewey Forry walked and moved up on Jim Lazzarini's sacrifice.

Daniele had a perfect afternoon with three hits in three trips to the plate.

San Rafael's Dirk Gansloser tripled in Bruce Maglione in the top of the seventh with the only earned run of the game as the Bulldogs handed Marin Catholic its fourth loss without a win. Gray spun a five hitter to pick up the win.

Giants Live. . . And Die. . . By Long Ball

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati refused to knuckle under to San Francisco's strong hitting and put on a power display of its own Friday night.

"The kids never quit," Reds Manager Sparky Anderson said. "They're a great bunch to manage and they just keep on fighting."

The Reds used five homers, including a solo shot by Hal McRae and a three-run blast by Tony Perez in the ninth inning, to rally for an 8-5 victory over three Giants.

"I've been looking at a lot of long balls," San Francisco Manager Clyde King said after the game in which the Giants registered one homer–by Willie McCovey. "Sixteen balls have been hit out in the last three games."

In two previous games with Houston, the Giants clouted a total of five homers and the Astros chalked up five also as the Astros won 7-6 Wednesday night and San Francisco 11-9 Thursday night.

The victory for Cincinnati was its fourth straight and upped the team's West division leading mark to 10-3. The homers give the Reds 18 for the season and their pace is slightly ahead of that the 1956 Reds and the 1947 New York Giants averaged in tying for the National League single season team home run mark of 221.

The Reds were trailing 5-4 entering their half of the ninth after McCovey had put the Giants ahead in the top half with his fourth homer in as many games.

McRae, pinchhitting, led off for Cincinnati and crashed his first major league homer. Then Pete Rose singled and Bobby Tolan was walked intentionally after a sacrifice. The stage was set for Perez.

"I wasn't trying for a homer," said Perez who has five homers this season. "I was just trying to meet the ball.

"We're never down. We get behind one run and say we got to get two. Then we get three or four."

THREE RALLIES

The Reds trailed three times on the night and came back all three times.

The Giants took a 1-0 margin in the first but John Bench and Lee May slugged successive homers in the fourth to forge Cincinnati into a 2-1 lead.

The Giants erupted for three runs in the fifth inning in a rally ignited by hot-hitting Alan Gallagher and Ken Henderson who each rapped two hits in four at bats. But Cincinnati came back to tie the game 4-4 in the seventh on a two-run poke by Rose, his first homer of the year.

Tony Cloninger spelled starter Gary Nolan in the three-run fifth and held the Giants scoreless in 2 1-3 innings. Wayne Granger pitched the ninth.

Cloninger's showing prompted Anderson to say that "He is back. He is throwing the ball as well as he ever has."

The Reds and Giants were to tangle here this afternoon.

Pro Cage Merger Delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Merger negotiations between the rival National and American Basketball associations have been temporarily halted by a federal court order.

Judge Lloyd F. MacMahon of U.S. District Court issued a temporary restraining order Friday, pending a hearing May 1.

He acted on a request by attorneys for the 14 player representatives of NBA teams who had filed an antitrust suit Thursday in an effort to block the proposed merger.

Judge MacMahon, in his temporary stay order, ruled that the Sherman Antitrust Act "applies to sports other than baseball in the same way it applies to other commercial enterprises engaged in interstate commerce."

"Patently, merger or other combination of the NBA and the ABA will eliminate one of two competitors and leave only one surviving major professional basketball league," Judge MacMahon continued. "Such a merger raises serious questions as to its legality . . ."

Noting that some of the NBA players have already signed contracts to play in the ABA in future seasons, the judge said that athletes "now free to negotiate for future contracts with either of the rivals is eliminated by merger or other combination.

"When we consider that youth passes away and consequently basketball players have limited professional careers, the threat of immediate and irreparable injury to the plaintiffs seems clear enough."

A's Get The Early Jump This Time In 'Psycho Series' With Minnesota

OAKLAND (AP) — When Catfish Hunter gets runs, he is as good as any pitcher in the American League.

Hunter got all the runs he needed Friday night as the Oakland A's won the opened of the "psychological saries" with the Minnesota Twins 5-2.

"If we keep on hitting, we can beat any team in the league," Hunter said. "When Bob Johnson hits a homer, I know I'm going to win."

Johnson and catcher Dave Duncan each homered for the A's off Minnesota starter and loser Jim Kaat. Johnson's homer was only his third in the last three years.

Hunter struck out nine and walked only two in pitching a five-hitter for his second victory of the season. In his first two starts, the A's got him only two runs.

Al Downing, 1-0, was scheduled to start for the A's today against Louis Tiant, 0-0, of Minnesota.

Catfish got off to a shaky start Friday when Tony Oliva hit a two-run homer in the first inning, but then settled down to blank the Twins the rest of the way.

The victory was important from a psychological standpoint, because last season Minnesota established quick superiority over the A's early in the season and it lasted until they had won the American League West pennant.

"Coming back the way we did gave us a big lift," Oakland outfielder Rick Monday said. "Last season, we didn't do that against Minnesota."

The A's collected 13 hits Friday night, including three by third baseman Roberto Pena and two each by Monday, Felipe Alou and Johnson.

Shortstop Bert Campaneris suffered a twisted left ankle trying to score in the first inning and had to leave the game. He probably will be out of action for several days and may not play in the final two games with Minnesota today and Sunday.

Warriors Corral Santa Clara Ace

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ralph Ogden, 6-foot-5 forward at Santa Clara, has signed a contract with the San Francisco Warriors of the National Basketball Association, the club announced Friday.

Ogden averaged 21.9 points per game as the Broncos won a third straight West Coast Athletic Conference in the 1969-70 season.

He was also drafted by the Los Angeles Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Warriors' owner Franklin Mieuli said, "I watched Ralph play in high school and all through his college career and he's always been an outstanding player."

No terms of the signing were announced.

During the three years he was at Santa Clara, the Broncos compiled a 72-12 record and he scored 1,280 points. His brother Bud, was a first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA last year. Ralph was the Warriors' fourth-round pick.

They will be the first brother combination in the NBA since Tom and Dick Van Arsdale came out of Indiana in 1965.

Southern Cal Defeats Bears

BERKELEY (AP) — Southern California, sparked by relief pitching of freshman Erich Raich, combined four hits and a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning to defeat California 4-2 in a Pacific-8 baseball game Friday.

Raich allowed just one hit in four and two-thirds innings, striking out eight.

The Trojans now lead the Pac 8 Southern Division with a 2-0 record and stand 31-7 overall. California, 18-10, is 1-1 in league play.

ARCHER, 40, AND JOHNSON, 44

Old Folks Lead At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Maybe it's the Southern cooking but whatever it is, tall and lean George Archer found himself on top again today in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament and it's beginning to look like he might stay there.

The 6-6 Archer, who turned 40 last fall, knocked five strokes off the Lakewood Country Club's long course with a 67 Friday for a 36-hole total of 133. He took command early with six birdies on the front nine where he needed only 12 putts and moved into a two-stroke lead.

Behind him was another rebuff to golf's youth movement in Howie Johnson, a 44-year-old Californian who had the day's best round with a 66. Johnson also had something new in a Bible given him by the fun-loving Juan Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico.

PLAYER'S WOES

It was a day in mixed performances for some of golf's top shooters. Former National Open champion Lee Trevino got back into the act with a 69 for a 141 while Gary Player had all sorts of putting woes, including a four-putt 12th hole, and stumbled to a 140 with a 74. New Masters champion Billy Casper and National Open champion Orville Moody joined by six others at 138.

Oddly enough, Archer used a borrowed putter again, as he did in the first round. The grip "just fell off mine and I've got to have it fixed." Australian Bob Stanton, who now lives in New Orleans, loaned the putter to Archer.

"I did a lot of things wrong and got away with them," Archer said. "I have a tendency to get careless and my mind wanders. Heck, on the 18th, I missed my second shot when I looked up. That's just silly. Guys like Rodriguez can clown around and I think that's good for golf. But we all play the game differently and I have to play it the way I know how. I have to concentrate or I'm in trouble."

NO STRANGER

Archer is no stranger to success over the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course. He won here in 1968 and set a tournament record of 271 doing it. He said he likes the course and planned to take it easy Friday night and "eat some of that New Orleans seafood."

Dean Refram, tied for the first round runnerup stop with a 66, fell to a 74 Friday while Moody struggled to a 72, six off his opening round showing.

The trimmed-down field, minus 1961 New Orleans winner Doug Sanders, who missed the cutoff point of 144 by one stroke, will fight for the $25,000 winner's check in the final 36-holes today and Sunday.

Tomorrow's final holes will be televised on Channel 2 at 2:15 p.m.

Marin Drops Track Meet

College of Marin track team took first place in nine of sixteen events but still lost to Santa Rosa yesterday, 73½-62½, at Santa Rosa.

Dean Deffenbaugh was a triple winner for the Tars, capturing the 100 yard dash in 10.2 seconds, the long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 5 inches and the high jump at 5-10.

Luther Brown and Don Makela were double winners for Marin. Brown took the 120 high hurdles in 15.6, and the 220 dash in 22.8. Makela won the mile and two mile, with times of 4:27.5 and 9:47.8.

ALCINDOR EXPLODES

Bucks Finally Stop N.Y.; Lakers Win, Near Sweep

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Listen, the New York Knicks are setting off Lew Alcindor. Tick . . . tick . . . tick. Boom!

Alcindor, charged up after two losses to New York, scored 33 points and collected a club record 31 rebounds to lead Milwaukee to a pressure 101-96 victory in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night.

It was a must win for the young Bucks against the Knicks, who now hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-7 Eastern Division finals with game No. 4 coming up in Milwaukee Sunday.

NEAR SWEEP

In the night's other NBA playoff game, the Los Angeles Lakers moved within one game of sweeping the Western Division finals with a 115-114 overtime triumph over the Atlanta Hawks.

The New York Nets tripped Kentucky 122-118 in overtime, Denver beat Washington 130-111 and Los Angeles turned back Dallas 115-103 in opening round games of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bucks erased an early Knick advantage and sprinted to a 29-16 first quarter lead at Milwaukee.

New York repeatedly narrowed the gap, but could never come closer than seven points. Bob Dandridge helped keep the pressure on the Knicks with 22 points.

NEW RECORD

Alcindor's 31-rebound performance wiped out the old Milwaukee record of 22, held jointly by Greg Smith and Don Smith.

Wilt Chamberlain, a notoriously poor shooter, sank two in a row with 17 seconds left to give the Lakers a 3-0 edge going to Sunday's game at Los Angeles. Atlanta's Butch Beard hit two free throws to tie the score at 105 after regulation time.

Chamberlain, who made nine of 16 from the free throw line, finished with 18 points and 26 rebounds. The Lakers lost Jerry West and Dick Garrett on personal fouls in the fourth quarter. West finished with 35 points while Lou Hudson and Beard each hit 22 for the Hawks.

FOREMAN

Ex-Olympic Ring Champ Wins Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Sadler, the manager-trainer, likes to speak of George Foreman as "a little old green pea in a pod" but the former Olympic champion has won 18 straight and is moving in on the big money.

Foreman, a pro only 10 months, stopped John J. Woody of New York in 37 seconds of the third round Friday night at the Felt Forum in Madison Square Garden. There were no knockdowns but Foreman was punishing Woody and had bloodied his nose and cut his left eye before referee Johnny Colan stopped it. Some of the crowd of 3,361 paying $10,834 disagreed but it seemed to be the right decision.

"I did my job," said the 21-year-old Foreman, and he (Colan) did his. I was pleased with his work and the way the Garden handled the fight professionally."

With 18 fights in 10 months and 15 knockouts to his credit, Foreman plans to keep busy on a schedule reminiscent of the old Joe Louis work load.

Foreman next will fight April 29 at Cleveland against Aaron Eastling of St. Paul. He as a ten active May 16 date in Los Angeles with Scrap Iron Johnson and another tentative May 25 date in Philadelphia with Roger Russell.

Teddy Brenner, Garden matchmaker, is holding Foreman as a possible opponent for Jerry Quarry in the Garden June 17 if a proposed Quarry-Mac Foster bout falls through.

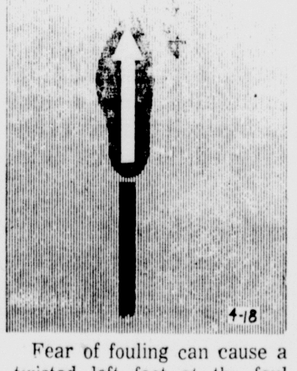
Skeet Match On Tap At Hamilton Field

The Hamilton Air Force Base Rod and Gun Club will host the "Golden Poppy Open" skeet match, April 25-26 at the Hamilton range.

Information about the event, which is open to all National Skeet Shooting Association members, as well as those wishing to join NSSA, is available from Col. Melvin Jarvis at the Hamilton Rod and Gun Club.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Fear of fouling can cause a twisted left foot at the foul line. If you are subconsciously afraid of going over the foul line, you may automatically turn your left foot to the right at this point. This causes an unnatural release. Plan your approach so that your left foot stops four inches behind the line. Most often it will be properly straight.

Marin Swim Team Second

A well balanced College of Marin swimming team, led by double winner Bruce Averill, placed second Thursday to De Anza College of Cupertino in the Camino Norte Conference championships at Cupertino. Marin scored 110 points of De Anza's 191.

Averill took firsts in the 100 and 200 yard backstroke events, and placed third in the 200 individual medley.

Taking seconds for Marin were Dave Topance in the 50 free, Bill Kuhn in the 200 free, Brent Bedayan in the 100 breast and Greg Myers in the 100 free.

Marin's league record was seven wins and eight losses.

Today is Saturday, April 18, the 108th day of 1970 with 257 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full stage. The morning star is Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1775 Paul Revere made his famous ride through the Massachusetts countryside, calling out "The British are coming!"

In 1906 the three-day San Francisco earthquake began. It killed 500 persons and left 250,000 homeless.

In 1942 Lt. Col. James Doolittle led a squadron of 16 B25 bombers on the first bombing mission against Japan in World War II.

In 1964, two transport planes collided over Ohio, killing 17 servicemen.

A thought for the day: British statesman John Selden said, "They that govern the most make the least noise."

Innocent Plea To Burglar Tools

known address, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of possessing burglary tools and attempted burglary. A jury trial was set for the week of April 27.

Sharper, who gave his name as Ray Byrd when arrested, was arrested March 26 in Sausalito when police saw him running out of an alleyway after a burglar alarm had gone off in the Sausalito Rexall Pharmacy at 701 Bridgeway.

They said he dropped two metal bars when ordered to stop.

Two men later arrested on the same charges were released when there was insufficent evidence to tie them to the offenses.

KING TO ACE

South ruffed the second round of clubs and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. Then he led a diamond, losing dummy's king to the ace.

Nobody said anything, but when a kibitzer delicately holds his nose you can tell what he thinks of the way things are going. Still, nothing went wrong because the hand was unbeatable. South ruffed the club return and ran his diamonds. West could take the queen of hearts when he liked, but the defenders could get nothing else. South won game and rubber, but no respect.

DANGEROUS PLAY

A good player almost invariably sets up the side suit before drawing trumps when both suits are shaky. If the side suit breaks badly, he will need dummy's trumps to help set the suit up; if the trumps break badly, he may need the long side suit to act as auxiliary trumps.

POSSIBLE STRENGTH

The danger of cashing the top trumps before leading diamonds is that the player with the ace of diamonds may also have started with the Q-J-x-x of trumps. If so, he will take the ace of diamonds, draw all of the trumps and then run the clubs.

South is somewhat safer if he knocks out the ace of diamonds before touching the trumps. If he runs into a bad trump break he may still go down, but he has a better chance to make the contract or save a trick from the wreckage.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 2 no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 9 8 2
♥ - Q 6 4
♦ - 5 3 2
♣ - J 10 9 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Partner's bid is very strong, but not forcing. You need about one additional point to respond.

Repairs Ordered To School Roof

The Old Adobe School District board has tentatively agreed to award a $2,100 contract for roof repairs at Bernard Elderedge School to Henris Roofing of Petaluma, according to Supt. Dean D. Magowan.

Henris submitted the bid Thursday night. The damage was caused in part by children playing on the roof, Magowan said.

In another matter, the board was informed the planned six-room addition to La Tercera School is being delayed again because of an inability to sell state bonds. Poor bond market conditions and uncertainty over the outcome of Proposition 7, raising the state bond interest rate, were cited as reasons.

Six Girls Competing For Crown Of West Marin Livestock Show

Six girls, including a resident of San Rafael, are competing for the title of Queen of the West Marin Junior Livestock Show to be held at Point Reyes Station June 20-21.

The winner will reign at the fair and will receive a $500 Lions Club scholarship, and the queen and her two princesses will win a trip to Disneyland and gowns for the inauguration ball and parade.

The girls who sell the most tickets to the livestock show will become queen, and those second and third will be princesses.

The contestants are:

JEANNE BALLATORE, a 16-year-old senior at Tomales High School, is a resident of Valley Ford.

She has served as freshman representative to the student council, freshman secretary, cheerleader, senior secretary, Girls Athletic Association president and sweetheart of the Future Farmers of America.

Supervisor Candidate Opens Headquarters

Campaign headquarters for Richard Day, a candidate for the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, opened yesterday at 159 Kentucky Street, Petaluma.

The office is scheduled to be open for six days a week and will serve as the center for volunteer efforts for Day.

Barbershop Night

A "barbershop harmony night" will be staged at 8:30 p.m. today at the Corte Madera Recreation Center, sponsored jointly by the Corte Madera Lions Club and the Marin chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Sonoma State Students Vote To End Fee Program

Students at Sonoma State College have voted overwhelmingly in favor of abolishing mandatory student activity fees, jeopardizing the future of regular campus programs.

The vote on a referendum Wednesday and Thursday was 713 against mandatory fees and 254 in favor.

An annual $18 student fee has been collected to support student government itself, athletics, the student newspaper and other programs. Under the vote, such a fee will be voluntary.

The referendum was prompted by a petition circulated by a group headed by student body president James Gillette.

The vote opens the door for a possible off-campus government and leaves the regular government in a position of seeking other sources of revenue for support of activities—if many students do not choose to pay a voluntary fee.

GET OFF THAT HOOK!

ARE YOU one of those guys who has swallowed the bait of a secure but mediocre income? Do you really want to spend years just trying to make ends meet? Are you looking forward to a gold watch when you're put out to pasture - and then to the ever shrinking purchasing power of a pension? Kind of scary, isn't it?

Why don't you get off that hook? A lot of people who were just like you did something about it. They became their own bosses as STA-POWER Distributors. Many are making more money now than they thought they ever would - and are having a ball doing it. They're involved in one of the largest industries in the nation, one which has no place to go but up. That's real security.

Get on the other end of that hook and line. Fill out the coupon and mail it -- NOW. You might just get off that hook and we'll be glad to help you do it.

I WANT TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT STA-POWER DISTRIBUTORS. PLEASE CONTACT ME IMMEDIATELY. I UNDERSTAND THERE IS NO OBLIGATION.

Commissioner Raps Corporate Censors

By NICHOLAS JOHNSON

There is censorship in this country all right.

Television networks censor themselves and their guests—while asserting their commitment to free speech and denying self-censorship.

The Nixon Administration attempts to control the broadcasters' comments—while professing its abhorrence of government censorship.

Meanwhile, notwithstanding a rare hassle in public, both parties agree well enough on what should be kept from the American people. It is long past time that we begin to examine the serious questions of "corporate censorship."

WHEN THE Founding Fathers drafted the First Amendment, they feared that the government might one day attempt to interfere with the freedoms of speech and press.

Accordingly, they carefully protected the people against censorship by the government, stating, "Congress shall make no law. . .abridging the freedom of speech, or the press. . ."

However, the power centers have changed since 1789—and the ability to influence thought and opinion has shifted from public to private hands. Today, 100 corporations own about half the manufacturing assets in the country. Our information comes in large part from three national radio and TV networks—ABC, CBS, and NBC—and from two wire services, AP and UPI.

We must recognize that we may have to expand the protections of the First Amendment if we are to eliminate censorship.

ON TWO RECENT occasions, CBS cut from its late-night Merv Griffin Show requests by Elke Sommer and Carol Burnett that people mail letters supporting world peace to Mrs. Martin Luther King, for forwarding to President Richard M. Nixon.

A few weeks ago, ABC censored remarks made by folksinger Judy Collins on the Dick Cavett Show. The remarks were reportedly "sharply critical" of Judge Julius Hoffman and the Chicago conspiracy trial.

And last year NBC cut Robert Montgomery's remarks on the Johnny Carson Show when he mentioned that a CBS television station was being investigated by Congress and the FCC.

Yet these are the most recent incidents in which various TV networks have used their power to silence opinions with which they disagree, which they feel would offend advertisers or injure profits, or which they fear might stimulate official reaction.

Tommy Smothers has said that 75 per cent of the Smothers Brothers shows were altered in some way by CBS censors. The network censored Joan Baez's dedication of a song to her jailed husband. It banned any appearance whatsoever by Dr. Benjamin Spock. Ultimately, it censored the entire Smothers Brothers Show.

THE FCC WAS disturbed by Vice President Spiro Agnew's apparent intimidation of the networks after they had "commented" on the President's speech about Vietnam. The agency replied to letters backing the vice president with the official and unanimous observation that "the drafters of the First Amendment to our Constitution knew that the way to preserve truth was not through government surveillance or censorship, (for that government may also be wrong,) but by giving all persons with views the freedom to express them."

Even Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS, in forthright response to the vice president, has acknowledged that "no more serious episode has occurred in government-press relationships since the dark days of the fumbling infancy of the republic when the ill-fated Alien and Sedition Acts forbade criticism of the government and its policies on pain of exile or imprisonment."

He went on to indicate that CBS would resist such pressures to "freedom of communications."

Yet what "freedom of communications" does this country really have if censorship is exercised, not by the government but by the large private corporations that control much of our access to news and opinion—the three national television networks?

I contend that the networks have so designed their programming that important information affecting lives and health is being kept from the public.

I believe that this is information that, if generally known, might damage the corporate profits of the networks and their advertisers.

I refer to a number of examples of this "corporate censorship"— such as information about shoddy products, critics' evaluations of the new TV shows, corporate profits from war. I do not say that the networks never broadcast such information; just that they broadcast very little, very seldom, and usually too late.

Goodtime Music Played Country Style

See Page M2

IN COLORFUL country and western dress, on stage, and ready to perform are the six members of the Thompson Brothers country music group, four of whom are Marinites. Left to right, they are Carl Remak who professionally is Carl Thompson, Steve Jossell, Warren LeRoy Jones, Linda Edmiston, Greg Lasser and Jesse Remak who in the music world is Jesse Thompson. Carl and Jesse formed the group two years ago and adopted the name Thompson Brothers.

Country Music Is Their Bag—

Thompson Brothers Like The Hillbilly Tunes Best

By DON KEOWN

"It's good-time music, fun to play and fun to listen to."

Thus does their spokesman explain the choice of repertoire of the Thompson Brothers, a six-member country music aggregation, four of whom reside in Marin.

Only two of the six are actually brothers. In fact, one of the other four is a very attractive girl. And not one of the six actually is named Thompson.

BUT JESSE and Carl Remak, the brothers who organized the group two years ago, chose the name Thompson Brothers "because Thompson has an American sound to it" and "because country music seems to be kind of a family thing — you know, the Carter Family, the Monroe Brothers. . ."

And professionally, they prefer to be referred to as Jesse and Carl or Slim Thompson.

Jesse, at 24 the oldest brother and a San Rafael resident, plays rhythm guitar and sings. Carl, 23, a Fairfax resident, plays bass guitar and also sings.

THE OTHER members are:

"Cousin" Linda Edmiston of San Francisco, the pretty girl vocalist who also plays the autoharp and guitar "and is our moral support." She is a housewife and the mother of three children.

"Pickin" Greg Lasser, also of San Francisco, who plays banjo, mandolin, guitar and sings.

Warren LeRoy Jones of San Rafael, lead and steel guitarist and the six-string dobro virtuoso.

"Speedy" Steve Jossell of Bolinas, the percussionist, who is the newest "Brother."

"I GUESS ALL of us got started in music when we were kids," says Jesse, who does the talking for the group.

The group itself began, he says, "when I went up to Carl one day and just said, 'let's start up a band.'"

Jesse goes on: "So we got in touch with some people we knew who were also country music pickers, and we started getting together and jamming a bit. We were so happy with our sound that we decided to go ahead and perform."

IT WAS THEN that Jesse and Carl Remak became Jesse and Carl Thompson for musical purposes.

There have been several changes in the lineup of the Thompson Brothers since that start, but the emphasis has remained steadfastly upon country music or country-rock.

"Most of us were raised in country music backgrounds," Jesse says. "In fact, Warren is from Nashville. And the stars

Tips of Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

"How Should My Wedding Gown Be Preserved?"

Naturally you expect me to suggest that the first thing you do is to send your gown to a reliable cleaner. I won't suggest it. I'll demand it! Though it appears clean there are scores of ways in which it can be soiled. Perspiration, liquid refreshments, wedding cake, etc. can result in spots or attract ravenous insects. Your cleaner will hand-clean your gown and package it carefully for storage.

Wedding gowns should be wrapped carefully with tissue between folds to protect each layer from the weight of the layer above. Thus folds are rounded, not creased, which over a long period of time can cause damage.

Store your gown in a dry place, an attic rather than a damp basement. Dampness causes mildew that thrives on cotton, linen and rayon.

Follow these simple suggestions and your wedding gown will be safe until the next wedding.

we have admired have been people like Tammy Wynette, Buck Owens, Johnny Cash and Bob Dylan."

JESSE COMPARES the singing of "Cousin" Linda, a five-foot seven-inch brunette, to that of Tammy Wynette — "clear, powerful and pure."

Members of the Musicians' Union, the Thompson Brothers have appeared at such places as the Matrix in San Francisco, Marin's own Lions Share, the Poppycock in Palo Alto, Club Babylon in Berkeley, the End of the Beginning in Cotati, the Odyssey in San Mateo, College of Marin, San Francisco State College and San Francisco Art Academy.

On Easter Sunday they played and sang at sunrise services in Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais. Religious music is an important part of their repertoire.

THIS WEEK they were among the entertainers at the peace mobilization in San Francisco's Civic Center. On Wednesday, they will perform for an ecology fair in the Oakland Sports Arena.

They have a May 1 date at the Fairfax Pavilion.

JESSE REMAK, or in country music circles, Jesse Thompson, was, with his brother Carl, a co-founder of the Thompson Brothers and plays rhythm guitar and sings. He is a San Rafael resident.

WARREN LeROY JONES of San Rafael is the Thompson Brothers lead guitarist who also plays the six-string dobro and other instruments. He hails from Nashville, Tenn., long a hotbed of rural music activity.

The Sound Of Guitars And Gut Buckets

composed of high school youths and young people in their early 20s.

"But some old-timers also show up," Jesse says, "and some of them really get nostalgic listening to the country tunes, especially after a few beers."

ACTUALLY, MUCH of their music is of recent origin. But all of it has the feel and the flavor of the traditional old-style country music.

Jesse's favorite is "New Gold Mine" which he wrote himself. Linda also has composed. But her favorite is "A Good Girl's Going Bad." She also does "Act Naturally" exceptionally well. Beatle tunes are suited to her voice.

Sacred songs such as "Turn Not Away From Your Savior" and "Seek Jesus, He Still May Be Found" are frequently a part of their programs. So is "Earl's Breakdown." And Lefty Frizzell's classic "Love, I Finally Found It."

"SOME OF THESE may be contemporary songs," Jesse says, "but they give you the feeling of the old Irish, Scottish and English tunes that the Appalachian mountaineers have played for generations."

What is there about this kind of music that these young people of the rock generation find so appealing?

"It has that good beat to it," Jesse answers. "And it tells a story, about sadness, happiness or love, although we emphasize the good-time, happy tunes ourselves. It is more to the point than rock."

HE SAYS THAT all the Thompson Brothers have played "a bit of rock" the past few years and most enjoy it. "But we just happen to prefer country music."

He notes with satisfaction that rock musicians, more and more are adapting "country licks" to their own music, and admits that the reverse is also true.

Their country music is going over very well, Jesse insists. He attributes at least part of its appeal to the fact that it is so danceable — "a lively, different kind of dancing, square dancing, the reels, the stomp dance, the jig of the mountains and the prairies."

THE THOMPSON Brothers themselves represent a wide range of occupations. Along with his music, Jesse works in the community for the Economic Opportunities Council. Another member is a gardener and yet another is employed by a printing firm. One earns his living full-time as a professional musician.

The "brothers" include wearers of both the long and short hair styles. On stage, they wear country-western dress in bright and differing colors.

Their mainstay instruments are the guitar, banjo and the drums. But they sometimes include the gut bucket, the musical saw, the washboard, the Jews' harp, the harmonica, the autoharp and other instruments to create their authentic sounds.

THE SINGING is the high-pitched, nasal sound traditional with the hillbilly brand of music.

Contrary to some opinion, it is not, says Jesse, easy music to play or sing properly. "There are some very precise licks, and it takes good hands, good voices and good timing. Above all, you have to have a feeling for the music.

"There are always some experts in the audience. And if you aren't doing it exactly right, they'll let you know."

RIGHT NOW, says Jesse, the Thompson Brothers have two big goals in mind.

They would like to put out an album for a major recording company. And, as their ultimate ambition, they would like to play in Nashville on the Grand Ole Opry stage where the likes of the Carters and Roy Acuff have trod.

Jesse has yet another ambition of his own. He would like to visit the Appalachians some day and tour the by-roads.

He explains: "I've never been there. And it would be great to go there and listen to those old boys playing the real thing, just as their granddaddies did before them.

"OF COURSE, I've heard some of them on records and over the radio and television. But it's not the same thing as being there and hearing and seeing them in person.

"And some day, I'm going to do just that."

On The Route Kit Carson Once Traveled

Today Grant Avenue, Novato, Features Interesting Shops

By LOIS JANE CLEVELAND

THERE'S NO resemblance between Novato's downtown Main Street as it appeared in the early 1900s in the photograph at top, from the Al Lerch collection, and Grant Avenue as photographed today by an Independent-Journal photographer with its handsome business, professional and financial buildings that share the street with shops that specialize in unusual wares and services.

In 1829, the famous Kit Carson became one of the first Americans to travel through the Novato Valley, then lush with apple, apricot and pear trees.

Carson, some historians have said, was on "a goodwill mission."

Others have reported more accurately that Carson was on a more war-like mission—headed for the Mission San Rafael Arcangel, where, he had heard, an Indian uprising was boiling up.

THAT SAME year, another American, the hardy fur trapper James O. Pattie, too visited the valley in the company of two Coriac Indians.

In his diary he recorded his appreciation of its ideal climate and his amazement at the fruit orchards that covered the landscape.

In 1839 the lands upon which these vast orchards grew were granted to Fernando Feliz by the Mexican Governor of California. Since then the Rancho on the Arroyo de Novato has passed through many hands.

BY THE MID 1890's, farmers to the east of today's busy Highway 101 were sending their children to the first school that had opened its doors in 1862.

In 1896 they attended the Community Presbyterian Church in the building that now serves Novato as its attractive City Hall.

The farmers pumped water out of marshes and creeks for their fertile farms surrounded by what was then hailed as "one of the largest orchards in the entire world."

AND EVEN THEN, they drove or rode into "downtown" Novato to do their shopping and their socializing, although in 1890 the main street consisted of little more than a saloon and a general store.

Certainly neither Kit Carson nor James O. Pattie, and for that matter, not the farmers of the 1890s could have visualized the Novato area as it is today with its extensive residential developments, or Grant Avenue with its imaginative, creative, progressive shopkeepers who seem to specialize in the unusual in wares and services.

For instance, at 869 Grant Avenue, one finds the Full O'-Flavor Shoppe.

AN ATTRACTIVE table set in red and white adorns one window, as it supports platter after platter of delectable doughnuts which are made on the premises.

The smell of freshly ground coffee lures you inside. Here you will find coffee and tea blends from all over the world. Displayed in the burlap sacks in which they're shipped, the aromatic coffee beans are ground before your eyes to your particular taste.

The owner, Ed Schuffert, says "There is a difference between low-priced merchandise and quality merchandise. . .mine is quality."

THE SPOTLESS interior of the shop, sparkling white counters, red and white velvet decor and crystal chandelier speak of high quality and the best in taste delights.

Ingredients used by the former Chicagoan in his doughnuts are farm fresh eggs, soy, wheat, corn flour and pure vegetable oil. . .and the finished products are delightfully decorated.

At 813 Grant Avenue, Stanton's ceramic shop, owned and operated by Mrs. Anne Stanton, deals in greenware, tools, paints and firing. Mrs. Stanton offers free classes in both daytime and evening hours.

RECENTLY widowed, the attractive proprietor of Stanton's, a graduate of Kansas City Art Institute, feels that creativity such as ceramics should be made available to more people. She works with the elderly and hopes to bring a program of ceramics as a hobby into several convalescent homes.

Across from Stanton's is a gift shop, "The Owl's Nest." Here

Mrs. Frances Eldredge had become interested in ceramic work when she was blinded with cataracts and unable to see for three years. During this time she suffered two heart attacks.

"I WAS FORCED to sit quietly and work with my hands."

Her health and vision now restored, she, together with Mrs. Dona Smith, her daughter, have created most of the gift items in the shop. Other pieces are taken on consignment.

Potted plants grace the sidewalk in front of Edwin Smalle Interiors. With a background of work in the Central Intelligence Agency and with several large department store drapery and curtain shops, Ed says, "I just fell into this profession."

Serving clients from throughout the Bay Area and as far north as Sacramento, Smalle's amiable personality and sense of good taste make discriminating Novato homeowners aware of his assistance, and in some cases, he has advised up to the third generation of local families.

IN HIS 13TH year at this shop, Smalle spends much time at the Ice House in San Francisco, where he and his clients may choose furnishings and ideas offered by world famous decorators. His own showroom consists of vignettes of every room of a home, and he invites browsing.

"Good taste," he insists, "reflects individuality rather than money."

Ed feels that men are becoming more interested in home design and effective decor. "More and more interior work is being done throughout the business world. There are fancy offices, ornate executive board rooms. . . and because men pay for decor, I am glad they are interested."

ED SMALLE is a member of American Association of Interior Decorators and has been featured in articles in several nationally known home idea magazines.

These Grant Avenue stores are but a sampling of the shops that have brought a new style and prestige to shopping in Novato. There are many other stores, equally well stocked, just as imaginatively operated, just as capable of surprising and pleasing the shopper by producing the unusual.

No, Kit Carson would not recognize today the verdant valley that so impressed him 140 years ago.

BUT NEITHER would the shoppers of only a few decades back recognize the business district today.

After long years of catering to ranchers and their basic, staple needs, downtown Novato and its Grant Avenue has taken on a new "cosmopolitan" look and function with substantial business buildings and quaint shops mingling colorfully and effectively.

KITCHEN-WARE ideas such as this Vallauris set from France for gourmet cooking, made from clay deposits discovered and used by the Romans, are just one of the enticements offered at Smalle Interiors on Novato's Grant Avenue.

THE TWO-STORY HOUSE that T. H. Richardson built for his family at Kentfield in the 1870s is shown as it looked then in the faded and somewhat tattered photograph at top. In lower photo, present occupant Mrs. Philip McCoy and A. H. Dewees stand before the same New England-style home as it looks today after undergoing remodeling and expansion through the decades. Dewees is chairman for the Garden Society of Marin Tour for Gardeners to be conducted May 2 include the McCoy grounds.

The House That Richardson Built 100 Years Ago

By CONNIE RICHARDSON

It was in about the year 1870 that T. H. Richardson moved to the West, to become a business associate of A. E. Kent who had acquired significant new holdings in Marin County.

As a millwright and farmer, it was Richardson's assignment to build a big house and barn for Kent, plus a home for his own family.

The two-story structure that Richardson constructed for his own use, since remodeled and expanded through the years so that it currently boasts 12 rooms and seven fireplaces, is now owned and occupied by the Philip J. McCoys.

AND THE McCOY grounds will be one of six gardens open for exploration by visitors on May 2 when the Garden Society of Marin conducts its twelfth annual Tour for Gardeners.

Coincidentally, present owner and occupant of the property at 7 Orchard Way, Kentfield, Philip McCoy, like pioneer Richardson, enjoys building and the outdoors, and has been in the lumber business most of his life.

"My husband loved traveling on railroads, learning the business," says Phoebe McCoy. "He even has an old caboose all fixed up next to one of his offices. Long ago there was a railroad station near here."

TODAY AN authentic locomotive's bell is attached to an elm in front of the house.

"A friend found it for me," smiles Mrs. McCoy, who gave it to her husband on his birthday. "We ring it by pulling on the rope and the sound is highly attractive to our dog Molly, named after Tamalpais. She likes to show off by trying to ring it."

Mrs. McCoy has followed the first owner's example by directing the planting of corn along with other vegetables and berries on a rear section of the property.

"I understand Mr. Richardson used a sharpened stick to make holes in which to drop the kernels," she adds. "I'm the basic weeder, myself, but I get some help from the children from time to time . . ."

ACROSS A WIDE sweep of lawn three of five original sequoia giganteas dominate the landscape.

"They were probably planted by John McLaren, a frequent visitor and friend of Mr. Kent," explains Mrs. McCoy. "Last year, they provided a fine background for my daughter Sarah's wedding." Other children are Peter 20, Jenny 17, Martha 15 and Lucy 8.

Phoebe McCoy feels her love of Marin undoubtedly stems from her happy childhood in Spokane, Wash., where he father maintained three acres of lawns and flowers.

"We first came to San Francisco during the World War II when my husband was in the Navy," she says. "Then we moved to Marin and lived in an Esherick-designed house on Woodland Avenue until eight years ago when we bought this property, which right away made me think of my old home.

"OWNERS BEFORE us had added rooms, porches, fireplaces and a swimming pool, and one re-did the foundation. They even gently took down the original wisteria vine and put it back up on a new trellis so that it continues to soften the entrance to the house."

The expansive living room built on after the 1906 earthquake and fire contains a fireplace made entirely of clinker bricks salvaged from that disaster when other materials were in scarce supply.

Although primary plantings were more suited to the Midwest, subsequenly cypress, magnolia, fruit and pine trees and flowering shrubs graced the property along with the sequoias. When the McCoys took possession of the two-acre parcel in 1962 further changes were made.

"THE STRAIGHT entrance road was curved for privacy

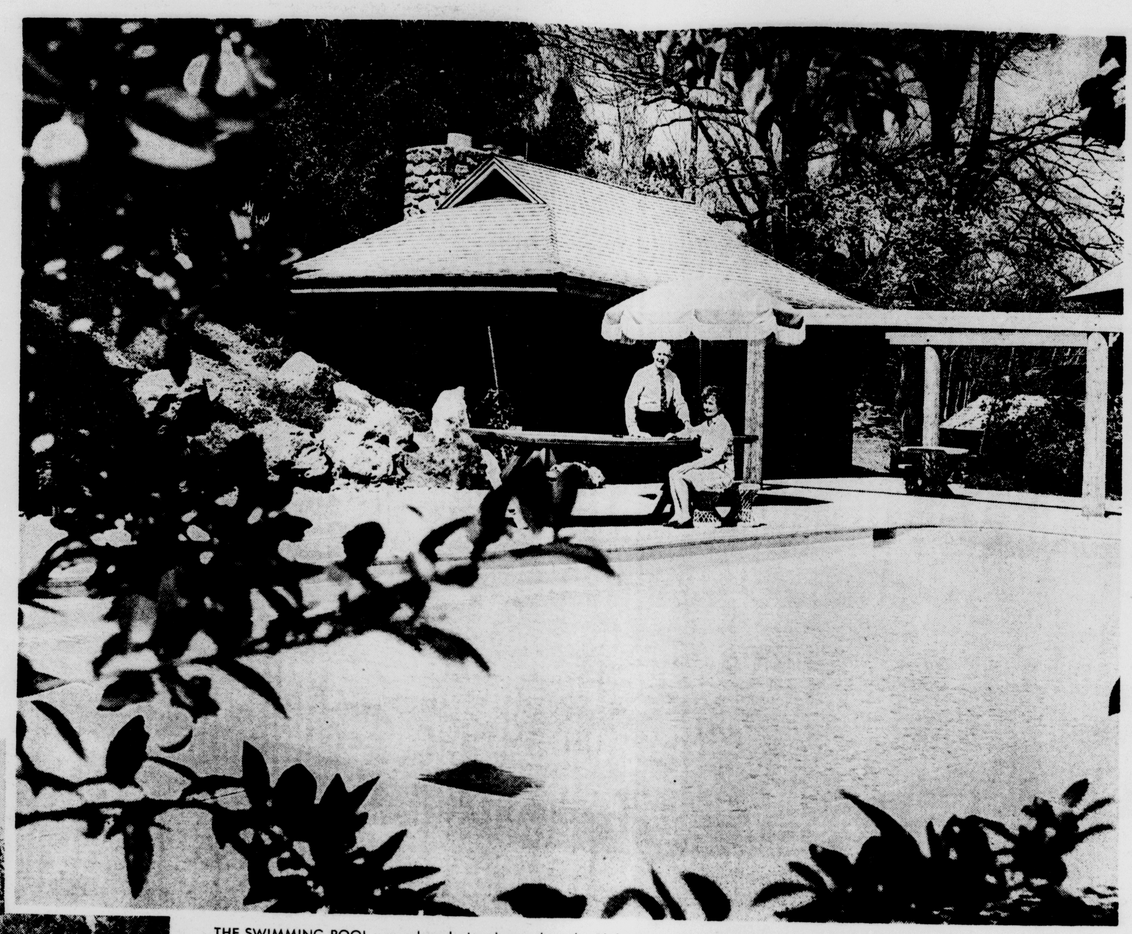
IN FRONT OF their Kentfield home, Mrs. Philip J. McCoy rings the authentic locomotive bell she bought her railroad buff husband. Molly, the shaggy family pet, enjoys the bell's sound and sometimes tries to ring it herself.



THE SWIMMING POOL was already in place when the Philip J. McCoys acquired their historic Kentfield home, but they added the structure that houses showers, barbecue and other facilities. Mrs. McCoy and Col. Todd H. Slade, president of the Garden Society of Marin, discuss plans for the May 2 Tour for Gardeners when the McCoy grounds will be open to the public. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

J. W. WILLIAMS of Marin City has turned off the water for the waterfall while he makes adjustments of plants among the boulders in the Philip J. McCoys' new rock garden. Williams has worked with the McCoys in a number of their new additions to their garden.

Garden With A Marin History

and esthetic appeal," explains Mrs. McCoy. "We added San Francisco cobblestone paths bordering flower beds and a rock garden with a waterfall which is visible through the dining room windows.

"Our friend Samuel Newsom of Mill Valley helped us with the rock garden design."

Aiding the McCoys in many projects these days is J. W. Williams of Marin City.

"He's very good at so many things," smiles Phoebe. "Currently we are building a pool house with barbecue, smoke oven and a shower as an addition to our cabana. It was my idea to have a 'little retreat for mother,' but my husband likes to build, so it's turning into something a bit more substantial and it has a Far East motif."

BECAUSE MRS. McCoy has always been interested in the culture and art of the Orient, she became one of the first docents for the Avery Brundage Collection in San Francisco's De-Young Memorial Museum where she guides visitors through the exhibits twice a week.

An event all the McCoys remember with special pleasure was their flag-raising party.

"We'd always wanted a flagpole," she explains. "So when we found this one, we planned a party for some hundred friends and neighbors and hired boys from nearby College of Marin to help with catering chores. After it was over, the young men refused any pay, saying they felt it was more a privilege than a job. We were all very touched."

OTHER GARDENS to be featured on the May 2 tour are those of Alex Black, 40 Blue Ridge Road and H. S. Meinberger, 2 Northridgewood Road, both in Kentfield; C. W. Caletti, 30 Moncado Way, and Herbert G. Pratt, 11 Westwood Drive, both in San Rafael, and C. W. Zumwalt, 73 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and tickets with maps for the Garden Tour for Gardeners may be purchased at the Marin Art and Garden Center or at any of the gardens on May 2.

A FAVORITE REMEMBRANCE of the Philip J. McCoys, Mrs. McCoy, left, tells her guest, Mrs. Todd Slade of Greenbrae, wife of the president of the Marin Garden Society, is the flag-raising party that celebrated the installation of this handsome staff.

THE CURVING pathway down which Mrs. Philip McCoy leads visitors A. H. Dewees and Col. Todd H. Slade is built of old San Francisco cobblestone, a rare and coveted paving product.

WISTERIA VINES that must be nearly a century old shade them from overhead while Mrs. Philip McCoy and guests Col. and Mrs. Todd H. Slade relax and chat.

The Perfect Honeymoon

Danish Fairytale Land Lures Many Newlyweds

What more natural destination for any honeymoon than the "fairytale country" itself, topped with the fun of Wonderful, Wonderful Copenhagen?

Denmark has long been a favorite of honeymooners, not only from the United States but from all over Europe. Why?

The reason is very simple: You'll find all the ingredients necessary — if you bring along the right spouse: fine food, fun, fairytales, furs, fabrics, furniture. . .

The "Copenhagen 24-Hours Fun" program is actually a non-stop custom built honeymoon program, from the festive Danish breakfast delicacies in the hotel room, through refreshing afternoon drinks at delightful sidewalk cafes, to late, late night snacks at cosy little fun places.

THE TOURS during the day are fascinating, whether they include visits to the world famous workshops of Copenhagen porcelain or beautiful Danish silver, or to the sights of marvelous crown jewels and royal reception rooms.

Or what about a romantic horsecab ride through the 300-years-old Deer Park with more than 1,000 deer?

And is any spot on earth more perfect for honeymoon-shopping than Wonderful Copenhagen, packed with stunning Danish design to be treasured for a lifetime?

And is there a more attractive place anywhere to finish a day of fun than in Tivoli, Copenhagen's lovely fairytale garden filled with beautiful flowers, millions of lights, good music and restaurants to remember?

HONEYMOONERS who prefer not to be in a big city will love Elsinore, Hamlet's town, 25 miles north of Copenhagen.

Here is everything: A delightful hotel which combines 100 years of traditions with the newest in facilities and entertainment including an indoor swimming pool, casino, dancing, beach, golf, fishing, sailing, walks in old streets, marketplace, monastery, glamorous castle and delightful excursions in all directions.

Honeymooners, however, should not only enjoy wonderful Copenhagen and historic Elsinore, but they ought to jump into a car and drive along Denmark's green roads through the countryside.

MANY OF Denmark's fairytale inns have special honeymoon-suites, and there is plenty of romance in the air whether you walk through the 1,000 year old streets of Ribe in Southern Jutland, enjoy the buildings in Aarhus' world famous Old Town Open Air Museum, or for instance stop a few days at lively Aalborg in Northern Jutland, with excellent hotels, many good restaurants and walking streets for shopping. Aalborg is a perfect headquarter for tours to the fabulous beaches, to old country inns and historic landmarks.

One thing is certain for the honeymooners visiting Denmark from all parts of the world: They will all want to come back to this fairytale country where a honeymoon in Denmark helped them to a perfect beginning of that happily-ever-after married life.

DENMARK IS ONE of the few remaining lands where the gasoline engine and the motor car have not succeeded in relegating the pedestrian to second-class-citizen status. Visitors can stroll and shop along the Stroget, the fascinating thoroughfare in the heart of romantic Copenhagen from which automobiles are barred, or sit in the sun at sidewalk cafes in that cosmopolitan city's spacious squares. And many Danish villages retain the quiet and serenity of past centuries.

Some Gems Among Paris' Many Restaurants

That wonderful little side-street restaurant which served a Lucullan feast for a pittance may have changed since the last time you saw Paris. Or, at least, the right side of the menu will have changed.

Paris — in fact all France — is still dedicated to the proposition that fine food is worth at least as much attention as the other favorite French diversions. But inflation has stabbed at the palate, and finding gourmet fare at bargain prices takes more initiative these days.

The American traveler to Paris aboard today's airliners isn't much interested in food for the first day — he's too stuffed already.

But the appetite revives after that first day of walking around Paris, search for plebeian-looking restaurants or cafes. If they inspire a crowd, you may have discovered a new gem, despite the barren decor.

IN ALL OF Paris' 6,000 restaurants, some still can be found which offer bargains.

For example, a few feet from the expensive Tour d'Argent, a small, homey cafe called Au Beaujolais offers excellent food at moderate prices in a typical Parisian setting. The waiters wear long, black aprons and the first glass of wine is on the house.

If you arrive early — before 7:30 p.m. — you'll find the staff enjoying their own dinners at long tables in front of the tiny bar. But someone will leap to your attention, turn up the bright lights and lead you to a small table set with a white cloth.

Strings of dried sausages hang from the ceiling beams, the windows overlook the Seine and by 8 p.m. it is crowded.

START WITH terrine maison or celeri remoulade, coq au vin, a dessert of creme caramel or tart maison and coffee. Two can enjoy this meal, with a bottle of "vin ordinaire" for $10. In 1960 it might have been 25 per cent less, but that's inflation.

Parisian proprietors close their doors eccentrically on various days of the week to suit their own convenience and drive the tourists and localites to distraction. Sunday is a favorite closing time and it is difficult to find a restaurant open on the Right Bank on the Seventh Day unless you rally 'round the Ritz or similar hotel dining rooms.

On the Left Bank, it is easier and one of the more charming Sunday exceptions to the closing rule is Au Chat Riton at 45 du Cherche-Midi, a few blocks from Boulevard du Montparnasse. This intimate little cafe is popular with residents of the neighborhood who are happily familiar with the Basque specialities of the maison and the pleasant atmosphere created by mellow brick walls and soft lighting.

THE RESTAURANT'S hors d'oeuvre cart carries a miniature smorgasbord on wheels, offering a first course that is almost a meal in itself. Two can dine and wine deliciously here for about $15, including tip and dessert of fresh North African pineapple swimming in rum.

Offering more in the way of atmosphere is La Gaudisserie at 19 Rue St. Louis en l'Ile, modestly tucked away on the main street of this exclusive residential island in the River Seine.

Only about 30 people can be seated in the 300-year-old dining room under the low, beamed ceiling. Candlelight and red homespun curtains warm the shadows playing on the rough stone walls, while the good wine and the fire in the ancient fireplace warm the guests.

Dinner with wine will be about $18 for two and could include a casserole of ham-filled pancakes bubbling in a cheese sauce; a filet mignon, garnished with watercress, deep-fried egg plant, salad, cheese or dessert and coffee. A bowl of escargot, little boiled snails, is passed around with after-dinner drinks.

AN INFORMAL after-dinner program of guitar music, songs and poetry follow. Each lady receives a long-stemmed red rose to carry home through the midnight streets.

If you are really tied to a shoestring budget, La Popote on

Rue Vernon in Montmartre is a bistro still serving a six-franc lunch with wine. Get in before noon as it becomes crowded to capacity for a meal equal to $1.32, U.S. Workmen in overalls, shopkeepers, office workers and artists working in the neighborhood dine around the oil cloth-covered tables.

Tourists who smile are drawn into the conversation immediately and if their contribution to the discussion is a bit vague, nobody really minds.

The menu, soaped up on the mirrors lining the walls, consists of a few simple and filling dishes like beef bourguignon and veal stew with mashed potatoes. The wine, poured out of unlabeled bottles, is served in thick tumblers; there's lots of crusty bread and fresh butter and the pie is home-made.

DINERS WITH expensive appetites could run the tab up to $2.50 by ordering extras like soup, tomatoes and cucumbers vinaigrette, cheese and brand-name wine.

Coffee is served at the little bar down the street because La Popote doesn't encourage customers to loiter once the meal is over. Eating is a serious business here and Madame, who directs the entire production from her post near the kitchen door, will scold those who don't clean up their plates smartly. In fact, she'll send the unfinished portions right back to the table with caustic comments about wasting good food.

A Roll Call Of Americans Who Have Chosen To Live Abroad

By DON KEOWN

THE EXPATRIATES by Ishbel Ross; Crowell, 358 pages, $7.95.

Ishbel Ross may well have succeeded in breaking the world record for name-dropping in her big new book "The Expatriates."

It is the kaleidoscopic story of Americans who have chosen or who have been required to live abroad, beginning with Benjamin Franklin while our War of Independence was still being waged, and continuing down to the present with its Jet Set, diplomatic bureaucracy, Peace Corps, Hippies, exchange students and draft evaders.

Two and a half million Americans, better than 1 per cent of the national population, now live outside our boundaries, continuing a tradition that thousands have practiced before them.

To the reader, it must seem that Miss Ross has omitted but few of them from her book.

What "The Expatriates" really is is a digest of scores of other, earlier books written about expatriatism and its prominent practitioners. The bibliography in the back of "The Expatriates" is immense. And one cannot doubt but that Miss Ross has read and faithfully recorded notes from all of them.

What you get then is a three or four paragraph paraphrased excerpt from a source about a particular expatriate, summarizing how he lived abroad and with whom he mingled, after which you move on to another subject covered by another source and accord him similarly quick treatment. But you can be sure that your first subject—and the second as well—will reappear time and time again later in the book, linked by yet other sources to still other expatriates. The result is considerable repetition and some jumbling of the chronology.

There's a gossipy flavor to the book, particularly when you reach the 1920s and 1930s where Miss Ross, working as a New York Herald Tribune reporter, has personally interviewed and known many of the principals. Unfortunately, just when she has gained her reader's full attention, she finds it necessary to move on to her next celebrity.

To say that her book is devoid of interest would be unfair. It is impossible to resist her colorful cast. It is just that one winds up wishing Miss Ross might have limited her introductions to a smaller number, so that your visits might have been more sustained.

Only a few, such as Thomas Jefferson, Jefferson Davis, John Singer Sargent, James Whistler, Benjamin West, Ernest Hemingway and Scott Fitzgerald are accorded space that is almost, if not quite, adequate.

One is given tantalizing but incomplete glimpses of the likes of the John Adamses, Gilbert Stuart, John Singleton Copley, Charles Willson Peale, Washington Irving, Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Russell Lowell, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Hiram Powers, Horatio Greenough, George Ticknor, Rose Greenhow, Matthew Maury, Kate Chase Sprague, Mary Todd Lincoln, Victoria Claflin Woodhull, Clara Barton, Isabella Stewart Gardner, Bernard Berenson, Henry James, George Santayana, Edith Wharton, Mary Cassatt, Jennie Jerome Churchill, Ezra Pound, Isadora Duncan, Consuelo Vanderbilt, Lady Nancy Astor, Mabel Dodge, Gertrude Stein, F. Marion Crawford, Peggy Guggenheim, John Dos Passos, Sinclair Lewis, Malcolm Cowley, James Joyce, T. S. Eliot, Robert McAlmon, Josephine Baker, James Gordon Bennett, Louis Bromfield, the Duchess of Windsor, Merle Oberon, Princess Grace, Elizabeth Taylor, Lee Radziwill, Fleur Cowles, Charles Chaplin, Anthony Quinn, William Holden, Paul Bowles, Mary McCarthy, Janet Flanner, Richard Wright, Alexander Haley, Irwin Shaw. . .Some rate only the barest mention.

It is a rich and intriguing cast. But Miss Ross only titillates, never satisfies, our curiosity. Her technique is more that of the society page columnist, dealing primarily with the friendships and the feuds that have flourished in expatriate circles, than it is that of the serious social commentator probing a phenomena that has drained America heavily of some of its finest, most creative talent.

Not until her closing pages does she make any real attempt to come to grip with the factors that have caused this leak, and then her effort is not convincing.

"The spirit of adventure, the longing to see the world, the patriotic spirit, all have their place in this great army of exiled Americans," she writes of the present generation.

But she also says: "The old quest for isolation to pursue artistic expression is not in the contemporary mood. . ."

One suspects that just such a quest is still very much the decisive factor in the decision of many Americans to spend extended periods in other lands. Their own country has grown more rather than less crowded and noisy with fewer opportunities for the privacy and contemplation that artists and other thoughtful persons cherish.

Miss Ross is correct when she says that American writers and artists who work abroad no longer starve and freeze in garrets (the youngsters, both Hippie and non-Hippie, who stream from the country, are now the ones who "rough it"). But congestion, despoliation, the absence of tranquility remain no less a cause of their migration.

With all its advantages over other lands, and these are many, the United States also has its flaws. One alternative is to flee them. Another is not to see them. But there is a third possibility—to remain and to confront them. More and more Americans, alarmed but not despairing, are choosing that course.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN was the first American expatriate of prominence, arriving in France in 1776 on his third trip abroad to establish his new country's first diplomatic headquarters. He won the affection of the French and produced the first daily newspaper intended for Americans in Paris. The illustration is one of 23 reproduced in Ishbel Ross' new book, "The Expatriates."

THE YEAR 1969 was not the period of momentous, blockbuster events that the preceding year had been.

It was, instead, a year of trends — some of them new and some of them holdovers from previous years that hardened, accelerated or decelerated during the 12 months.

This is reflected in "1969: The Year in Review," Time-Life Books' annual summary of the news as prepared by the Time magazine staff.

For the observers, 1969 was a year of cautious middle-of-the-road government in Washington; of growing dissatisfaction with the lingering war in Vietnam; of rising inflation and a slumping stock market; of worsening world tensions in many areas — the Middle East, the China-Russia border, Southeast Asia, Northern Ireland, etc.; of an awakened interest in ecology and our environment; of a widening in the gap between the generations; of declining interest in civil rights; of increased hostility between the President and a Democratic-controlled Congress.

There was, of course, one spectacular "spot news" story that rivaled 1968's biggest events — the first visit by earthmen to the moon.

And there were many lesser stories — about personalities, the cinema, the theater, literature, sports, business, fashions, aviation, politics, the courts, all of which are covered by "The Year in Review."

For Time, 1969 was a year that "began in an atmosphere of transitional tolerance" and ended "on a note of acrimony," perhaps typified by Vice President Spiro Agnew's bellicosity.

Time-Life, of course, has immense resources for illustrating this kind of book, and uses them freely and wisely here. It also provides a day-by-day chronology of the major news events of the year.

Despite the annoyance one sometimes experiences with the Time staff's supreme conceit in its own cleverness and infallibility, the book is unquestionably a valuable candidate for the reference shelf, well worth the space and price.

MEREDITH PRESS has put out a new edition of its "Better Homes and Gardens Handyman's Book," a volume which its publisher says has already sold more than 1,850,000 copies in its original version.

The new edition retains the ring-bound format, but the smudge-resistant hardcover is now an eye-catching red, and the 400 pages of contents reflect new developments in home maintenance products and techniques. The indexing, too, has been improved.

This attractive, useful book for the do-it-yourselfer, heavily and effectively illustrated, is reasonably priced at $6.95.

RANDOM HOUSE has launched a new, black-oriented literary magazine in a softcover book format entitled Amistad with Charles F. Harris and John A. Williams as its editors. The first issue of the magazine, which will be published biannually at the outset and probably later become a quarterly, features a selection from a new George Davis novel, Williams' "An Interview with Chester Himes" and Calvin C. Hernton's "The Ordeal of James Baldwin." The price is $1.95 per copy.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SPANISH SEASON by Bernard Oldsey; Harcourt, Brace & World, 371 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

When restless English professor Curtis Fielding accepts a Fulbright Award to teach in Spain, he also undertakes two other Iberian missions.

One is to write a magazine article about the relationship of the Spanish people to the American servicemen in their midst. The other, for a friend, to look into the death, supposedly a highway accident, of a young airman stationed in Spain. The family has received letters hinting that the death might not have been accidental.

Bernard Oldsey, himself a college English teacher, has done a splendid job of taking Fielding over the twisted route that he must travel to conduct that investigation, involving him with an interesting assortment of Spaniards and Americans-in-Spain, including the inevitable beautiful women, and with racketeers and killers.

Spanish geography and character are well depicted, and the sterile atmosphere created by its totalitarian government also permeates this excellent suspense novel.

Story Of Midways Offers Readers A Pleasant Escape

CARNIVAL by Arthur Lewis; Trident Press, 315 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

You'll be amazed. You'll be delighted. You'll see wonders: daredevils, snake charmers, freaks and kootch dancers.

Just step into your bookstore and buy "Carnival" — a journey to places where men are men and women, too, are bearded.

The Tattooed Lady is here with the Three-Eyed Man. The Midway lures the "marks" to play its games and the "tips" to watch its shows.

Carnivals are bigger and better than ever (if better is the word), according to author Lewis. And there are more of them now. A thousand "carnies" operate in the U.S. and Canada, mostly in the East and Midwest. Lewis travelled with many of them during 1968. Some are big operations with Midways a half-mile long. Others are tiny, sleazy and usually near bankruptcy.

The big carnies operate fair and square; some small carnies dare not play the same town twice. Most games and shows are concessions, called "privileges" in the lingo of the carnival. The operators pay a percentage to the owner. These concessionaires furnish most of the anecdotes and episodes for the narrative. They are an oddball lot for the most part — uneducated and sometimes misanthropic. But Lewis writes unabashedly in favor of carnie people, if not of carnie life. He sympathizes especially with the freaks who find social acceptance in the carnival world where elsewhere they would be kept out of sight by shamed relatives.

Carnies large and small have problems with the police, some of them deserved. But the gendarmes tend to be avaricious and payoffs are made almost everywhere, and especially in Brockton, Mass.

Some games and shows net their operators up to $50,000 for six months work.

Some shows are for real and dangerous — like sword swallowing. Sword swallowers have died from injuries caused by a cough during their act.

Other shows, like the Bearded Lady, are usually a fake.

Don't ever box a chimpanzee — even if you weigh 200 pounds to his 60 pounds. He may knock your teeth out while tearing your clothes off. All within 20 seconds.

"Carnival" is fast, funny reading, and a pleasant escape to a different world.

THOMAS MORAN'S depiction of Lake Tahoe is reproduced as one of the many illustrations in "The Pacific Tourist," which appeared in the 1880s as "an illustrated trans-continental guide of travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean" and which has now been reprinted in a $2.95 facsimile edition by Bounty, a division of Crown Publishers. Frederick E. Shearer edited into the book a wealth of information about the geography, the life and the transportation of the time, and the facsimile copies are certain to have a considerable appeal for students of Americana, particularly for rail buffs saddened by the rapid demise of our once proud passenger trains.

The Man Behind The Legend Of Lawrence Of Arabia

THE SECRET LIVES OF LAWRENCE OF ARABIA by Phillip Knightley and Colin Simpson; McGraw-Hill, 333 pages, $8.85. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

The decisive battles of the first World War were fought in France — the bloody trench-trading of Verdun, the Marne, the Somme. The battle that captured the imagination of the English-speaking world was hardly decisive—it was a sideshow—led by an anachronistic romantic, Col. T. E. Lawrence.

The Arab "revolt in the desert" broke the Ottoman Empire, promised Arabian independence and thrust into prominence Lawrence of Arabia, more a legend in the "Beau Geste" tradition of P. C. Wren than a man.

In their efforts to portray the man behind the legend, Knightley and Simpson have written a fascinating biography of a complex human, as well as providing new insights into an extremely confusing historical period. The authors, correspondents for the London Sunday Times, are beneficiaries of good fortune in having new sources of information made available to them—Lawrence's papers; private personal materials of people close to Lawrence, and classified British documents—hitherto forbidden to researchers.

Lawrence of Arabia, spokesman for the Arabs, becomes a myth before our eyes and on the basis of quite convincing evidence becomes Lawrence of the Foreign Office, whose first loyalty was consistently to the cause of British imperialism.

The description of Lawrence at the end of the war trying to serve British, Arab and Zionist interests all at the same time is spellbinding.

Lawrence comes through as an extremely competent person of many dimensions—military campaigner, foreign policy-maker and administrator and poet-philosopher. But even such a "Renaissance Man" could be stretched too thin and Lawrence's wartime experiences and strains plus the post-war frustrations of having his Mid-East policy urgings rejected brought him near to madness. He fled into the ranks of the Royal Air Force and the Tank Corps to lose and degrade himself without ever losing touch with the mighty he had known when he was at his romantic pinnacle.

Historically, the book gives a well-documented picture of the wide variety of motives influencing British policy in the Middle East, most of which had nothing to do with the welfare of the inhabitants. As for the results of such meddling of West in East, the authors are quite specific: "The whole area, marked with bitterness inherited from Britain's 'war-time Eastern adventure,' still presents the same melancholy and alarming picture which Churchill saw in 1921."

For this reviewer the authors were much more successful as historians than as psychiatrists. Their efforts to unravel Lawrence's psyche were less convincing than their analysis of his role and Imperialist Britain's in the Middle Eastern politics at a time when both oil and Zionism were becoming major factors in that area.

Some Fun With The Therapists

GAMES ANALYSTS PLAY by Dr. Martin Shepard and Marjorie Lee; Putnam, 189 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Described by its publisher, G. P. Putnam's Sons, as "a much-needed, long-overdue bomb under the seat of the psychoanalytic establishment with its rigid, unchanging techniques and attitudes," the book, "Games Analysts Play" pokes satirical fun at therapists and their methods.

But it is also intended, its co-authors say, to offer some genuine and cautionary understanding for patients of psychotherapy and thus aid them in a wise selection of their therapists.

Yet another objective is to awaken the therapists themselves to some of the pitfalls and inanities of their profession.

The authors are Dr. Martin Shepard, consulting psychiatrist to the New York City Department of Corrections and a private practitioner, and Marjorie Lee, novelist and veteran writer in the field of mental health.

And despite their lightheartedness as they discuss such games played by analysts with their patients as "Tell Me a Dream" (to deny boredom), "I Wish You Could Hear a Tape of Yourself Three Years Ago" (to justify fees) and "You're a Victim of Countertransference" (for second-rounders), and with their fellow analysts, the co-authors maintain their book has an underlying serious purpose and benefit.

"The traditional pretense, or game structure, in much therapy today, is, although safe in its wide professional acceptance, the brick wall between treatment and resolution," they declare. "With further education and self-searching, we must grow — so that one day we may discover the wasteful overarmament in our human psyches. It will be with this realization that we drop our iron-clad defenses, to find that there is little need for our crippling fears after all."

CO-AUTHORS of "Games Analysts Play" are Marjorie Lee, professional writer, and Dr. Martin Shepard, psychiatrist.

New Work On Bison: Good Notes, But Bad Book

THE BUFFALO by Francis Haines; Crowell, 226 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

It takes more than knowledge of a subject to make a book.

Francis Haines, retired history professor, has made the American bison his special hobby, and is recognized as an authority on it. But his new volume, "The Buffalo," billed as "the story of the American bison and their hunters from prehistoric times to the present," reads more like a series of notes from which a book might be written than like the finished product.

There is much information about the bison, but it takes more than information to make a book.

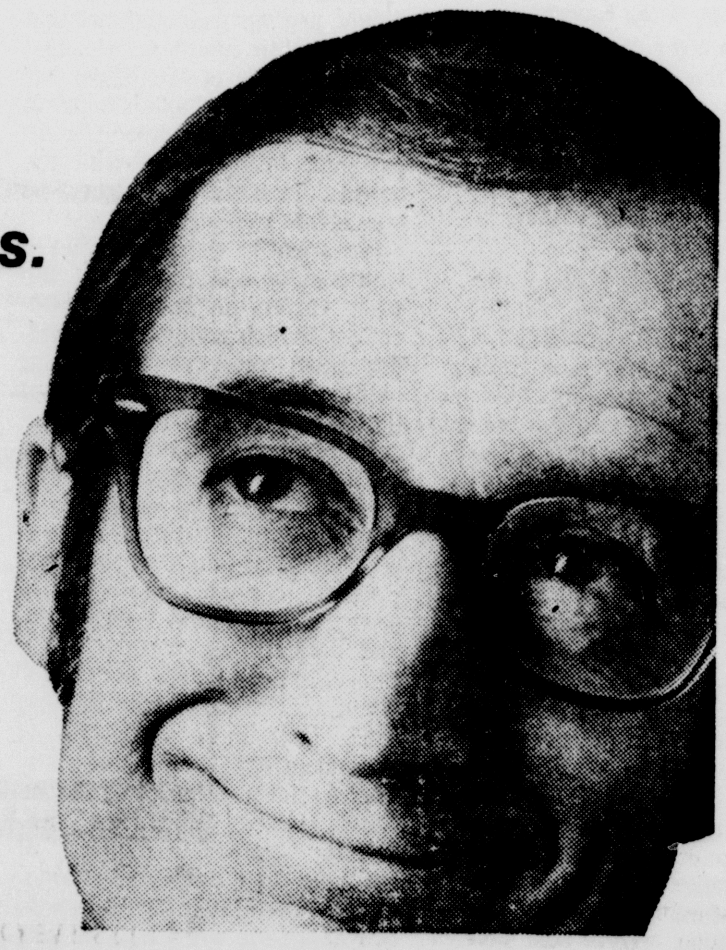
BOISE CASCADE



New On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

Here's what the important jazz and rock record label Atlantic has been doing lately. . .

MARION WILLIAMS — "The New Message" — Atlantic SD 8228:

ROBERTA FLACK — "First Take" — Atlantic SD 8230:

Two magnificent new black gal singers, the first in a pop-gospel bag with tunes by Bob Dylan and The Rascals as well as the more traditional gospel tunes, the second more of a jazz vocalist, but one of wide-ranging versatility covering everything from a beautiful Spanish song to Leonard Cohen's "Hey That's No Way to Say Goodbye." "Compared to What" is another hard-hitting contemporary protest song. The orchestral backing for both Miss Williams and Miss Flack is provided with great taste by William Fischer.

"THE BEST OF CARLA THOMAS" — Atlantic SD 8232:

The current vogue of "Best of .. ." albums provides a fine opportunity for record buyers to simplify their choices and at the same time enter some musical territories they might not otherwise explore. Carla's soul duets with the late Otis Redding turned this writer on, and here are 14 of her best tracks from over the last 10 years to sample her solo work in the land of soul inspiration.

MABEL MERCER AND BOBBY SHORT — "Second Town Hall Concert" — Atlantic SD 2-605:

Two more black vocalists, but working not in the soul, gospel or even jazz areas, but in that small inbred and super-sophisticated musical area known as the New York intimate show tune. Neither Short nor Miss Mercer have what one would call great voices. The whole interest is in their unique, highly-polished treatment of the often rare Broadway material by such stand-bys as Vernon Duke, Cole Porter, Cy Coleman and Alec Wilder. An attempt at being "with-it" is introduced with such modern hits as "Both Sides Now," and Lennon & McCartney's "Goodnight."

This double-disc set will surely do better sales-wise on the East Coast, but there is a great deal of fascination in it for the ordinary listener who is not privy to the hot-house world of the Broadway theater song.

HERBIE MANN — "Concerto Grosso in D Blues" — with Symphonic Orchestra conducted by William Fischer — Atlantic SD 1540:

It's a bit late to startle the musical world with experiments in combined jazz and the classics at this point, but Mann and Fischer have put together a very successful half-hour excursion in the title number of this LP.

Often the straight symphony musicians in this type of combination just don't "feel it" and the results are rigid and unswinging. The 80 members of the Berlin orchestra behind flutist Mann and his quintet get the point excitingly, however. The piece is not avant-garde, but has much intensity and feeling. The three tracks on Side 2 are interesting too, for the Quintet is increased by addition of brass ensembles or double string quartets for a swinging symphonic sound.

"Wailing Wall" was a standout here.

IRON BUTTERFLY — "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida" — Atco SD 33-250:

This top-selling rock album has been around for a while but has only just found its way to my turntable. Iron Butterfly has a rather acidy-rock "sound" but with more of a beat than many similar groups. The title tune is a 17-minute "trip" that begins to pall musically for this listener part way through, but who am I to argue with a Gold Record award?

ARS NOVA — "Sunshine & Shadows" — Atlantic SD 8221:

Either the second or third release by a versatile six-man rock group.

Ars Nova is one of the many groups expanding their music beyond the strictures of standard rock. The classics are a big influence, as their name implies, but so are bossa nova, blues, Oriental music, Spanish guitar, you name it.

"Walk on the Sand" is a sensuous and lengthy cross-fertilization of rock and bossa nova, and "Rubbish" reminds

Some Basic Hand Tools Are Necessity

Handyman's Page

By ANDY LANG

Even if you are only a once-in-a-while do-it-yourselfer around the home, you simply cannot do without certain hand tools.

High on the list of these is the wrench. But the word wrench encompasses objects of so many different shapes and sizes that some of them appear to belong to some other family of tools. The hex head wrench, also known as the allen head, seems far removed for instance, from the adjustable wrench with which most of us are familiar. But their function is similar: to tighten and loosen; in one case, nuts and bolts, in the other, headless setscrews.

THE ADJUSTABLE wrench, which includes the so-called monkey wrench, has flat jaws designed for gripping nuts and bolts with flat surfaces. One jaw can be moved by means of an adjusting nut. When using this wrench, it should be placed on to the head of a nut or bolt so that the force will be applied to the back of the handle, thus relieving the strain on the adjustable jaw.

Similar in appearance to the adjustable wrench is the pipe wrench, one jaw of which also moves by turning a nut. But the pipe wrench has toothed jaws, meant for holding round items. Too often it is used on nuts, chewing them out of shape so that they cannot be turned with an adjustable wrench. When used on a pipe, as it should be, a pipe wrench should be used with a partner; one wrench for holding, one for turning. A sure way to ruin a pipe fitting is to attempt to turn a pipe with a single wrench. When a plumber or other mechanic finds that space will not permit him to turn a pipe wrench properly, he uses a chain-strap wrench, but this is a specialized tool which most home owners usually do not require.

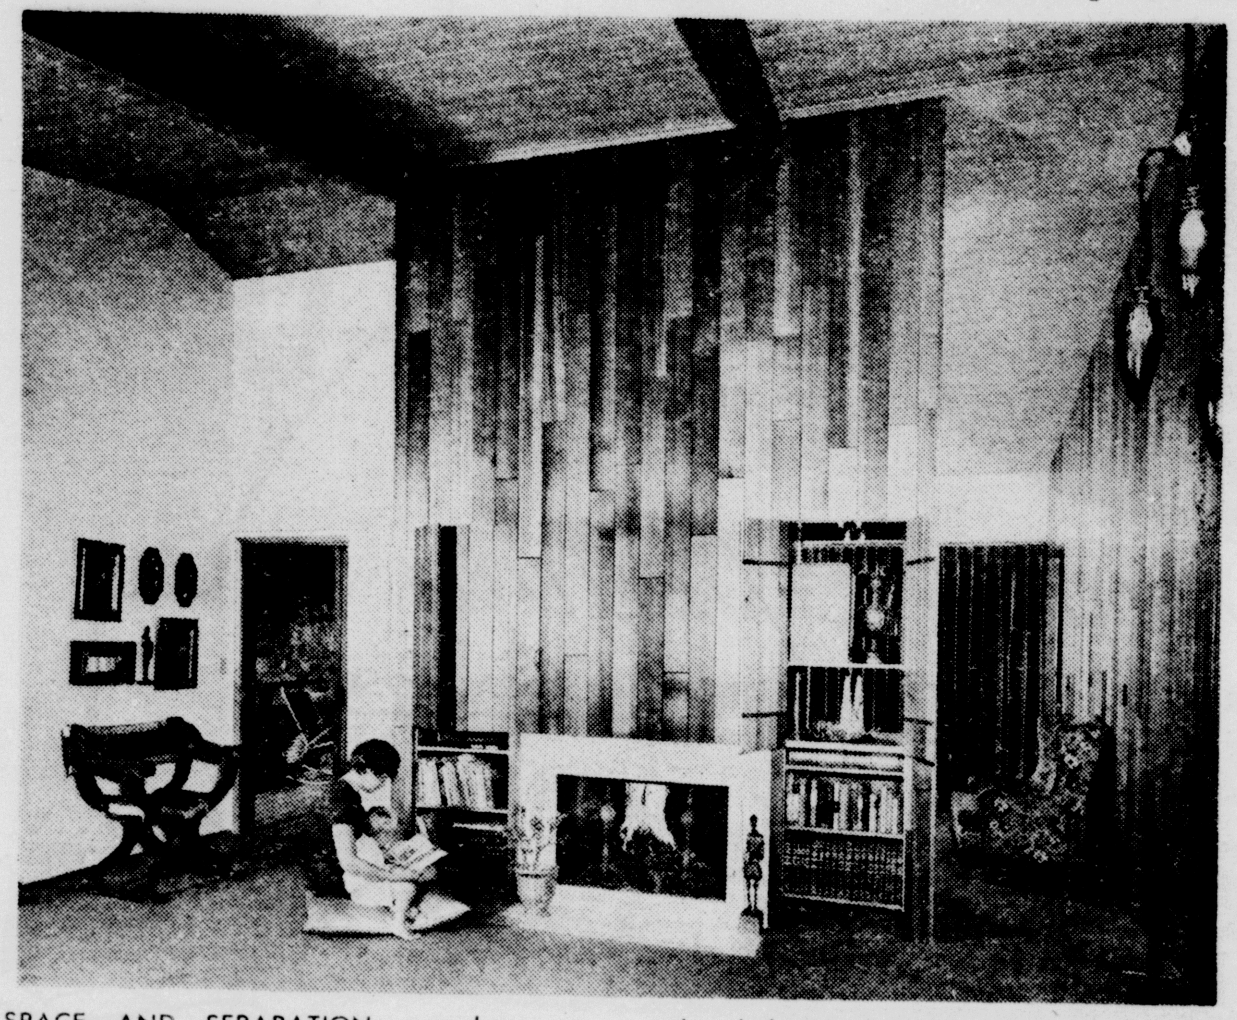
There are many varieties of the adjustable wrench, one of which has a self-adjusting arrangement. And then there are the open end wrenches with non-adjustable jaws. They usually have different-sized openings at the ends. With a set of these, an opening can be found for virtually any sized nut or bolthead. A combination wrench, also non-adjustable, has an open end and a closed or box end.

BECOMING increasingly popular with do-it-yourselfers, especially those who make automobile repairs, are the socket wrenches, which usually come in sets or kits. One end of a socket wrench has teeth on the inside to grip a nut or bolt. On the other end is an opening into which a handle fits to provide the turning force. There are many different types of these for special purposes. The main asset of socket wrenches is that they permit work to be done in cramped quarters where other wrenches could not be used.

Perhaps you do so little work around the house that you can get by with a single adjustable wrench. But whether you buy one wrench or 20, purchasing quality is a good investment. A well-made wrench will outlast you.

Some Combinations For Indoor Growing

Professionally grown combination plants — three or four "go-together" varieties in the same container — make attractive spring decorations for table centerpieces, shelves and mantles. Some winning combinations, in large, standard or three-quarter clay pots, include Boston "yellow daisy" pot mums and flowering maple; and ferns, with a "prayer plant."



SPACE AND SEPARATION are keys to livability. Here a fireplace wall divides the living room from a small den. There's red cedar shelving for books and music with inexpensive random length panel boards that create an informal feeling.

Clever Design Can Expand Home And Give Separation

The American family craves expansion—visually, mentally, and in terms of activities and the space that's needed for them.

The average home, after all, has to accommodate two sexes and several age groups.

Elbow room is not so dificult to achieve if you can afford to ignore the square-foot-dollar factor, but few of us can. That's where the "think-tank" sessions come in for would-be homeowners, their architects and builders.

IF SMALL BOYS want to rough-and-tumble, older girls play house or primp, and parents want to read or put in overtime at home, there obviously has to be some degree of separation.

One way to find it is vertically. Even two or three short steps can lift a living room from the hubbub of the rest of the house. A small part of that area, tucked into a corner behind a divider wall becomes a really secluded den.

The wall may have other purposes, too. A fireplace there will serve both areas and built-ins will hold books, hi-fi equipment and portable television set, that can be swiveled.

A vaulted ceiling, good window treatment, and an accessible deck also expand the space.

LUMBER ON interior walls ties the floor plan together. Random cedar, finished clear, exudes cheer and informality. And (back to the budget) it is considerably less expensive than uniform length boards. And when built-in cabinet doors are fitted with touch latches and hidden hardware, the narrow cracks around the openings are all but invisible.

A ceiling of unfinished knotty pine provides a good balance for the cedar in color and in texture. Carried through to other areas in an open-roof system, it provides a fine balance between separation and togetherness.

Plantings In Pots Dress Up A Patio

Gardening in pots has become an important phase of landscape design.

This isn't surprising, as pots full of color add a colorful dimension to their surroundings—especially outdoor living areas such as patios and terraces.

Some veteran gardeners go a step further by bringing potted color into bloom in an out-of-the way garden spot so it can be moved into the spotlight wherever and whenever the situation calls for it. With such a system you merely sink the pot in the ground and instantly achieve a colorful effect.

IT'S POSSIBLE to enjoy pots of color from now to early winter.

Bright orange, yellow and gold calendulas are cool season performers which will carry the color standard into early summer. There are many others ready to take over when these fade.

Nurseries will have several sizes of marguerites—from small plants in nursery flats to landscape-size containers which probably will be in bloom now. They'll flower until frost. The yellow and white varieties are very popular for their daisy-like flowers and continuous color.

Don't overlook the unusual pink forms and doubles.

MARIGOLDS—especially the dwarf and intermediate growers—are reliable choices for pots; as are petunias and the California favorite—geraniums. In small containers try cockscomb with bright red or gold plumes through summer.

For shady locations, rely on coleus with brilliant markings and hues of complimentary colors in its foliage, and impatiens to fill-the-bill. Fibrous begonias will take part shade. Pink, white and red flowers cover the plants into winter.

Check your nurseryman's offering of flowering plants for growing in pots. He'll have a wide range of plants and containers to choose from.

A Beet That Doesn't Bleed

A golden beet?

That is what the W. Atlee Burpee Co. says it has come up with in its new introduction for 1970.

The Golden Beet, says Burpee, does not bleed like the ordinary red beet.

Furthermore, its tops are touted as being better tasting than spinach when cooked for greens.

It is also described as "just as easy to grow as any other beet."

MARINITES can plant the new winter squash, the Waltham Butternut, by seed now and anticipate some good eating later this year. It is a product of Prof. Robert E. Young of the University of Massachusetts Waltham Field Station. Its developer says it is larger than other Butternuts and produces fruit that are virtually free of crooks. Each plant also yields more fruit, and these are more uniform in size. The flesh inside is richer in color and tastes better when cooked. And finally, the Waltham Butternut keeps better than does its ancestors. If your nurseryman's or market's seed rack does not now contain the Waltham Butternut, keep looking. Being new, they aren't yet available everywhere. But they should be showing up.

If Ground Is Warm, It's Dahlia-Planting Time

When spring's sunshine and balmy breezes have warmed the soil of your garden, it's time to plant dahlia tubers.

You'll be investing your money and time in one of the most versatile of flower families. They produce summer-long color in great quantity and in a wide variety of flower sizes and shapes on plants that are dwarf, medium and tall.

Dahlias come in such a multitude of models that there are a dozen or more different classifications.

THE SMALLEST are the pompons and the largest are the formal and informal decorative dahlias. These last are more for show by the hobbyist than for general garden use.

If you plan to grow the massive decorative types, plant them in a bed by themselves. They don't take kindly to competition, and show off better unto themselves.

Dahlia tubers are available right now for planting, and besides the many flower forms available, the range of colors is a gardener's delight. From the purest white through bright yellows and reds to the deepest violet, the colors are so appealing they're practically irresistible.

THE COLORS blend nicely with other garden shrubs, annuals and perennials—complimenting the summer and fall garden in a striking manner.

Dahlias thrive best under coastal conditions where humidity is high and the soil is sandy. Inland, they want plenty of water.

Create favorable growing conditions by incorporating a nurserymen's planter mix with the soil when you set out the tubers.

Nurserymen can provide cultural advice, which includes immediate staking of the larger varieties, and monthly feeding—after the plants have become established and show good growth.

FOR SHOW-SIZE blooms, pinch back growth and disbud the plants. More flowers and increased garden color are to be had by pinching the plants a few times to encourage bushy growth, than letting flower buds form and bloom where they may without nipping them off.

Take a special look, too, at the dwarf dahlias, now available as inexpensive seedling transplants which, during the coming months, will reward you with dazzling garden color all summer-long.

You can stretch your gardening dollar when you use these dwarf dahlias to fill-in large beds and wide borders. Each plant covers about a square foot—and provides a full season of bloom.

Nurserymen suggest combining dwarf dahlias with a background of giant marigolds or zinnias.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Now is the time to get those annuals started, whether you are planting seeds or seedlings.
- This is planting time, too, for tuberous begonias, gladiolus, cannas and dahlia bulbs.
- If you forgot to plant that shade tree during the winter months, it is not too late. Nurseries have container-grown trees that may safely be transplanted now.
- Except when late spring rains help out, it is time to begin that regular lawn and garden watering schedule. And water deeply while you are at it.
- For a striking addition to a shaded patio, grow coleus in hanging baskets. Their rich foliage color is enhanced by handsome markings.
- As spring-blooming shrubs go out of bloom, perform your pruning chores.
- Be on the alert for aphids, and get after them at once with the proper chemicals should these pests appear.
- Snails and slugs, too, are stirring. Put out ample bait for these.
